Virginian Sees Peril to Nation's Credit in Present Bill.

Wage Test Likely In Senate Today

Storm center of a row between the Administration and the American Federation of Labor over wage provisions, the President's $4,880,000,000 works and relief bill yesterday encountered heavy shelling from the Democrats' own ranks, as the bill neared its first major test in the Senate.

Senator Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia, first Senate Democrat to assail the entire measure, declared its defeat would assure the Nation "that the Government is determined to maintain the credit of the United States above reproach." He offered an amendment to cut the appropriation to $1,880,000,000.

The Virginian's speech interrupted a heated debate on efforts of Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, to pay prevailing wages on Federal aid projects, in lieu of the $50 monthly "security" wage proposed by the President.

Wage Vote Possible Today.

The wage amendment may reach a vote today. Both Administration forces and proponents of the amendment, backed by the American Federation of Labor, are claiming victory by a narrow margin. Arkansas, Democratic majority leader, late yesterday threw his powerful voice in the breach, as the President's forces rallied to hold Democratic ranks on the first important showdown.

In a counter maneuver Senator McCarran proposed further to alter his amendment in two respects. He will offer an amendment to exempt Civilian Conservation Camps from the prevailing wage requirement, and accept an amendment by Senator James Couzens (Republican), Michigan, to fix wages prevailing on the day the measure is passed. This would tend to check agitation to bolster prevailing standards, after passage, it was contended.

As Senator Robinson and Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, managing debate on the bill, united in denouncing the McCarren amendment, Senators Couzens and William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, joined in the melee, backing up McCarran in contending a general lowering of private wage standards would result from the President's bill.

Glass Also for Slash.

In a strong plea for a check in spending, Senator Byrd yesterday held the Senate's attention, declaring:

"The time has come when temporary and emergency legislation should yield to sound principles of gradual but substantial public spending, increasing our markets abroad, and giving confidence to private enterprise to go forward."

In carefully chosen words that reviewed efforts of the Administration to put business and labor back to work while relief lists constantly mounted, Byrd insisted further ambitious plans for public works and social service should wait on recovery.

Urges Proposal Rejected.

"The defeat of this proposal to expend five billion of dollars on unknown projects, many of no immediate necessity and of doubtful permanent value, will do much to restore confidence to those business men anxious to go forward," he shouted.

Rejection of the legislation, he said, would be "a proclamation to the world that the period of acute economic emergency in this country is over and that we are now turning calmly from the treatment of the crisis to making our recovery sound and permanent."

His speech, in the vigor of its assault on an Administration-sponsored measure, recalled the Virginian's loud protest last session against the farm policies of Undersecretary of Agriculture Tugwell, and proposed AAA amendments.

Wage Showdown Near.

Debate on the McCarran prevailing wage amendment appeared headed for a ballot, when Majority Leader Robinson took the floor and told the Senate the McCarran proposal would give many laborers twice as much as they ever made before in their lives, would hold 3,500,000 of unemployed on the public pay rolls, and would check a return to private employment.

McCarran interrupted with a question:

"Would you have the Government pay producers of the $2,000,000,000 in materials required in this bill only half the cost?"

State Decides To Spare Life Of Kennamer

Pawnee, Okla., Feb. 20 (U.P.).—Eloquent attorneys alternately portrayed Phil Kennamer and John Gorrell, jr., as kidnapers tonight in desperate efforts to sway a farmer jury in the former's murder trial.

Whatever the effect of the legal oratory, young Kennamer apparently had the assurance tonight that his life will be spared. A solid day of courtroom arguments found the State abandoning the death penalty. Life imprisonment will be asked, prosecutors said. It will be possible, however, for the jury to disregard the State's recommendation and return a verdict providing death.

Prosecutors charged in final arguments before the jury that the wayward son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer laid the extortion plot over which he said he killed Gorrell even before he met the slain youth.

Defense Claims.

Defense counsel cast Gorrell in the role of a vicious youth who threatened the life of the girl Kennamer loved to the point of insanity. They pictured Gorrell as a budding gangster, graduating from petty holdups to major crime, and the 19-year-old defendant as a fanatical crusader who killed in a righteous cause.

Half the fourteen lawyers fighting the sensational case will plead with the jury before balloting begins on Kennamer's fate in the locked pury-room tomorrow.

Judge Thurman Hurst's instructions to the jury allowed four verdicts: Acquittal by reason of insanity, acquittal by reason of self-defense, conviction of murder carrying punishment of death or life imprisonment, and conviction of manslaughter, with penalty of from four years to life in the penitentiary.

Case to Jury Today.

The case is expected to reach the jury about noon tomorrow. Young Kennamer listened closely, but sat expressionless, while opposing batteries of lawyers pictured him as a cold-blooded killer and a righteous but unbalanced youth shooting to save his own life.

Virginia Wilcox, beautiful 19-year-old girl who spurned his love,

Hoover Asks U. S. Return To Gold Basis

Statement Is Interpreted as Possible Bid for 1936 Race.

(Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.)

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 20.—Herbert Hoover, commenting on the United States Supreme Court's gold decision, tonight urged reestablishment of the gold standard in the United States to "restore confidence in our currency."

His plan was to restore the Nation to a gold basis just as it was before the present Administration took office. He would use the present devalued dollar, but make it exchangeable for gold by American citizens—a privilege only enjoyed now by foreigners, since the country is on a gold bullion standard, which provides for payment of gold for adjusting foreign trade balances.

The Nation's only living former President paused at Tucson long enough to make public his declaration that "apparently all members of the court agreed the Government acted unconstitutionally in repudiation of the covenant of its own bonds." He asserted the decision of the majority that "the citizen has no remedy," however, would have "long moral consequences."

Felt It His Duty.

Arriving at Chandler, Ariz., a little later, Mr. Hoover said he issued his gold statement because he felt it his duty to do so. He would not elaborate.

Members of the former President's party said he had been stopped repeatedly by newspapermen since the Supreme Court's gold decision and asked for comment. He finally decided to give out a statement and, after preparing his opinions, telegraphed them personally to headquarters of the leading agencies in New York.

Members of the party would hazard no guess as to whether the statement meant that the former President might be in receptive frame of mind if the presidential nomination were offered him by the Republican Party for the next campaign.

Asked if the statement was the result of "party conferences," members of the party said they were certain Mr. Hoover had "not attended any party conferences" and added that, so far as they knew, he did not intend to do so.

Five Reasons Listed.

Mr. Hoover's statement, listing five reasons for return to the gold standard immediately, follows in full:

"I have now had opportunity to read the Supreme Court decision. Apparently all members of the court agreed that the Government acted unconstitutionally in repudiation of the covenant on its own bonds. A majority of the members concluded that the citizen has no remedy. That will have long moral consequences. But whatever the morals or right or wrong of the devaluation may be, the face of the American people must be forward.

"The need and the opportunity now is to restore confidence in the dollar. All threat, actual or potential, of further devaluation should now be removed. To do this and to give a needed contribution to real recovery the dollar should immediately be made convertible at the present 59 cents of gold, making it payable in gold bullion—the modern method of specie payment. There is no need to wait on foreign nations before we reestablish the gold standard and restore confidence in our currency. They would be bound to follow sometime. They are far more afraid of our doing just this than they are of any American 'managed currency,' at which game they have us at a disadvantage.

Sees Employment Boon.

"There are five compelling reasons for this action:

"1. It would put more men to work out of the 12,000,000 who still remain unemployed than any other single action. Unemployment rests today largely in the capital goods or construction industries. These industries are dependent largely

F. K. Treudley Critically Hurt in Hit-Run Crash on the Avenue.

Frederick K. Treudley, 82, of 820 Connecticut avenue northwest, retired educator, was in a critical condition at Emergency Hospital last night, the victim of a hit-and-run accident in connection with which police are holding Mrs. Mary Meredith, 28, of the 800 block Varnum street northwest.

Mr. Treudley was struck down at the intersection of E street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. The automobile did not stop.

A few minutes later Alvin G. Williams, of 771 Tenth street southeast, a taxi driver, forced an automobile operated by Mrs. Meredith into the curb at Fourteenth and G streets northwest.

Mrs. Meredith was taken to the First Police Precinct Station and questioned. She denied she had been in an accident. Police, however, said one headlight of her automobile was bent almost upward at right angles and a fender dented.

Police also said Taxi-driver Williams was following the automobile which struck the aged educator and pursued it when he saw it had not stopped.

Mrs. Meredith was removed to the Woman's Bureau for detention, pending outcome of Mr. Treudley's injuries. No charge had been made last night.

Hospital physicians had not definitely diagnosed Mr. Treudley's condition, which was described as "extremely critical."

Mr. Treudley came to Washington from Ohio in 1921, when he retired after 20 years of service as professor of philosophy and physics at the University of Ohio. Prior to joining the university faculty he had been affiliated with the Youngstown (Ohio) public school system as superintendent.

'Liberal' Aid Of Davis Out In AAA Row

Tugwell Is Expected to Enter Dispute; Frank Gets RFC Post.

The liberal-conservative clash in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration brought another resignation yesterday, and others are said to be in prospect.

Victor A. Christgau, a member of the liberal faction headed by Undersecretary of Agriculture Tugwell, resigned as assistant administrator of AAA. The resignation has not been accepted and Secretary Wallace yesterday expressed the hope it would be reconsidered. However, friends of Mr. Christgau last night doubted he would withdraw his resignation and considered that, if he goes, it will be only a matter of time before others in the AAA follow.

It was only two weeks ago that the "purge" of the AAA resulted in the elimination of Jerome Frank, as legal counsel, and several of his liberal assistants.

Frank Receives RFC Post.

That development was followed yesterday by selection of Mr. Frank by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to become special counsel to its railroad division.

Mr. Christgau is a practicing farmer and former Republican cause of his farm background, his resignation is expected to create Congressman from Minnesota. Bemore of a stir in the Farm Belt than did the dropping of Mr. Frank and his associates.

Secretary Wallace declined to discuss the resignation, saying he did not care to go into "disagreements, irritaions and things of that sort." However, it was asserted in some circles that Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, had practically forced Christgau's resignation by notifying him he would no longer be a member of the AAA operating council and intimating his salary would be cut.

Tugwell Out of City.

As was the case at the time of the previous "purge," Mr. Tugwell was out of town when Christgau's resignation was announced. The Under secretary was in Chicago to deliver an address. He and Christgau are understood to have taken the same attitude toward AAA polices, especially on the control of profits of processors and distributors. It was on this issue that George N. Peek, the first AA Aadministrator, clashed with the Tugwell group. Mr. Peek then left the department.

Christgau was brought into the AAA at its start by Davis, with whom he had worked in the farm movement previously. When Davis was moved up to the post of administrator to succeed Peek, Christgau also was advanced from the chief of the commodities division to assistant administrator. He has been acting administrator on a number of occasions when Davis was out of the city.

Then his opposition to the milk control politics of Davis, and to other marketing agreements, brought strained relations between him and his chief.

Support for Christgau Seen.

That Tugwell would give his full support to Christgau, upon his return to the Capital, was generally believed. That the Undersecretary has the backing of the President has been made clear since the resignations of two weeks ago, but it still was considered doubtful that Christgau's resignation would be recalled.

Frank, in his new capacity with the RFC, will supervise loans of that organization to the railroads, and will pay special attention to railroad organizations.

Following his ousting from the AAA he planned to return to the

2-Year NRA Extension And Trust Curb Asked In Roosevelt's Message

30-Hour Week Bill Favored By House Group's 4-to-1 Vote

By Robert C. Albright.

The Black 30-hour-week bill, vigorously opposed by industry and unwelcome to the Administration, has been ordered favorably reported to the Senate Judiciary Committee by a special investigating sub-committee, it was learned last night.

The vote in favor of the bill was 4 to 1. It followed two weeks of hearings during which widely divergent views were presented by spokesmen for industry and labor. American Federation of Labor support was mustered behind the measure, but powerful consumers goods industries voiced opposition.

One lone member of the sub-committee, Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican), Vermont, voted against the bill in a sub-committee poll made by Senator Matthew M. Neely (Democrat), West Virginia, chairman.

Measure Unchanged.

No change was made in the measure as originally introduced by Senator Hugo L. Black (Democrat), of Alabama. This stipulated that no article can be transported interstate which was produced in any mine, quarry, mill, cannery, workshop, or factory employing help (other than executives), at more than five days a week or six hours a day.

Voting for the bill, which will be called up for action in the full Judiciary Committee next Monday, were Senators Neely, Pat McCarran, Nevada, and Carl A. Hatch, New Mexico, (Democrats), and George W. Norris, Nebraska (Republican). Hatch reserved the right to oppose the bill in the full committee or on the Senate floor, if he chooses to.

Senator Austin will render a minority report to the Senate, if and when the sub-committee report

Sales of Stock 'Short' in 1931 Laid to Mellon

He Also Failed to Swear to Income Tax Return, Secretary Says.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 20 (AP).—Andrew W. Mellon's confidential secretary, Howard M. Johnson, told the Board of Tax Appeals today the internationally known banker sold stock "short" while he was Secretary of the Treasury in the Hoover Cabinet in 1931 and that he failed to swear to his income tax report of the same year.

Through a full day of questioning, at the Board of Tax Appeals inquiry of Mellon's $3,000,000 income tax case, the middle-aged, bespectacled Johnson, told of transactions which the Government has challenged as a "skillful effort" to evade the income tax laws.

Some of the principal developments to come out of Johnson's testimony were:

1. That Mellon profited by $72,250 on stock he sold "short" in March, 1931, and took a loss of $68,300 on a similar transaction.

Says Mellon Not Sworn.

2. That Mellon signed his income tax report of 1931 without examining it, and without being sworn, and that later a notary's seal was affixed in the banker's Pittsburgh office.

3. That Mellon experienced a "book loss" of approximately $15,000,000 the same year—this in answer to the Government's claim he made numerous fictitious stock sales to establish deductions in income report.

4. That D. D. Shepard, Mellon's tax attorney, occupied a Government office in the U. S. Treasury Building in and before 1931, although not a Government employe.

5. That the banker's personal wealth, based on figures of December 31, 1931, was $97,603,005, includ-

Rail Detective Shot 3 Times, Is Near Death

Police Seeking Suspect in Attack at Yards in Alexandria.

Shot down in the Southern Railroad yards at Alexandria, W. M. McIntyre, 35-year-old railroad detective, of 1235 U street southeast, was in a critical condition last night at Alexandria City Hospital.

Alexandria police broadcast a lookout for Walter Davis, colored, 35, described as of light complexion and wearing dark clothes and cap. Washington police also were asked to look for him.

McIntyre was shot three times. At the hospital, where an emergency operation was performed, doctors said he had wounds in the stomach, back and arm.

Railroad officials, after a hurried investgiation said McIntyre apparently had been shot when he surprised his assailant in the act of rifling a freight car. They assumed the detective had been fired upon without warning, since his own gun had not been discharged.

McIntyre has been a detective for the railroad eight years.

Municipality Debt Act Attacked in Louisiana

New Orleans, Feb. 20 (AP).—Constitutionality of the debt readjustment act under which municipalities are permitted to go into Federal court and seek a refinancing plan was attacked today in Federal court here in an intervention filed by the State's legal counsel.

The petition was signed by Attorney General Gaston L. Porterie and two of his assistants in the Huey Long-Gov. O. K. Allen State administration. It alleged that the act passed under the emergency relief program of President Roosevelt and sponsored by the National Conference of Mayors of the United States was "unlawful and unconstitutional interference by the Congress of the United States."

'Private Price Fixing' Assailed in Attack on Monopolies.

Message Suggests Coal, Gas Control

Recovery Investigation Voted by Committee in Upper House.

By Leon Dure, jr.

After almost two years of bitter debate and ceaseless controversy, the National Industrial Recovery Act was returned to Congress by President Roosevelt yesterday with the injunction to write it, tighten up its antitrust provisions, and then make it effective for two more years.

Taking up the challenge of a White House message that accorded an unusual freedom for action, Senate and House leaders prepared to write their own bill in committee, after a series of hearings that will include an investigation of NRA's alleged oppression of small business.

While sentiment on the whole appeared favorable to the President's recommendations, it was his denunciation of "monopolies and private price-fixing within industries" that drew the most praise. Much of the debate regarding extension of the NRA will center on this question, it was clear.

Investigation Impends.

An investigation of the NRA by the Senate Finance Committee appeared assured yesterday after members of that body approved the Nye-McCarran resolution providing the inquiry. Chairman Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, explained that the charges would be considered, together with changes in the NRA law.

Undeterred by this action, however, Senator William H. King, Democratic member of the Finance Committee from Utah, went ahead with plans for a separate investigation of the NRA by his special Judiciary sub-committee. The subcommittee has retained the Darrow board counsel. Lowell Mason, and will open hearings Saturday.

In his message, President Roosevelt upheld the fundamental principles of the recovery act, declaring "to abandon them is unthinkable. It would spell the return of industrial and labor chaos."

Seven Proposals.

Specifically, he proposed:

Extension of the NIRA for two years after June 16.

Coordination of codes, simplification of procedure and a more precise definition of policy.

"Unquestioned power" for the Government to impose codes providing minimum wages, maximum hours, the abolition of child labor and certain basic standards of fair practices.

More adequate application of the antitrust laws.

Praises NRA's Work.

Recalling the early enthusiasm for the NRA, Mr. Roosevelt said that it had been "the biggest factor" in giving jobs to 4,000,000 unemployed. He pointed out that "the age-long curse of child labor" had been outlawed, along with the sweatshop, and that "a new order of industrial relations is definitely taking shape."

He asserted, further, that industry has gone forward, freed from "dishonorable competition," and that the consumer has been the victim of "less gouging in retail sales and prices than in any similar period of increasing demand and rising markets."

He had a word, too, for "carping critics and those who seek either political advantage or the right

Navy Admits Its Gift Painting Of John Paul Jones Fraudulent

Navy Department officials admitted yesterday they had been made victims of a hoax when they accepted a painting of Admiral John Paul Jones, "Father of the Navy," to hang at the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis.

The painting was presented last September, officially accepted by Navy Department officials and sent to Annapolis. It was reputed to be an original Benjamin West.

However, some one at Annapolis became skeptical and the painting never was mounted in the academy museum.

At the time of the presentation, it was reported the picture had been the gift of Alfred I. du Pont, Vincent Astor, Charles G. Hadley, George J. McClellan, John J. Hughes and Herbert C. Nelson.

One of the New York men and department officials launched an investigation which is said to have shown the painting to be spurious.

Early this week a man who gave the name of George J. Shepard was arrested here on a charge of using the mails in attempts to sell faked paintings.

Shepard allegedly has admitted using the names of Dr. F. D. Vernon and John J. Hughes. The name of John J. Hughes figured among the group reputed to have presented the Jones painting to the Navy Department.

Jane Married of Own Accord, Says Scarlett, Fighting Charges

Former Chauffeur at Cooke Home Denies Threat to Kill Girl if She Did Not Wed, as He Answers Annulment Petition.

A young lady who wanted nothing so much as "love and marriage with him" was the picture painted of Jane de Walden Cooke Scarlett, by her chauffeur husband, George Scarlett, replying in District Court yesterday to her petition for annulment.

Mrs. Scarlett, pretty, 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard de Walden Cooke, of Chevy Chase, startled Washington society last month by eloping with the family chauffeur-companion and startled it again by leaving him flat and instituting annulment proceedings shortly after the couple returned to the Capital from a hectic honeymoon in the South.

In a petition, Scarlett flatly denied his wife's charge that he coerced her into marriage with him and that he fraudulently represented himself as being able to maintain the marital establishment.

"With full knowledge of marital obligations, responsibilities and requirements," Mrs. Scarlett married her husband, Scarlett's answer stated, and added at another point that the couple decided to get married as early as January 8, but postponed the ceremony when they learned their plans would reach the newspapers.

Mrs. Scarlett then went to North Carolina with her father for a vacation, from where, according to the petition, she wrote Scarlett "daily many endearing love letters" that urged him not to give up his job with her parents and that repeated her intention of marrying him upon her return.

Protestations of "love and devotion" later were delivered in person by Mrs. Scarlett in Washington, the petition stated. According to Scarlett's plea, when he informed her that "he could not provide her with the luxuries and comforts of life to which she was accustomed," she replied she "hated money" and loved him "and would marry him

Girl, 8, Rescued From Blaze In Apartment, Dies of Burns

Policeman Burnett dashed into the building. He raced upstairs—taking three steps at a time. A faint odor of smoke guided him to a door at the end of the hallway. He turned the knob; then a smashing blow with his shoulder and the door flew open. On the floor, her clothing ablaze and sobbing in agony, was a little girl.

Policeman Burnett ripped a heavy window drape from its hangings. He grabbed the girl and at the risk of painful burns, wrapped her in the curtain. The flames were smothered.

But the daring rescue proved futile. Last night 8-year-old Marion Kunowsky died in Sibley Hospital where she had been taken six hours earlier.

Yesterday she was alone in the locked apartment, keeping watch over Catherine, her 7-month-old sister. No one knows just what happened. It is believed the youngster was playing with matches. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of accidental death.

Fresh Charges Against Farley Voiced by Long

(Associated Press.)

Senator Huey Long shouted in the Senate yesterday new stories of what he called "the corruption and slime of Farleyism" in pursuing his demand for an investigation of Postmaster General Farley.

The Louisiana Senator was seeking to bring pressure upon the Senate Postoffice Committee to act on his resolution calling for the inquiry. Chairman McKellar said off the floor later the committee would meet "in a day or two."

Long told the Senate he had letters and photostatic documents to prove that a "certain gentleman" who was appointed as a Federal district attorney in 1933 obtained $1,000 from a man under indictment for using the mails to defraud and turned it over to the Democratic national committee.

Quotes a Telegram.

The man seeking the appointment as district attorney, Long said, told the indicted man that he would "undertake to squelch his case." From Washington, the Louisianian said, the appointment-seeker sent the following telegram:

"Case continued to May 15. Must have $1,000 I wired you about Saturday. Wire it now, and I don't mean maybe."

Subsequently, Long said, Farley wrote the man under indictment saying the applicant for district attorney "handed to me today your generous check in the amount of $1,000, contribution to the national committee to assist in clearing up the deficit."

The Louisiana Senator then read an article from the St. Louis Post Dispatch which he asserted that T. J. Pendergast, Kansas City Democratic leader, intervened with Farley to get a settlement of a tax case for John E. Lazia, one of his lieutenants.

"Hides Behind McKellar."

Long said an attempt was being made to hide Farley behind Chairman McKellar of the Postoffice Committee.

"They are trying to utilize unsoiled characters and parties and have them act as the bulwark and rampart of defense behind which to hide the corruption and slime of Farleyism in these United States," he said.

Referring to a statement by Secretary of the Interior Ickes denying he had "investigated" Farley, the Louisianan said:

"It seems like the valentine season has grown up into the political sphere and there's a wooing among the Cabinet members."

30-Hour Week Bill Backed in House

is approved by the full committee, he disclosed last night.

"I am against this bill because it creates a statutory monopoly of practically all of the labor in the country," said the Senator from Vermont, one of the few Republicans reelected in the last senatorial election.

Sees Further Reductions.

"It would deprive the laboring man of freedom to sell his labor for more than the limit fixed in the bill—the amount he could earn in 30 hours. His own ambitions, and capacity for additional enterprise, apparently would not matter."

Austin said he further protested because proponents of the plan would make it a continuous program, progressively reducing the hours of labor.

Senator Black, author of the measure, who successfully marshaled a similar bill through the Senate last session but was stumped in the House, conferred at length with Senate Majority Leader Robinson late yesterday. Both declined comment.

Although Representative William P. Connery (Democrat), Massachusetts, has a 30-hour week bill of a different character pending in the House, the Labor Committee chairman apparently is waiting for the Senate to act on the Black measure before maneuvering his own proposal to the front.

Bill Died in House.

It was recalled that the Black bill passed the Senate last session by a 53 to 30 vote, but died in the House when the Labor Committee sought to amend it to provide a virtual embargo on foreign products.

The new Black bill is more sweeping than the original, provides for two-year enforcement of its provisions, and proposes a $200 penalty or three months' imprisonment for violation.

The author declares that sufficient flexibility is permitted through the proviso:

"That upon the submission of satisfactory proof of the existence of special conditions in any industry included herein, making it necessary for certain persons to be employed more than five days in any week or more than six hours in any day, the Secretary of Labor, or his duly selected representatives, may issue exemption permits with respect to such persons * * * ."

Farmer's Club Favors Retaining Game Warden

Discontinuance of the offices of the State game warden and his assistant was opposed in a resolution adopted by the Montgomery Farmers' Club at a meeting in Sandy Spring, Md. The club resolution would be determined to the best would be detrimental to the best interests of the State to neglect protection of game.

The club held a discussion on the child labor amendment with the consensus against the amendment. Following a round table discussion on farming questions, the club members adjourned to the home of Francis Miller, president, for a social meeting.

Between You and Me

By Raymond Clapper

THE Administration is showing an increasing disposition to set aside natural resource industries such as coal, oil and gas into a special category. In time they are likely to be vested with a degree of Federal guardianship not extended to ordinary business based upon replenishable raw materials.

One of the several indications pointing in this direction was the statement in the President's NRA message yesterday which said that Government supervision was needed over these resources "for the purpose of eliminating their waste and of controlling their output and stabilizing employment in them, to the end that the public will be protected and that ruinous price-cutting and inordinate profits will both be denied."

Another indication is the way Secretary of Interior Ickes, as Federal oil administrator, is champing at the bit to have oil declared a public utility. He has lost faith completely in the ability of the States to control exploitation of these irreplaceable resources. What may be the last stand of the States' rights advocates who believe the situation can be controlled by an interstate treaty was made last week when Governors or respresentatives of the nine oil-producing States attempted to join in a compact to restrict production. The result was a thinly veiled failure which left Ickes snorting more loudly than before.

* * * *

Likewise, in coal, a significant development is taking place. Senator Guffey, of Pennsylvania, has introduced a bill to declare coal a public utility. Hearings are being held on it now. Mine workers favored it, as might have been expected, since John L. Lewis is credited with having practically drafted the measure. The surprising development was that yesterday a representative coal producer, manager of the Western Pennsylvania Code Authority and spokesman of the Coal Control Association of Western Pennsylvania, said that 80 per cent of the producers of his territory, one of the biggest in the coal industry, favored the basic principle of the Guffey bill. While he did not pretend that sentiment was unanimous, he said there was a surprising amount of support behind the bill. Operators on the other side will be heard later. They already have gone on record emphatically against it.

* * * *

Even for a portion of the industry to swing around in favor of declaring coal a public utility represents a radical about-face from the feeling among producers before they began learning lessons in destructive competition at the feet of Hugh Johnson and Donald Richberg. NRA has, if nothing else, served to educate many of them to the view that in the coal industry the automatic forces of competition do not work out satisfactorily.

Just now they are going through difficulties due to a virtual breakdown of the NRA bituminous code so far as the little fellows are concerned. Small fry are chiseling like beavers, selling coal below code prices, bootlegging it as openly as a New York bell hop sold liquor in prohibition days. Violations are so numerous that enforcement is impossible. One difficulty is that there is no limit on production.

And it might be remarked that $300,000,000 will soften a good number of flint-eyed coal operators. The Guffey bill provides that the Federal Government would spend $300,000,000 in buying up coal land to create a national coal reserve. That would enable a number of owners of coal land to sell out to the Government, throw away their red ink and live again on easy street.

The Guffey bill has not had Administration indorsement, so far as is known. Mr. Roosevelt is willing to give NRA a further trial at it. But Guffey plays close to the White House. He talked over his bill with Mr. Roosevelt. It is a safe bet that he hasn't climbed out on any limb. And it is an equally good bet that before this is over he will turn out to have been an advance agent pending the day when the Administration feels that the time has come to take hold of the situation.

* * * *

The Administration has suddenly become highly deferential toward Congress. It is not sending any NRA bill to Congress, only recommendations in outline form. House and Senate committees will be allowed to write their own legislation, although if they like there will be plenty of NRA legal talent on hand to guide the hand that holds the pen.

That's the story and everybody in the Administration is sticking to it now. A few days ago one high NRA official apparently labored under the understandable delusion that the Administration would send up a finished bill all ready to be passed. In fact he was so sure of it that he was preparing to explain just what it meant as soon as the President's message was sent to Congress.

The trouble is that Senators and Representatives have begun to rebel at being placed publicly in the light of being rubber stamps. They raised the roof when they were unable to find out who in the Administration drafted the works bill for them. Then came the evolution. Morgenthau, Eccles and other fiscal officials drafted the new banking bill, but they emphasized that in sending it to Congress they were offering it only as a basis of discussion. The same was true of the economic security bill. Up to then, when the Administration sent a bill to Congress, it was an unwritten rule that it wanted the bill passed as submitted.

Now the Administration is afraid to let even a tentative draft get out. So the new NRA proposals are officially described as "an outline of recommendations." It's all right. Why should not the Administration ask for what it wants? In fact there isn't any good reason for bringing all of this up, except some might wonder why there was no text of the bill to print with the President's message.

* * * *

The House patronage committee, which has been hounding the Administration for jobs, was sent away from the White House in dismal confusion the other day. They flourished a list of Republicans holding key jobs.

President Roosevelt glanced over it and his eye fell on the name of R. Walton Moore, Undersecretary of State.

"Why he's a Virginia Democrat," said the President.

The patronage hunters were temporarily stumped.

"Must have been confused with some other Moore," one of them finally said.

Social Security Bill Changed To Fix Levies

(Associated Press.)

Significant changes which some members said might serve to offset claims of unconstitutionality were written yesterday by the House Ways and Means Committee into the unemployment insurance section of the social security bill.

The major alteration placed in the bill flat stipulations that, regardless of business conditions, the tax to supply funds for unemployment insurance should be 1 per cent for the 1936 calendar year, rising to 2 per cent in 1937, and 3 per cent in 1938.

As first drafted by the Cabinet committee, the bill would have made possible a maximum 3 per cent Federal tax on total pay rolls, the money to be kept in a trust fund. If business the first year was below 84 per cent of the 1923-1925 average, the tax would have been 1 per cent; if less than 95 per cent the second year, it would have been 2 per cent, rising automatically to 3 per cent in the third year.

Witnesses before the committee had testified that such a variable levy might have harmful effects and be declared unconstitutional.

Furthermore, it was said by committee members, the bill would extend Federal aid to States which set up their own unemployment insurance systems. Therefore, it was contended the fixing of a definite instead of a variable tax would help legislatures in deciding what kind of system to adopt.

Likewise, it was added, business itself would know better what its share of the unemployment insurance cost would be.

Murfin Named As Commander Of Asiatic Fleet

Will Receive Ranking of Admiral; Other Changes Made by Swanson.

The assignment of Rear Admiral Orin G. Murfin as commander in chief of the Asiatic Fleet was announced yesterday by Secretary of the Navy Swanson. Admiral Murfin formerly was on duty here as judge advocate of the Navy.

At the present time Admiral Murfin is serving as president of the naval board of inquiry investigating the circumstances surrounding the crash of the Macon. His transfer to the Asiatic Fleet is effective "sometime this summer," according to naval officials. At that time he will assume the grade of admiral, relieving Admiral Frank B. Upham, present ranking officer of the Asiatic Fleet.

Other Changes Made.

At the same time, Secretary Swanson announced a half-dozen other changes involving admirals.

Vice Admiral Harris Laning will relieve Admiral F. H. Brumby, commander of the Battle Force, becoming an admiral upon assuming command. Admiral Brumby will revert to his permanent rank of rear admiral.

Rear Admiral A. J. Hepburn will relieve Vice Admiral E. H. Campbell as commander of the Scouting Force. Admiral Hepburn becomes a vice admiral, while Admiral Campbell reverts to rear admiral.

Rear Admiral Hepburn, commanding destroyers of the Battle Force, will be relieved by Rear Admiral C. H. Woodward. Rear Admiral A. E. Watson, commanding destroyers of the Scouting Force, will be relieved by Rear Admiral Sinclair Gannon.

Rear Admiral W. T. Cluverius, commander of the Base Force, will take over the assignment of Rear Admiral G. T. Pettingill.

Craven Is Relieved.

Vice Admiral T. T. Craven, commanding Battleship Divisions, will be relieved by Rear Admiral W. T. Leahy, present chief of the Bureau of Navigation. Admiral Leahy will become a vice admiral, while Admiral Craven reverts to rear admiral.

Secretary Swanson said he had recommended to President Roosevelt the appointment of Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews, fleet chief of staff, as chief of navigation.

Substitute Tax Plans Offered

Prince Georges Club Asks Poll Levy in Place of Sales Proposal.

Three forms of taxation have been suggested by the Prince Georges County Exchange Club as a substitution for the proposed county sales tax. The recommendations were made at its monthly meeting at the Beaver Dam Country Club.

A poll tax, or per capita tax, it was pointed out, should be introduced, with a tax on property heretofore exempt, such as churches and schools, and a nuisance tax. The nuisance tax would cover lotteries and other nonessentials.

While the club also went on record as advocating a retrenchment in the cost of operating the Maryland State Government, it also vigorously opposed any cuts in the University of Maryland appropriations. It was declared any reduction of facilities would be detrimental to the State.

Discussion of the State budget took place after Dr. William B. Spire, head of a special committee on taxation, returned his findings His committee recommended the sales tax substitutions.

Disease Perils Maryland Elms

Maryland elm trees are doomed to oblivion if the deadly Dutch elm disease is not eradicated within the next two years, C. E. Temple, pathologist for the University of Maryland Extension Service, told the Maryland Nurserymen's convention yesterday.

He likened the death of the elms to the total destruction of the State's chestnut trees. The chestnut trees were destroyed a few years ago by a sudden blight.

Mr. Temple said the elm disease has spread rapidly since its introduction into this country in 1930. Nine Eastern States have reported nearly 8,000 infected trees, most of which were within 40 miles of New York City. The disease has also been found in northern Massachusetts, Indiana and Virginia.

It was first discovered in Maryland in 1933 on an elm tree at Fort McHenry and was definitely traced to a shipment of diseased logs that came into Baltimore harbor. Since that date every effort has been made to stop any further spread of the disease in this State, he said.

Other speakers at the closing sessions of the two-day conference were R. W. Curtis, of Cornell University; John Surtees, of the Outpost Nurseries, Ridgefield, Conn., and W. C. Tuthill, of New York City.

Dirigible Unfit For Naval Use, Swanson Holds

Declares He Will Oppose Plans to Build More; Calls for Survey.

Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson wants no more dirigibles for the Navy, he told reporters yesterday. He added he would oppose plans to build any more of the craft for the Navy.

"If Congress compels us to construct them, we will construct them," the Secretary said, but he made it clear that he anticipated no further pressure from Congress for such building.

At the same time, he announced that he had requested the Science Advisory Board, through a letter to its chairman, Karl T. Compton, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to make a complete study of dirigibles from both the commercial and the military aspects.

In his letter, Swanson added that he personally believed the usefulness of the lighter-than-air craft for naval purposes was entirely incidental to the commercial use.

The letter asked the board, "under authority of an executive order of the President to appoint a suitable committee to review and analyze the past and present situation as to the design and construction of dirigibles, and to make recommendations."

Swanson's opposition to further building of dirigibles brought swift reaction from Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, World War aviation ace, who is now general manager of Eastern Air Lines. Rickenbacker, in New York, said such opposition would be a "serious error," according to the Associated Press.

"It is only through failure or mistakes that we can learn or perfect," Rickenbacker added. "Germany continues to build and fly better and more successful dirigibles as the years go on, which should be ample evidence that they have merit.

"My opinion is that the dirigible is worth more in war time than in peace time as a reconnaissance ship in advance of the Navy—the eyes of the Navy, so to speak."

Woman Warden Yields As State Opens Probe

Granite, Okla., Feb. 20 (AP).—Mrs. George A. Waters tonight surrendered the wardenry of the strife-torn State Reformatory to Sheriff Fred Hunt without a struggle, expressing confidence a "fair investigation" would vindicate her eight-year administration. Sheriff Hunt, 30, of Tishimingo, arrived today to inspect the institution. Charges of mismanagement and cruelty during Mrs. Waters' regime, already under inquiry twice, were taken up by a Senate sub-committee as officers throughout the Southwest pressed a hunt for 17 youths who killed a guard and escaped Sunday.

NRA Clerk Is Named In Assault Warrant

D. B. Alleman, described as senior clerk in the foodstuffs division of NRA, was named yesterday in a Polce Court warrant charging assault on an elevator boy in a downtown office building.

Witnesses who appeared before Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart said Alleman, became enraged when carried past his floor in the Barr Building, attacked Herbert Bethea, colored elevator operator.

The warrant had not been served last night.

SEC Approves Addition of 8 To N. Y. Board

Stock Exchange to Place Office Partners on Governing Committee.

The Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday announced acceptance of a proposal of the New York Stock Exchange to add to its governing committee eight members selected from office partners of members of the "big board."

The commission held that the exchange's proposal satisfied its second recommendation in a report to Congress on reorganization of stock exchanges. This recommendation provided that "office partners of registered firms should be eligible for membership on the governing committee."

The SEC and New York exchange officials are still discussing the remaining ten recommendations the commission made in a report to Congress some time ago. These provided for abolition of the nominating-committee method of selecting officers and more general representation of security traders in direct touch with the public. They also provided for a more adequate hearing of investors' grievances.

In an amendment to its rules governing registration of stocks listed on exchanges, the SEC provided that in the case of issuers whose methods of accounting are prescribed under the provisions of a statute of the Federal Government, such requirements shall supersede the regulations of the SEC in respect to the same subject matter.

The commission also ruled that public carriers may satisfy its requirements by filing duplicate copies of documents which also are required to be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission without the necessity of being certified by independent auditors or accountants, if the latter is not required by the Commerce Commission.

The SEC scheduled a hearing for March 12 on the application of the trustees in bankruptcy of Follansbee Brothers Co. for withdrawal from listing and temporary registration on the New York Stock Exchange of the company's common stock and for withdrawal from the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange of its preferred stock.

Insurance Firm Closes Inquiry

Report Evidence Reveals Brown Survived Wife in Crossing Wreck.

Berryville, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.). Investigators for a large insurance company reported today that their work has tended to show that the husband survived his wife when Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Brown, of Philadelphia, were instantly killed by a train at Gaylord, near here, Thanksgiving Day.

A large life insurance policy carried by Mr. Brown made it mandatory that it be proven whether he or his wife died first because of a clause in the policy providing for a primary and a contingent beneficiary, it was stated. If Mr. Brown survived his wife, the contingent beneficiary was to receive the face of the policy, whereas if Mrs. Brown had survived her husband her estate would have received the money.

The investigators for the insurance company are said to have learned from persons who reached the scene soon after the accident that Mr. Brown was seen to move a foot after he was struck by the train. Mrs. Brown, however, lay lifeless from the time of the impact.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown were killed in their automobile as they crossed the Gaylord crossing of the Norfolk & Western Railway en route to Mount Jackson, Va.

Edgar Hoover's Bureau Shows Profit for 1934

Besides chasing criminals—and catching a lot of them—the Justice Department's Federal Bureau of Investigation was cited yesterday as a big money-maker.

J. Edgar Hoover, its chief, revealed, according to the Associated Press, that during 1934 it either made in fines and recoveries, such as in bankruptcies, or saved the Government by exposing fraudulent claims, a total of $20,000,000.

Its total operating cost for the period was $2,600,000. Net profit—$17,400,000.

Maryland Legionnaires Hear Talk by McNulty

World War veterans should work in as close harmony in times of peace such as these as they did in war times, when cooperation was vital to success, John F. McNulty, commander of the Maryland Department of the American Legion, declared at the annual Southern Maryland Legion meeting in the Silver Spring Armory.

More than 200 legionnaires from Southern Maryland attended the meeting at which the Cissel-Saxon Post of Silver Spring was host. Other speakers included Representative Leo A. Allen, of Illinois; Walter Biegle, State adjutant; Lawrence R. Smoot, vice commander of the Southern Maryland district, and Bryan Hobbs, State membership chairman.

Traffic Toll at 13 As Another Dies

Police Hunt Hit-and-Run Driver Injuring Boy, 6.

Traffic deaths since January 1 reached 13 yesterday when Louis A. Burke, 37, of 701 Fourth street northwest, died in Casualty Hospital.

Burke's automobile crashed into a steel viaduct support at First and K streets northeast Monday. He was hurled clear of his wrecked car and suffered a fractured skull.

Meanwhile, police are searching for a hit-and-run driver who injured Pierce Marks, 6, of 1480 Chapin street northwest, yesterday. The child was playing in front of his home and apparently ran into the street, police said.

Ex-Millionaire Is Missing, U. S. Joins in Hunt

Newton, Mass., Feb. 20 (AP). Moses H. Gulesian, 71-year-old former millionaire, was missing tonight under mysterious circumstances.

The Department of Justice joined a search for the erstwhile Armenian immigrant boy who frequently had been threatened, but failed to produce a single clew.

Gulesian dropped out of sight last night after attending a dinner at the University Club of Boston given by the Sons of the American Revolution, of which he was an honorary member. His parked automobile was found nearby.

Wife Suggests Amnesia.

At his palatial Chestnut Hill home, where he recently was reported to be living on less than $10 a week, his wife, the former Grace Warner, concert pianist and composer, suggested two possible theories. She thought it possible that recent worries, caused by financial reverses which followed the collapse of his fortune gained as a real estate dealer, had brought on amnesia.

As an alternative she suggested he might have gone to New York to view a motion picture to see whether the plot of a play they once wrote, "Made in America," had been plagiarized.

She scouted the possibility that Gulesian could have committed suicide or been kidnaped. She expressed the belief he would return "in a few days," but did not disclose the basis of her belief.

Threatened in 1907.

Gulesian was first threatened back in 1907. In 1933 he reported to authorities he had been lured to an Albany, N. Y., hotel under the pretext of discussing a real estate deal. While there, he reported, he learned enough to believe at attempt was to be made to kidnap him. He succeeded in evading his conferees and returning home.

Shortly afterward he told police he had been threatened by a group of Armenians who he believed belonged to the band of assassins which afterward murdered Archbishop Leon Tourian, Armenian primate, in a New York church.

Since then he has carried a pistol, his wife said.

Student Arrested In Kidnap Fraud

Indianapolis, Feb. 20 (AP).—United States District Attorney Val Nolan today announced the arrest at Crawfordsville, Ind., of Allen C. Bomberger, 21-year-old graduate student at Wabash College, who in January told Chicago police he had been kidnaped.

Bomberger is charged, Nolan said, with mailing an extortion letter to his father, Lowden Bomberger, an attorney, of Hammond, Ind.

When young Bomberger reported to police in Chicago he was quoted as saying he had been forced to write a ransom note to his father demanding $50,000.

Nolan said the story had been checked by the Department of Justice and in questioning recently the student had confessed he was the author of the letter received by his father.

Sale of Stocks 'Short' in 1931 Laid to Mellon

He Also Failed to Swear to Income Tax Return, Secretary Says.

Refused to Show Books.

Toward the close of today's session, Johnson also testified that on advice of counsel he recently refused to honor Government subpenas, including one for the books of Paul Mellon, the banker's son. The witness said he refused Government investigators access to young Mellon's books a couple of weeks ago before Paul sailed from New York on his honeymoon.

Mellon, whose contention is that he not only owes nothing in delinquent taxes, but is entitled to a refund of $139,000, listened eagerly to the testimony. At times he cupped his hands to his ears and leaned forward to catch the voice of the witness. The aged financier—he will be 80 next month—has been present almost constantly since the hearing opened Monday.

Stock Sales Testimony.

The stock sales testimony was brought out soon after Johnson, for 20 years Mellon's confidant, took the stand.

He told Mellon's attorney, Frank J. Hogan, on direct examination both the two stock sales involved 2,500 shares of Westinghouse.

He said a profit was made on one deal and a loss was taken on the other. The "short" sales, Johnson said, were made in March and repurchased in April or May, the loss being "covered" by Mellon who delivered "to his broker stock from his own portfolio."

Robert H. Jackson, attorney for the Bureau of Tax Appeals, took the witness for cross-examination.

"Do I understand that Mr. Mellon was making short sales in 1931 when he was Secretary of the Treasury?" the attorney asked.

"Mr. Mellon sold through a brokerage account stock he did not have in the account, but he had in his pouch shares more than twice the amount," Johnson replied.

"He was selling stock he didn't own and covering it later?"

"Yes."

"This transaction occurred in the panic year of 1931?"

"March, 1931."

The Government attorney attached great importance on the witness' statement that "a member of the Cabinet" failed to swear to his income tax report, which Johnson had prepared. On March 14, 1932, when the report was signed, Mellon had resigned as Secretary to become Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

Johnson related the seal had been later affixed in Mellon's office "by a girl notary who had known his signature for 20 years."

"Have you made any steps since to file a valid return for 1931?" queried Jackson.

"In my opinion, this one is valid," the secretary answered.

Disclosure of Andrew W. Mellon's plans for an art gallery in Washington, necessary as part of his defense at the Pittsburg tax hearing, was disappointing to him, the United Press reported yesterday.

"I had hoped to present the gallery to the public full-blown, so to speak," one of his attorneys quoted him as saying. Frank J. Hogan, his attorney, disclosed his plans for the $19,000,000 project, however, as the hearing opened, seeking to show that Mellon owed no taxes on works of art that he purchased.

Income Tax Bill For City Studied

Measure Would Finance Jobless Insurance.

The new District income tax bill is being studied by Representative Henry Ellenbogen, new chairman of the fiscal affairs sub-committee of the House District Committee, as a means for raising revenue to pay anticipated unemployment insurance and old-age pensions, it was disclosed yesterday.

Ellenbogen said he was considering basing the District income tax system on the Federal tax returns made by Washingtonians so as to simplify collection and save on administrative costs.

At the same time Ellenbogen announced that his sub-committee will open hearings on March 5 on the unemployment insurance bill he introduced last week. The old-age pension bill, for which he announced he would be sponsor, has been held up temporarily, he said, having been turned over to Chairman Mary T. Norton of the House District Committee for study.

practice of law, but Tugwell entered a strong protest at the White House against Frank's elimination from the Government. A place for the latter then was sought in the Department of Justice, but that movement met with obstacles.

In his RFC post, his work will coincide to some extent with that of A. A. Berle, jr., one of the original "brain trusters" and now chamberlain of the City of New York. At the start of the New Deal, Berle was assigned to the RFC to study railroad loans.

May Return to Politics.

A return to politics by Christgau was seen as a probability by some of his friends, the Associated Press said last night. It was intimated that he might run against Senator Schall next year.

Meanwhile, the AAA yesterday los tits attempt to get the support of food processors for its proposed amendments to "clarify" its authority.

Contending that powers under the amendments submitted to Congress last week are "even broader than those in the amendments proposed last year," the legislative committee of the Agricultural Industries Conference prepared to oppose their passage. The newly formed committee includes representatives of cotton warehouse interests, meat packers, butter makers, ice cream manufacturers, grain millers, elevator operators, canners of farm products, textile manufacturers and others.

Child Welfare Aim Of Health Group

The Bethesda branch of the Montgomery County lay health committee yesterday took action to cooperate with the Parent-Teacher Association of the Bethesda Elementary School in two programs for better child health.

Mrs. William Nelson Morell, president of the branch, appointed Mrs. V. L. Ellicott to confer with Parent-Teacher officials about an educational program for the use of diphtheria antitoxins. She also named a committee composed of Mrs. Lew Coit, Mrs. Oliver Owen Kuhn, and Mrs. Philip Chafin to cooperate with Mrs. Frederic Lee, president of the Parent-Teacher Association, in sponsoring school physical examinations.

upon long-term capital. The people are hesitant to invest their savings and take long-term risks because there is uncertainty in what value they will be repaid.

"2. The Government's program of stimulating the capital goods and giving employment through public works can never result in 25 per cent of the jobs which can be provided by recovery of normal private capital-goods activities. The otherwise inevitable budget deficits imply either impoverishing taxation or more devaluation or inflation. A convertible gold currency now would help avoid all these by aiding to restore employment and decrease the need for relief.

"3. The devaluation which has already taken place has shown and will show in still higher costs of living. It affects every wage and salary earner. Surely a 60 per cent cost of living increase, already now in prospect, should be enough without further increase beyond that level.

"False Prosperity."

"4. One of the declared purposes of devaluation is to, in effect, write down debts by increasing prices. Surely the debtors, who include most holders of common stock and equities in real property, have secured enough if they can get a 41 per cent reduction. The creditors, who in the modern world include every holder of a life insurance policy, of a savings bank deposit, a veterans' certificate and every holder of a bond or a mortgage, deserve some consideration. It would be a boon to these if they were assured through immediate convertibility that they would not suffer any further. It would be a boon to our great endowed universities and hospitals if they knew that this is the end of their deprival.

"5. We can get in appearance a false prosperity out of inflation. There is much inflation poison in the national blood through the combined effect of the devaluation, expanded bank deposits through Government borrowing and the Federal Reserve credit policies. The fever may grow at any time. There is no real recovery on inflation medicine. If the currency were made convertible it would tend to check inflation, replace relief with real employment and contribute materially to a general recovery."

Silent on Visit East.

The statement came after the first visit Mr. Hoover has made to New York since turning over the office of President to Franklin D. Roosevelt at Washington two years ago next month.

He remained silent during his Eastern sojourn last week, attending a Republican rally on Lincoln's birthday, but making only a very brief speech chiefly in eulogy of the Civil War President, whom he admires deeply.

The former President conversed with old friends, including members of his Cabinet during the early years of the depression, but persons close to him in New York denied his conferences could be construed as "councils of war." His visit was purely nonpolitical in every way, they said, and to resume old contacts and friendships briefly while in New York on business.

Mr. Hoover, accompanied by his son, Allan, registered at a fashionable winter resort hotel at Chandler. They will remain overnight and drive to Southern California tomorrow, and then probably proceed to Palo Alto.

Statement Seen Bid For G.O.P. Leadership

(United Press.)

Former President Hoover's plea for a return to the gold standard looked to political Washington last night like a bid for consideration when the Republicans seek a presidential nominee in June, 1936.

But Republican politicians were reluctant to express that opinion publicly or, in fact, to discuss at all the unexpected statement.

New Dealists indicated they felt Mr. Hoover had enjoyed his opportunity to cope with the depression without success and, therefore, they would proceed with their monetary policies regardless of his counsel.

The former President's advice is precisely counter to White House policies. Attorney General Homer S. Cummings told the Supreme Court in his gold case argument that to freeze the paper dollar to gold now would "cripple" the United States in future international discussion of monetary stabilization.

If Mr. Hoover sought by his gold statement to resume his former position as spokesman for the Republican Party, he probably will be disappointed. Political significance naturally was accorded the surprise pronunciamento from Tucson, Ariz., but with few exceptions congressional Republicans would shy from Mr. Hoover's leadership as from the plague.

The party already is torn by dispute over leadership of the national committee. The progressive Republican bloc which broke with Mr. Hoover long before he completed his presidential term now is attempting to wrest committee control from Henry P. Fletcher, who was selected to lead the hopeless Republican campaign of 1934.

Fletcher is judged to be rather friendly to the Hoover camp but any show of cooperation between Washington committee headquarters and Palo Alto would merely aggravate the anti-Fletcher movement.

Early U. S. Action On Gold Is Unlikely

Administration legal experts will have to spend a week or more digesting the Supreme Court gold decisions before any legislative action can be discussed, President Roosevelt said yesterday.

He denied that the subject of legislation was discussed at Tuesday's meeting of the emergency council. The only reference to gold, he said, was when he congratulated Attorney General Homer S. Cummings on the Government's victory.

Hundreds Dying, President Ill As Influenza Sweeps Madrid

Madrid, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—Madrid tonight was in the grip of one of the worst influenza epidemics since the World War, with thousands ill and hundreds dying.

President Niceto Alcala Zamora and his two daughters were among those stricken, as well as Agriculture Minister Jiminez Fernandez and Communications Minister Cesar Jalon.

The President left his bed Monday for two hours to preside over a special cabinet meeting, which was brief because of his illness. He was unable to meet with the cabinet Thursday and the meeting was held on Monday instead. He attended against doctors' orders.

Bitter winter weather, followed suddenly by unseasonal spring-like temperatures over most of the peninsula, favored spread of the influenza.

The United Press checked 104 funerals up to 2 p. m. today at a single cemetery in the Spanish capital.

The epidemic spread swiftly through the provinces also and 20 per cent of the population of Zaragoza was reported affected, with lesser percentages in other cities.

The health commissioner of Zaragoza announced more than 100 persons had died of the illness during the last week.

Virginia Backs Hill Tax Plan

Asks U. S. Exempt State Liquor Store Profits From Impost.

The Virginia congressional delegation laid the groundwork yesterday for a campaign to obtain early enactment of the Hill bill providing Federal income tax exemption for profits from State liquor stores, the Associated Press reported.

For the Old Dominion alone at least $450,000 annually is involved, State officials estimated, and then other States have similar dispensaries and would be affected by the bill's provisions.

At the Virginia conference, presided over by Gov. George C. Peery, Senator Byrd and Representative Woodrum, of Roanoke, were named a committee to map out the plan of campaign.

The committee will confer with Representative Samuel B. Hill (Democrat), Washington, the bill's author, and probably also with Treasury officials who will be called upon to report on the bill's significance.

Manassas Group To Mark Founding

Past Leaders to Attend Community Fete.

Manassas, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—Past presidents of the Manassas Community League will be present at the Founders' Day program in the Manassas High School auditorium tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. A. A. Hooff, president, will preside.

High school students will present a program on the important birthdays of February, and the history of the Manassas Community League will be read.

Each of the living past presidents who are present will speak. They are: Mrs. Katie Burke, of Washington; Mrs. E. K. Evans, Mrs. W. L. Lloyd and Mrs. Charles Lynn.

D. C.-to-Gettysburg Highway Plan Favored

A bill authorizing appointment of a commission to study plans for constructing a broad boulevard connecting Lincoln Memorial in Washington and the Gettysburg battlefield was reported favorably in the Senate yesterday by the Agriculture Committee.

A report pointed out that the commission would be authorized to investigate the feasibility of the proposal and carried a report from the Agriculture Department indorsing the plan, but explaining that it has no jurisdiction. Senator Bulkley (Democrat), of Ohio, introduced a bill authorizing the District Commissioners to make special regulations for the seventieth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic in Washington in September, 1936.

Al A. Day Found Dead In His Room at Detroit

Detroit, Feb. 20 (AP).—Al A. Day, 53, former Michigan boxing commissioner, was found dead in his room today. Physicians said death apparently was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage. Day once was national amateur bantamweight boxing champion.

He was trainer of the Detroit Tigers in 1906 and was the first referee appointed when Michigan legalized boxing in 1918.

West Virginia Bill Asks Weekly Wages for All

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.). Weekly payment of wages to all workmen of West Virginia is provided in a bill introduced in the State House of Delegates which has the names of 14 delegates attached as authors of the measure.

The bill directs that exemptions from the weekly payment of salaries may be accorded to railroads and others by special agreements.

Maj. J. I. Wood, 17th Infantry, Succumbs Here

Was in District Several Weeks for Treatment of Illness.

Maj. Jared I. Wood, U. S. A., who came here several weeks ago for treatment of an illness, died in Walter Reed Hospital yesterday afternoon. He had been stationed with the Seventeenth Infantry at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Maj. Wood was born in Savannah, Ga., August 23, 1893. His first military service was with the Georgia National Guard's Troop A Cavalry on the Mexican border as a sergeant. He was an infantry captain during the World War, and won the Silver Star for bravery July 30, 1918, and the Purple Heart decoration July 31, 1918, and October 4, 1918. He became a major May 6, 1919.

Attending the infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga., he was graduated from the company officers' course in 1923 and the advanced course in 1929.

His wife, Mrs. Rachel F. Wood, now staying in Silver Spring, Md., survives. Interment in Arlington National Cemetery has been set tentatively for Saturday morning.

Isabel C. Dickerson Weds E. C. Norman

Purcellville, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.). Announcement was made here today of the wedding in Richmond Saturday of Miss Isabel Clayton Dickerson, daughter of Joseph Dickerson, of Richmond, Va., and Edward Cole Norman, son of Mrs. Rachel R. Norman, of Purcellville.

Preceding the ceremony "I Love You Truly" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" were played on the harp. The bride was given in marriage by her father. A buffet supper was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Norman left for Miami. They will be at home at Longmoor, north of Purcellville, after March 1.

The bride, a graduate of Westhampton College, has taught for several years in John Marshall High School, Richmond. Mr. Norman, who attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute, is employed by the Loudoun National Bank.

Services for Mrs. Moore To Be Held in Memphis

The body of Mrs. Sarah Meriwether Moore, 25-year-old wife of David C. Moore, Internal Revenue executive, of 309 West Bradley lane, Chevy Chase, Md., was taken to Memphis, Tenn., last night. Mrs. Moore was found dead in her gas-filled kitchen, a farewell note beside her, Tuesday morning.

Services will be held in Memphis, where Mrs. Moore was born. Burial will be in New Memorial Cemetery.

Would Add $60,000 to Public Service Units' Appropriation.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—A plan to increase the public service commission's appropriation $60,000 a year to enable it to carry on its intensive investigation of utilities rates was approved by the Legislature and sent to the Governor today for signing.

Gov. Kump is expected to approve it, as the bills providing for the increase were adopted at the request of the commission, for which the Governor had asked increased funds.

After receiving the measure from the Senate and passing it quickly, the House of Delegates in the longest session it has held also passed a resolution to submit to the people a proposed constitutional amendment to set up a fund of $10,000,000 to pay a "bonus" to men who had served their country during the World War.

The proposal is to pay ex-service men $15 per month of service, with a maximum of $300 for each man. It was proposed by Delegate Adams (Democrat), Ohio.

The increased funds for the public service commission would be provided in assessments to be levied on utilities companies by the State auditor. The bill, offered by President Hodges of the Senate, by request, reenacts a previous one by which the commission was financed, but raised the amount.

It only enables the Legislature to appropriate the money, and another measure is necessary to carry out its purpose.

Page to Seek Seat In Virginia Senate

Norfolk Delegate to Run for Eggleston's Post.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—Vivian L. Page, a member of the House of Delegates from this city since 1923, today announced he would be a candidate for the State Senate, subject to the Democratic primary in August, to fill the vacancy caused by the appointment of State Senator John W. Eggleston to the Virginia State Supreme Court of Appeals.

Senator Eggleston was appointed this morning, and it had been expected, if the fight to put him on the bench went through, that one or more members of the House of Delegates might be in the field to succeed him.

Mr. Page announced no platform, but said he would stand on his record for public service in the House of Delegates.

Fess Talk to Climax Program Of Massanutten Cadet Corps

Underwood & Underwood.
SIMEON D. FESS.

Woodstock, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—Former Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, will address the cadet corps of Massanutten Military Academy here Sunday morning as the climax of its midyear festivities, which begin tomorrow night.

Fess, who is a former chairman of the Republican national committee, is expected to speak on national problems.

The annual intersociety debates between teams of the Jefferson and Poe literary societies will be held tomorrow night.

Saturday afternoon the Massanutten swimming team will meet the tankmen of Central High School, Washington.

The military ball will be held in Virginia Lee Harrison memorial gymnasium Saturday night, when Col. H. J. Benchoff and the Massanutten staff will have as guests a number of the military professors from the several preparatory schols of the Shenandoah Valley, as well as some of the officials of the War Department in Washington. The colors of a half dozen military preparatory schools will be presented in honor of the guests.

if he were willing, even if he did not have a dime, and that she would stick to him if she only had one dress to her back."

Scarlett, in his petition, said that he was not in a position to deny or affirm that his wife was reared in an atmosphere of refinement, as stated in her plea, "for the obvious reason that such an allegation calls for his personal opinion."

Scarlett charged that Mrs. Scarlett "well knew" that he "was not a person of great wealth," and that she told him "all she wanted in the world was love and marriage with him." At another point, the answer stated that Mrs. Scarlett said she would do "anything in the world to prove her love for him" and added that she "never said 'no'" when their plans were discussed.

Scarlett denied Mrs. Scarlett's allegation that he threatened to kill her if she refused to marry him, and stated that she "entered matrimony with her eyes open and her mind made up."

The answer said that Mrs. Scarlett requested him to invite her sister, Anne L. Cooke, to accompany them on their honeymoon, "much to the defendant's regret and annoyance," and that the bride "sought and obtained the aid of her sister and their aunt, Mrs. John J. Madigan, in planning her marriage."

Waiting until theft charges, brought against Scarlett by his mother-in-law, had been dropped a few days after the couple returned to Washington, Mrs. Scarlett left her husband and early this week sued for annulment.

Coal as Utility Seen Favored By President

Guffey Bill's Supporters Now View Roosevelt as Possible Ally.

(Associated Press.)

Supporters of legislation to give the Nation's soft coal industry a public utility status pointed to President Roosevelt yesterday as a possible ally.

A portion of the Chief Executive's NRA message to Congress, in which he asserted the people of the United States "need Government supervision" of certain natural resources, such as coal, oil and gas, was read into the record of a Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee hearing on the Guffey coal bill by Charles F. Hosford, jr., of Pittsburgh. Hosford spoke for the Coal Control Association of Western Pennsylvania.

"Clearly, Mr. Chairman," he said, "the President recognizes the problems before the bituminous coal industry."

Commission Provided.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America and an ardent supporter of the bill, said the President's statement "lays the ghost of the fears of many people that he is opposed to this legislation."

The measure, introduced by Senator Guffey (Democrat), Pennsylvania, would create a national coal commission within the Interior Department empowered to fix prices and allocate production. It also provides for creation of a national coal reserve through retirement of "marginal" coal lands from production.

"Without such a plan," he asserted, "all plans and provisions of the rest of the bill will not serve to end the difficulties in the industry."

Proposals Rejected.

Retirement of the "marginal" lands would be achieved by purchase or condemnation proceedings and the bill would authorize a $300,000,000 Federal bond issue to finance the purchases and rehabilitation of miners thrown out of work by the program.

Meanwhile, operating bituminous coal operators flatly rejected demands by the United Mine Workers for increased wages and a 30-hour week under new wage and hour contracts to replace those expiring April 1.

Minor Convicted Of Felony Retains Rights of Citizen

Baltimore, Feb. 20 (AP).—Herbert R. O'Conor, attorney general, has ruled that a person convicted of a felony before reaching the age of 21 does not lose his right to vote in Maryland. Nor does he lose any other rights of citizenship after release.

The decision, disclosed today by Gaylor Lee Clark, parole commissioner, was in regard to a Negro who, at the age of 16, was sentenced to three years in prison for manslaughter. He was paroled.

Recently the Negro applied for a Federal job, but was notified that he "must show a pardon or satisfactory proof that no pardon is needed" before he could be employed in Government service. He applied to Clark for a "restoration of citizenship." The parole commissioner referred the case to O'Conor.

"Persons convicted of infamous crimes do not lose their citizenship, but may lose the right to vote if 21 years of age or over at the time of the commission of the crime," the attorney general stated. "Since this man was under 21, he has not lost his right to vote."

Ex-Slave, Woman Dies; Claimed Age of 116

again to indulge in unfair practices." He reminded these that the approximately 600 codes have been in effect an average of only 11 months—"a brief period, indeed, for the definite achievements already made."

Much of the President's message had been anticipated, but on several points he proposed new action.

Coal, Gas Control Urged.

Government regulation of the oil industry was provided in the original recovery act, but it was his first mention of coal and gas in the sense of public utilities. He recommended they be supervised to eliminate waste, control output, and stabilize employment, in order that ruinous price cutting and inordinate profits will both be denied."

Questioned in his press conference, the President asserted it was difficult to say whether he regarded these "natural resources" as public utilities. He remarked that the original public utility was a ferry that plied the Thames River, and that since then the concept has been widened in every direction.

In explanation of his request for improving enforcement, Mr. Roosevelt said that some quick method was needed to intercept the action of "chiselers" before it was too late. Later in the day, Donald R. Richberg, the NRA policy chief, said this might be done by use of the injunction or by "cease and desist" orders of the Federal Trade Commission.

Concerning collective bargaining, the President gave no inkling whether he favored reenactment of the present section 7 (a) or a rewriting to make it more clear. Mr. Richberg gave the "personal opinion" that no clarication is needed, but Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), of New York, served notice that he would introduce his stringent labor disputes bill today. The measure is expected to follow the outlines of the Wagner bill last year, which outlawed company-dominated unions.

"No Private Monopoly."

In a pithy paragraph devoted to price fixing, Mr. Roosevelt used the quotation, "No monopoly should be private"—an observation which President Woodrow Wilson made in much the same language in addressing Congress on June 20, 1914.

He did not entirely close the door to price fixing, however, it was noted. This was brought out when Mr. Richberg, swinging his legs from a table in a smoke-filled room at the NRA, defended with vigor the use of devices to curb price cutting.

"It is up to Congress to decide whether it is price fixing to prevent price cutting, which is the chief agent of monopoly," he declared.

Mr. Richberg said it had been agreed that various material prepared by the NRA, the trade commission, the AAA, the oil administration, the Labor Department, the Federal Alcohol Control Administration, and the Department of Justice—all involved in the NIRA—would be supplied the committees of Congress which will consider the NRA.

The President's message was referred to the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee, the same groups that handled NIRA in the beginning, Mr. Richberg explained. He added that no bill was prepared by the Administration as has been customary, since in this case it was thought better for Congress "to come to grips with the exact problems."

Senator Harrison, whose White House leanings appeared to assure the NRA of a sympathetic hearing, issued a statement meantime expanding on the President's outline of principles. He declared that the jurisdiction of the NRA should be confined to industries and trades in interstate commerce, and added:

"This suggestion will exclude those local trades and service industries which should be left to local government so far as any regulation is necessary."

"A Soviet Vulture."

Attacks on the NRA, however, broke out on the other side of the Capitol. Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., New York Republican, referred to the Blue Eagle as a "Soviet vulture."

"I challenge the statement by the President that the NRA has put 4,000,000 men back to work," he said. "The NRA has all but strangled the small business man. The NRA is backed by force, coercion and spies."

At the same time Francis J. Gorman, who led the United Textile Workers in their spectacular strike last September, told a House Labor Committee that labor has lost faith in the NRA. Leaders are wondering, he said, whether they made a mistake in calling off the textile strike.

Text of Message on NRA

The text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress on the NRA follows:

To the Congress of the United States:

On May 17, 1933, I asked the Congress to "provide for the machinery necessary for a great cooperative movement throughout all industry in order to obtain wide reemployment, to shorten the working week, to pay a decent wage for the shorter week and to prevent unfair competition and disastrous overproduction."

The national industrial recovery act was passed by the Congress in June, 1933, and the administrative machinery to carry it into effect was set up during the succeeding month.

It is worth remembering that the purpose of this law challenged the imagination of the American people and received their overwhelming support.

Enforcement during the earlier life of the act was not a problem which gave the country concern—for the very good reason that public opinion served as an enforcing agency which potential violators did not dare to oppose.

Immediate Objective Met.

The immediate objective was to check the downward spiral of the great depression and it met this objective and started us on our forward path.

It is now clear that in the spring and summer of 1933 many estimates of unemployment in the United States were far too low and we are therefore apt to forget today that the national industrial recovery act was the biggest factor in giving reemployment to approximately 4,000,000 people.

In our progress under the act the age-long curse of child labor has been lifted, the sweatshop outlawed, millions of wage earners have been released from the starvation wages and excessive hours of labor.

Under it a great advance has been made in the opportunities and assurances of collective bargaining between employers and employes. Under it the pattern of a new order of industrial relations is definitely taking shape.

Industry as a whole has also made gains. It has been freed, in part at least, from dishonorable competition brought about not only by overworking and underpaying labor but by destructive business practices.

New Safeguards Developed.

We have begun to develop new safeguards for small enterprises, and, most important of all, business itself recognizes more clearly than at any previous time in our history the advantages and the obligations of cooperation and self-discipline, and the patriotic need of unsound financing and unfair practices of all kinds.

Hand in hand with the improving of labor conditions and of industrial practices we have given representation and consideration to the problems of the consuming public.

And it is reasonable to state that with certain inevitable exceptions in the case of individual products there has been less gouging in retail sales and prices than in any similar period of increasing demand and rising markets.

The first codes went into effect in July, 1933. Since then approximately 600 have been added. The average age of these codes of fair competition which have been approved—90 per cent of the coverable employments were under code—is less than 11 months—a brief time indeed for the definite achievements already made. Only carping critics and those who seek either political advantage or the right again to indulge in unfair practices or exploitation of labor or consumers deliberately seek to quarrel over the obvious fact that a great code of law, of order and of decent business can not be created in a day or a year.

Procedure Must Be Simplified.

We must rightly move to correct some things done or left undone. We must work out the coordination of every code with every other code. We must simplify procedure. We must continue to obtain current information as to the working out of code processes.

We must constantly improve a personnel which, of necessity, was hastily assembled, but has given loyal and unselfish service to the Government of the country. We must check and clarify such provisions in the various codes as are puzzling to those operating under them. We must make more and more definite the responsibilities of all of the parties concerned.

This act, which met in its principles with such universal public approval and under which such great general gains have been made, will terminate on June 16 next.

The fundamental purposes and principles of the act are sound. To abandon them is unthinkable. It would spell the return of industrial and labor chaos.

I therefore recommend to the Congress that the national industrial recovery act be extended for a period of two years.

I recommend that the policy and standards for the administration of the act should be further defined in order to clarify the legislative purpose and to guide the execution of the law, thus profiting by what we have already learned.

Voluntary submission of codes should be encouraged, but at the same time, if an industry fails voluntarily to agree within itself, unquestioned power must rest in the Government to establish in any event certain minimum standards of fair competition in commercial practices, and, especially, adequate standards in labor relations.

For example, child labor must not be allowed to return; the fixing of minimum wages and maximum hours is practical and necessary.

The rights of employes freely to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining should be fully protected.

The fundamental principles of the antitrust laws should be more adequately applied. Monopolies and private price fixing within industries must not be allowed nor condoned. "No monopoly should be private."

But I submit that in the case of certain natural resources, such as coal, oil and gas, the people of the United States need Government supervision over these resources devised for the purpose of eliminating their waste and of controlling their output and stabilizing employment in them, to the end that the public will be protected and that ruinous price-cuting and inordinate profits will both be denied.

We must continue to recognize that incorrigible minorities within an industry, or in the whole field of trade and industry, should not be allowed to write the rules of unfair play and compel all others to compete upon their low level.

Small Enterprises.

We must make certain that the privilege of cooperating to prevent unfair competition will not be transformed into a license to strangle fair competition under the apparent sanction of the law. Small enterprises especially should be given added protection against discrimination and oppression.

In the development of this legislation I call your attention to the obvious fact that the way to enforce laws, codes and regulations relating to industrial practices is not to seek to put people in jail.

We need other and more effective means for the immediate stopping of practices by any individual or by any corporation which are contrary to these principles.

Detailed recommendations along the lines which I have indicated have been made to me by various departments and agencies charged with the execution of the present law.

These are available for the consideration of the Congress and, although not furnishing anything like a precise and finished draft of legislation, they may be helpful to you in your deliberations.

Let me urge upon the Congress the necessity for an extension of the present act.

The progress we have been able to make has shown us the vast scope of the problems in our industrial life.

We need a certain degree of flexibility and of specialized treatment, for our knowledge of the processes and the necessities of this life are still incomplete.

By your action you will sustain and hasten the process of industrial recovery which we are now experiencing; you will lighten the burdens of unemployment and economic insecurity.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.
The White House,

Gaylor Will Manage Reemployment Aid

Laurel Man to Head Office in Southern Maryland.

Claude Gaylor, of Laurel, Md., has been appointed permanent manager of the southern Maryland office of the National Reemployment Service, it was announced yesterday at Hyattsville.

Mr. Gaylor has been serving as acting manager since the recent death of T. J. Camfield, of Mount Rainier. Mr. Camfield died suddenly of a heart ailment.

It was also announced at the Hyattsville office that as a result of the recent reregistration of unemployed in Charles County there were 169 persons put back on the books, in addition to 161 new registrations.

A general reregistration of the unemployed in Prince Georges County will take place within a short while. The object of these changes, it was pointed out, is to get the names on the new forms, which furnish additional information about the applicant.

Battle Spreads on Capitol Hill Against Income Tax Publicity

Representative Gifford (Republican), of Massachusetts, and Bacon (Republican), of New York, assailed the practice on the House floor while Raymond Pitcairn, national chairman of the Sentinels of the Republic, demanded suppression of the information as he presented a petition to Speaker Byrns.

Chairman Doughton, House Ways and Means Committee, announced he would submit to the Treasury with a request for recommendations a bill advanced by Bacon which would insure secrecy for persons of large and small incomes alike and would repeal a law requiring all returns to be accompanied by a pink slip supplying the amount of total income.

Byrns told Pitcairn he was "sympathetic" toward preventing "that kind of publicity."

"Income-tax payers," Pitcairn told the Speaker, "large and small, of every kind, are back of this petition.

"Not only income-tax payers will be harmed when lists are published the gossips will say, 'poor Dr. Smith, he's not on the list. He used to have a good practice. He's down and out.'

"'And there's Merchant Jones. His income has fallen off and his creditors will close in on him.' The housewives of a neighborhood will be listed and descended upon by high-powered and racketeering salesmen. Unprotected and isolated people will be spotted by gangsters and kidnapers."

The petition itself charged:

"This inquisitorial law is moreover an outrage to the right of privacy of all income-tax paying citizens of the United States.

"The practice of no free nation requires such exposure of the private affairs of citizens to satisfy the morbid curiosity of the envious and of gossips.

"Most serious of all, citizens will be made the victims of criminal racketeers, kidnapers and underworld gangs."

Gifford charged the proposal to make public individual returns was "odious." He said the Democratic party should live up to an agreement made when the first income-tax bill was passed in 1913 by banning publication.

Shearer Seeks Right to Speak At Senate Quiz

(Associated Press.)

William B. Shearer, big-navy propagandist who was credited once with breaking up an international naval parley, sprang from his seat yesterday at a Senate committee hearing after testimony that he had threatened his former employers with "death" and scandal.

The bulky Shearer charged halfway down the aisle in the Munitions Committee room with the demand that the "full story" be put into the record.

He was told curtly by the committee to sit down and he did, but later he told newspapermen that the story of the threats was untrue.

"I have demanded to be called as a witness to tell the whole story," he said, adding that only half the tale had been heard.

Clerk Reads Report.

Shearer's name was brought into the proceedings by Senator Clark (Democrat), Missouri, a committee member, who read from a report of the investigation conducted by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee in 1930 into Shearer's activities as a representative of the shipyards at the naval limitations conference in Geneva in 1927.

Into the record of that hearing a statement by Clinton L. Bardo, then president of New York Shipbuilding Co., was introduced. It purported to tell of a conversation between himself and Shearer, at which the latter had threatened to bare a scandal against the shipyards rivaling "Teapot Dome."

During that conversation, in April of 1928, Bardo's statement said Shearer threatened to kill S. W. Wakeman, president of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co.

Cause of Anger.

To "shoot him down like any other dog in the street," was the term used. Shearer's anger, Bardo's statement related, was aroused by failure to get pay he claimed due.

Previously Clark had brought out during questioning of Homer L. Ferguson, president of the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., that Ferguson's company and possibly the Bethlehem and New York shipbuilding corporations had paid several thousand dollars to Shearer, some of it after the time of the alleged threat.

"Did you know of this conversation at the time the New York and Newport News yards were making payments to Shearer," Clark asked Ferguson.

"I heard of it later," Ferguson said.

"Why did you continue paying?" Clark pressed. "What was Shearer doing for you."

He "Doesn't Remember."

"I don't remember definitely," Ferguson said. Previously, he had testified Shearer was doing publicity work for the New York office of the company.

Shearer told newspapermen he had testified at the naval affairs hearings in 1930 that no such threat was made. He said the Hoover Administration blamed him for the breakdown of the Geneva conference.

The questioning on the Shearer incident concluded the examination of the Newport News Co. that had continued for ten days. Testimony regarding the introduction of increasing prices of cruisers was introduced. The committee laid this to collusion among the builders, but Ferguson said it was merely the knowledge among the yards that there was plenty of business, "and naturally we allowed more profit" than before.

Four More Meet Death In Yugoslavian Clashes

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Feb. 20 (AP). At least four more men were killed in political clashes in Yugoslavia today, bringing the last two days' known casualties to 13 dead and 13 wounded.

The clashes occurred between police and peasants who recently have grown bolder because of the relaxation of the dictatorial regime of the assassinated King Alexander.

Paris Protests Closing Of School in Mexico

Paris, Feb. 20 (AP).—The French government today sent a note to Mexico "calling attention" to the closing of the French Catholic school at San Borja.

The note protested proposed confiscation of the property, which is owned by the Christian Brothers. An action to take over the property was reported in Paris to have been instituted by the Mexican ministry of finance.

Daniels and Mexicans Welcome Mrs. Morrow

Mexico, D. F., Feb. 20 (AP).—Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, widow of the former United States Ambassador and Senator, came to the Mexican capital today by train. She received a warm welcome at the station by Ambassador Josephus Daniels, Foreign Minister Portes Gil and a group of official representatives of Mexico.

Brighton Murder To Remain Mystery

Brighton, England, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Brighton "trunk murder No. 1" is still Britain's crime mystery No. 1.

A coroner's jury here today, after hearing star investigators of Scotland Yard and elsewhere testify they could find no clews as to the identity of the woman whose torso was found last June in a trunk at the railway station here, returned an open verdict, thus writing an official "finis" to the case.

The investigators, among them Britain's most noted criminal pathologist, Sir Bernard Spilsbury, told the jury they could not determine how, when or in what manner the woman met her death.

"Brighton trunk crime No. 2" was discovered a month after the first. The dismembered body of another woman was found in a rooming house in Brighton. That body was determined to be that of Violet Kaye, a vaudeville actress. Tony Mancini was indicted for the murder, but was acquitted by a jury. That crime, too, is "open."

Powers Await Reich Attitude In Arms Curb

Geneva, Feb. 20 (AP).—A disposition on the part of several European powers, especially England and Italy, to play for time in considering the problem of the arms traffic until Germany's stand is defined was evidenced here today.

Delegates to the meetings of the disarmament conference committee considering an American plan to publicize arms manufacture apparently were awaiting the Reich's reaction to the Anglo-French proposals that she return to the League of Nations and the disarmament conference.

As Hugh Wilson, United States Minister to Switzerland and disarmament expert, fought vigorously for preservation of the essentials of the American plan, the Italian delegate remarked that the Briand-Kellogg pact outlawed war, "yet defensive war still remains possible."

Wilson's statement that the United States advocates the same supervision of private manufacture of arms as of State production was made in response to criticism by M. Ventzoff, the Soviet representative, that the American proposal for an arms convention imposes less stringent restrictions on private munitions plants.

The American said the United States is ready to meet Russia's views on this question by equalizing control and publicity in both instances. He asserted that the world demands prompt action on the arms control problem.

"We want to keep track of a cannon from its birth to maturity," he said. "We believe arms can be controlled like narcotics and drugs."

France once more squarely backed the essentials of the American draft. Louis Aubert, French delegate, contended, however, the United States' proposals failed to go far enough on some points and should provide for publicity for governmental subsidies to private arms plants.

Union of South Africa Lists Treasury Surplus

Cape Town, Union of South Africa, Feb. 20 (AP).—A surplus of $11,265,000 for the current financial year was announced by N. C. Havenga, minister of finance, when he presented the budget to the House of Assembly today. The surplus was mainly due to the revenue from the export tax on gold.

The original estimate of reveune was $173,140,000, the revised figure being $190,265,000. Expenditure, originally estimated at $169,940,000, was revised upward to $179,000,000.

Fossil of a Man 15 Inches Tall Traces a Pygmy Race to India

Vadnagar, Baroda, India, Feb. 20 (AP).—Discovery of fossil remains, apparently those of a human being only 15 inches tall, and a diminutive cow, only 3 inches taller, led to the belief today that perhaps a race of pygmies once dwelt in India.

Should the find be authenticated, it was considered likely the discovery would have some effect on the current theories regarding the early dwelling place of the human race.

Investigators expressed the opinion a new field had been opened for study of a long extinct race of small men, much more diminutive than the Obongo, Akka and Batwa tribes of pygmies in Central Africa. They measure between 4 and 5 feet.

Sir Grafton Elliot Smith, English anthropologist, said in London when informed of the Baroda finds that if all of the reports were true the pygmies would be the smallest race of people ever known.

He declared, however, that a long check would be necessary, saying, "I do not recall ever hearing of a man as tiny as this. The smallest people I know of are the Akkas of Central Africa, who still exist.

"Pygmy cows, however, are not uncommon. I have seen some preserved at Trinity College, Dublin, which are bigger. They were freak cows born a long time ago. Another reason why the reports from India must be checked is that the find may be that of a dwarf."

In the Iliad, the poet Homer used th word pygmy to describe a race of tiny folk dwelling in a far-off southern land. Aristotle believed in their existence, and said they inhabited the marshlands of upper Egypt toward the source of the Nile.

Pliny mentioned the small men in both Asia and Africa, and Ctesias, a century after Herodotus, wrote of the pygmies on the African desert, described a race of the small men i the heart of India and said they were black and ugly. They were only two "pygmai" in height, a pygmai bei g the distance between the normal elbows and knuckles.

Queen Mary Pleased to Find U. S. Buyers at British Fair

London, Feb. 20 (AP).—Queen Mary, whose "shopping spree" at the British Industries Fair today resulted in replenishment of King George's supply of underclothing, was pleased to find American buyers at the fair.

A woman buyer for an American string of chain stores was introduced to Britain's royal first lady.

"I am very glad to see you over here at this fair," Queen Mary said.

Afterward the Queen, with the Duke of York, toured the textile division of the fair. A shirt display attracted her, and she immediately noticed one of black cloth.

She turned to Lord Derby, it was reported, and said:

"Something for Moseley, I see."

(Sir Oswald Moseley heads the British Fascist movement. As is the case with Benito Mussolini's men, his followers wear black shirts.)

The Queen, who walked 6 miles yesterday and bought among other things 24 handbags, spent 2½ hours in steady shopping today.

In addition to the several samples of "woolies" she ordered sent to Buckingham Palace for King George's inspection—"I think the King will like them," she told the shopkeeper, smilingly—Queen Mary purchased an India carpet of a new dull red with a blue floral design for the palace. She paid 100 guineas (about $500) for it.

That time, however, they did not go out on approval.

Supplies of War Will Be Ample, Italy Promises

4,000 Troops on Way, Many More Ready to Sail for Africa.

Rome, Feb. 20 (AP).—Italy's supreme defense council tonight promised the nation the wells of war supplies will not run dry as 4,000 Italian troops steamed across the Mediterranean to Africa in consequence of Italo-Ethiopian tension.

Many times 4,000 soldiers are ready to embark at Naples and Sicilian ports.

Gen. Italo Balbo, former air minister and now Governor of Libya in Africa, and Undersecretary of War Baistrocchi, attended the sessions of the council, over which Benito Mussolini himself presided.

The Fascist government has liberated the nation from "the bondage of war" and any future campaign can be fought in the knowledge that war supplies will be adequate, the council said in its statement.

Italian newspapers, meanwhile, set up an outcry against asserted anarchy reigning among Ethiopian border tribes, declaring further incidents along the border may be expected at any time.

(The Italian papers carried their reports in the form of dispatches from London, but cables from the British capital said no reports of "anarchy" along the Ethiopian frontier had been received there.)

A government spokesman said tonight Italy had replied to the last communication from the Ethiopian government, accepting some of the conditions laid down by Addis Ababa for establishment of the proposed neutral zone along the frontier between Ethiopia and Italy's African colonies. Other conditions were rejected, the spokesman said, and Italy now awaits reply to its latest message.

BritishDemand Reich Accept Air Pact Fully

Cabinet Reveals Views After Discussion of Hitler's Note.

London, Feb. 20 (AP).—Great Britain will oppose any German effort to pull the proposed Western air alliance out of the close-knit fabric of the recent Anglo-French security proposals.

That was the British position outlined semiofficially today as the cabinet, meeting to study Adolf Hitler's reply to the London proposals, reportedly considered the advisability of sending British cabinet ministers to Berlin for conferences during March.

Despite official denials that any decision had been made to send Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, and possibly Capt. Anthony Eden, disarmament expert, to the German capital, as the Hitler government desires, it was known some government quarters strongly advocated this action.

The full Anglo-French exchange of views on Germany's reply to the proposals has not yet been completed, it was authoritatively stated.

Hitler's note, welcoming the air pact while skimming over other features of the Anglo-French plan, is good, in the British view, as far as it goes—but it does not go far enough.

They would like to see it extended to cover several parts of the plan to which it did not refer. These include:

The negotiation of an armaments convention.

Germany's inclusion in the Eastern security pact, for which French diplomacy has long been working.

Hitler Likely To Save Heads Of Male Spies

Petitions for Mercy Are Likely to Be Granted; Women Buried.

Berlin, Feb. 20 (AP).—Two more German spies doomed to death may be spared the headman's ax, it was indicated tonight.

Petitions asking clemency for the two, both men, have been presented to Adolf Hitler, it is understood, and favorable action was regarded as likely because of the sensation that greeted the beheading Monday of Benita von Falkenhayn and Renate von Natzmer, noblewomen.

A spokesman for the minister of justice, meanwhile, denied the two men, who are prisoners in the death cells of grim Pletzensee Prison from which tradition has it none emerges alive and free, had any connection with the women.

No Spy Trials Pending.

The spokesman also asserted no further trials are pending in connection with the espionage ring alleged to have been headed by Baron George von Sosnowski, of Poland, who was sentenced to life imprisonment for inducing the two women, now dead, and Fraulein Irene von Jena, likewise sentenced to life in prison, to betray Germany's military secrets.

Reports, meanwhile, that Germany was ready to exchange Sosnowski for a German spy held by Poland met little credence here.

Sosnowski "made a bad job of being caught," one Polish official said, "so we shall let him ponder how to become a good spy by languishing in jail for a while."

Woman Is Buried.

The body of Frau Von Falkenhayn was laid to rest at 9 a. m. today in Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Cemetery.

The funeral was the simplest which had long been witnessed in that aristocratic burying ground. The ceremony of burial took only 20 minutes, including the short obsequies in the cemetery's chapel. Only six members of the family and a Protestant pastor attended the rites. A few spectators watched from a distance.

The pit was dug next to the vault of the family of Baron Von Richthofen, the German World War ace aviator, who was distantly related to the spy's family.

British Order Stratosphere Plane.

London, Feb. 20 (AP).—The air ministry today authorized the construction of a high altitude airplane capable of exploring the stratosphere and of flying long distances. No further details were announced.

Doris Duke, Husband Stop at Monte Carlo

Cannes, French Riviera, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—Mr. and Mrs. James H. R. Cromwell arrived aboard the liner Conte di Savoia tonight on their world tour honeymoon from New York, and motored to Monte Carlo.

The bride, the former Doris Duke, one of the wealthiest girls in the world, disembarked clinging affectionately to her husband's arm and paused genially enough for the press and photographers. Cromwell got a word in to say they were rejoining the ship at Monte Carlo at 6 a. m. tomorrow, continuing to Italy. They plan to go to Palestine by boat, taking a plane from there on to India.

France Urged to Aid Army by Conscription

Paris, Feb. 20 (AP).—Alexandre Millerand, former premier, publicly proclaimed today the necessity of a two year army conscription against "the German menace."

"There seems no other way out," Millerand told the union of commerce and industry for social defense, adding that the low wartime birth rate had reduced the annual classes more than half, to a bare 120,000.

Film Impresario's Duel Set Tomorrow in Paris

Paris, Feb. 20 (AP).—Bertra[illegible] de Jouvenel, who believes in the "newspaperman's right to describe what he sees," announced today that he was in a "fighting mood." In consequence, his scheduled duel with Julien Duvivier, movie impresario, whom he criticized adversely in an article, appeared likely to take place at dawn Friday.

Seconds for both the principals had intended to meet at a cafe at noon today, but their conference was postponed until tomorrow.

A Growing Military Machine.

While expert justification of every item in the War Department supply bill may well be possible, its total of close to $400,000,000 will cause many to ask whether our much-vaunted devotion to peace is really as sincere as we like to think. Nor will this feeling be lessened by a close study of the explanation with which Representative Tilman Parks, for the Appropriations Committee, recommended this legislation to the House. There is not much of the spirit of the Kellogg pact in his statement that "the civilian units * * * would be called upon, and would be found willing and eager, to serve as the nucleus for the formation of such a mighty defensive and offensive military machine that our Nation would be practically invincible."

It is easy to assert, as Mr. Parks did to the House, that military preparations abroad are pushing the United States into the definitely militaristic program on which we seem to be embarking. But this argument reveals only half the picture. In other nations it is as logically affirmed that our policy gives full justification to their preparedness advocates.

The projected national defense expenditure of the United States for the next fiscal year is being pushed up well within sight of the fantastic total of a billion dollars. No other nation is spending as much on military preparations as is this country. Of course, direct budgetary comparisons fail to consider such items as the economy of a conscript army, or the unusual cost of our warships. But by the outside world such qualifications are ignored. What others see is the "mighty defensive and offensive military machine" which many Americans besides Mr. Parks envisage. Nor do they miss the word "offensive."

Either this vicious circle of militaristic preparation must be cut, or the inevitable consequences, as witnessed in Europe in 1914, will draw steadily closer. The United States is a Nation singularly fortunate in having no neighbor which it need fear, and no nation with which it must regard a quarrel as probable. If there is any country to which the world is entitled to look for leadership against the menace of war it is the United States. Our answer, without a foe in sight, is to give what Tolstoi called "the empty drum" a most reverberating thump.

Good Work Rewarded.

If the interests of consumers are inadequately protected under the code system it will not be for want of enlightened counsel from the Consumers Advisory Board. The selection of Mrs. Emily Newell Blair as chairman of this important organ of the NRA carries assurance that the pioneer work of the late Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey will be resolutely carried on. Like her predecessor, Mrs. Blair became associated with the board at its beginning. By temperament and training, as well as by practical experience, she is eminently qualified to advise the NRA from the consumers' viewpoint.

It is very difficult for an agency such as the Consumers Advisory Board to demonstrate tangible results from its efforts. Especially is this true when it is working in a field that is relatively new and in which the interests of the consumer are necessarily at variance with a price-raising policy. Nevertheless, it is highly important that the viewpoint of the consumer be kept to the fore throughout the recovery program. In this task Mrs. Blair has already manifested judgment and understanding that augur well for the continued usefulness of the Consumers Advisory Board.

America First!

Regret and concern are aroused by the spread of the present Afro-Italian war-spirit to New York's Harlem. While Italy complains because her military preparations "do not seem to have any effect upon the Ethiopians," belligerency at the northern end of Manhattan is said to be rising rapidly.

The news comes from no less an authority than Hubert Fauntleroy Julian, colonel in the Abyssinian Air Force. He says he is assembling aerial combat-material with a view to taking it to Addis Ababa, and he announces that a great number of his fellow Harlemites have already declared a boycott against Italian ice-cream men, fruit-sellers and spaghetti restaurants.

This is unworthy of the best Harlem traditions. Col. Julian may owe a duty to the Emperor Haile Selassie, but the colonel's neighbors are, for the most part, citizens of the United States, a country still on friendly terms with both the disputing nations. Against a policy of watchful waiting none can now protest. But when the boycott raises its venomous head, the people of Harlem ought to be urged to read those appeals for neutrality in thought as well as in deed which Woodrow Wilson made to all the American people some 20 years ago.

Extending The NRA.

President Roosevelt's claim that the NRA has given employment to 4,000,000 people may be dismissed as a type of political propaganda open to challenge. There is, however, abundant evidence that positive gains have resulted from the activities of the NRA, and there is a certainty that serious industrial disorganization would follow its abandonment. Consequently, the President's request for a prolongation of the act for a period of two years is undoubtedly in the public interest, despite the defects of the existing law and of many interpretative orders and regulations.

It is, nevertheless, both a surprise and a disappointment to discover that Congress is to be charged with so much responsibility for determining the form of the new legislation which is to replace the existing recovery act. Many strong arguments could be advanced in favor of a continuance of the NRA in its present provisional form, pending the completion of draft legislation by administrative experts who are acquainted with the problems that have arisen during the experimental period. On a number of occasions, indeed, authoritative spokesmen for the NRA have expressed a wish to defer presentation of a final plan until they feel competent to render more considered judgments on moot questions of policy.

However, the officials who have taken over responsibility for the tasks surrendered by Gen. Johnson have certainly had time to formulate a more coherent and workable plan for revision of the NRA than any that Congress is capable of devising of its own initiative. Consequently, the President's invitation to that body to make detailed recommendations for modifications of the present law, without benefit of a finished draft offered for its consideration, seems a rash proceeding.

The tragically ludicrous consequences of asking Congress to vote an expenditure of close to $5,000,000,000 for work relief without presenting it with a program are before our eyes. They should have served as a warning against another invitation to that body to amend a law whose revision calls for expert advice from competent administrators.

The International Cinema.

Approximately 30 years after presenting the world premier of "The Girl of The Golden West," the Belasco Theater is lending its stage to the showing of international films. Beginning tonight, Washington will follow the excellent example of New York and other Eastern cities in bringing to a Capital screen all-foreign motion pictures. The opening picture is a Russian talkie made in Leningrad under the auspices of Amkino. For the benefit of the majority, there will be complete dialogue titles in English.

The Belasco Theater is one of the Capital's oldest theatrical landmarks. It was built in 1895 and was known then as the Lafayette Square Opera House. In 1906, the supervision passed to David Belasco, who changed its name to the Shubert-Belasco. Since that time it has housed nearly every type of show, from melodramas to comedies. Now, after a darkened period, its advertisements bear the title, "The International Cinema," and in keeping with the change the old theater has been completely renovated.

The name "Belasco" has long stood for attractive entertainment, the theater on Lafayette Square is one familiar to many generations of playgoers, and the scheduling of foreign films is the answer to a long-felt local need. Now why not proceed to another legitimate playhouse? For that the plethora of good offerings and the appreciation of Washington audiences would seem to give full justification.

No Place For Compromise.

A new flood of proposals to pay the veterans' bonus ten years before it is due has been unloosed on Capitol Hill. Measures vary from the conservative Tydings bill to the inflationary proposal of Senator Bulow and the outright demand of the American Legion for cash payment from the Treasury. In no single instance, however, has there been established any governmental obligation to make payment in any form at this time. Of course, no such obligation can be established.

Senator Tydings' proposal is by far the most reasonable compromise that has been suggested. It recognizes that the bonus certificates will not attain their face value until 1945 and that continuous accumulation of interest in the meantime is essential to avoid a charge upon taxpayers never contemplated by the original legislation. Hence, the bill would permit exchange of the certificates for negotiable bonds. The face value of the bonds and minor cash adjustments would equal the face value of the certificates, minus interest at 3 per cent for nine years.

This arrangement would enable veterans to secure the present value of the so-called bonus in cash. At no time, however, has the veterans' lobby asked for merely that portion of the bonus which has actually accrued. Its demand is for current payment of an obligation that will not become due until 1945. It would be just as reasonable for the holders of Government bonds maturing in 1945 to demand now full payment of face value, plus interest for ten years in advance.

Perhaps Senator Tydings is only trying to emphasize, in terms the average man can understand, the magnitude of the veterans' request. Acceptance of even this guarded compromise, however, would be a mistake, psychologically if not economically. It would imply the existence of some current obligations to the veterans, whereas there is no such obligation. If special arrangements, other than those already existing, are really necessary for necessitous veterans they can be made without surrendering to a lobby which is seeking to establish a class privilege at public expense.

Touching A Weak Point.

Considerable progress in revealing the weak points of the District's law enforcement system is being made by the special House committee. The testimony of District Attorney Leslie C. Garnett, for example, suggests that extensive improvements can be made in the detection of crime as well as in prosecution. In fact the ratio of felons convicted to crimes committed is so small that it can not be said to offer much discouragement to the underworld.

Mr. Garnett agrees that the law is adequate to cover all crimes, except the numbers game. From the records of his own office and the Police Department it appears, however, that the application of these laws is rather ineffective. Many cases have been lost, according to Mr. Garnett, because policemen have not prepared their cases properly. He complains of sketchy reports and inaccuracies that lead to disagreements among the officers. But laxity is not confined to policemen.

During the fiscal year 1934 the police recorded 9,000 felonious crimes in the District for which 5,000 arrests were made. Indications are that the police were unable to apprehend a large number of criminals and that they arrested a considerable number who were probably innocent. Of the 5,000 arrested, however, only 921 were convicted. Allowing for unwarranted arrests, the prosecution of alleged criminals in the District appears to be inexcusably weak. The number of cases nolle prossed is in excess of the number won by trial.

Testimony regarding compromises with concerns accused of violating the law likewise makes an unfavorable impression. Is this a general practice of the Attorney General's office? The public should know more about these compromises and the dismissal of felony charges. Indeed it appears that Mr. Garnett should know more about what is going on in the courts where he represents the Government in behalf of the people. Is there a connection between Mr. Garnett's practice of avoiding the Police Court and the low percentage of convictions in these local tribunals? Here is a fruitful field inviting further study by the crime investigating committee.

Mightier Than The Sword.

The oldest of quarrels will be settled by the oldest of methods if two Frenchmen meet as scheduled on the field of honor in the Bois de Boulogne this week. The duelists are Bertrand de Jouvenel, the critic, and Julien Duvivier, the criticized, who, in the modern slang of the day, "couldn't take it." Duvivier objected in no uncertain terms to a criticism of one of his films by De Jouvenel. The critic in turn thought that the film director's retaliatory remarks about the review constituted an insult. Therefore he, as the injured party, exercised his prerogative as such and stipulated swords as the weapons.

Critics occupy a peculiarly precarious position in the literary and theatrical worlds. They are, in a manner of speaking, between the devil and the deep blue sea. On the one hand is the public, demanding an unbiased hewing to the line, letting the flops fall where they may. On the other hand are the authors and playwrights with their accusations of prejudice and commercialized carping. This friction is as old as the question of whether the critic is dependent for a living on the one whom he criticizes, or vice versa.

Monsieur de Jouvenel is at liberty, of course, to demand "satisfaction" in any manner which he deems fitting. But how much safer, at least, is the way chosen by our own Elmer Rice, who simply retired from Broadway in great wrath when he felt he could no longer stand the critics' attacks. And George Bernard Shaw must have gotten all the "satisfaction" he wanted when he recently wired the Theater Guild and asked, in reply to its criticism of the too-lengthy title to his new play, "Have you gone crazy? Title indispensable." Then, too, M. de Jouvenel should consider how ineffectual his profession appears after this challenge. For a man whose livelihood depends on how effectively he wields the pen, it seems an admission of failure on his part when he finds it necessary to resort to the sword.

We sincerely hope this country isn't going to the dogs, as the calamity howlers insist. We like dogs.

"Excellent footwork has won many a fight," declares a prize fighter. Yes—and it has also prevented many a fight.

International Copyright.

From the Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

It is 44 years since the International Copyright Union was formed at Berne, yet the United States has thus far refused to subscribe to that convention. It should therefore be welcome news in the literary world that legislation to provide for American entrance in the union has been prepared and that Senator Pittman, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, is confident of its passage during this session.

A matter of international good faith and moral integrity is involved, for it merely assures the British authors the same guarantee against the pirating of their works here as is now given American writers against similar appropriation of their property in Great Britain. We hope that Congress will act promptly.

Outrageous $400,000,000.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The outrageous program submitted by Gen. Douglas MacArthur for a $405,000,000 expansion program for the Army moves one to ask whether the Chief of Staff of the Army has heard about the munitions inquiry. To even suggest the expenditure of over $400,000,000, which would be in addition to the Regular Army budget of over $300,000,000, seems incredible in the face of the revelations made by this inquiry.

Has the American public been aroused sufficiently to register a Nation-wide protest?

More Argument On Mexico.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This communication is in no way concerned with the merits of the religious question in Mexico, but solely with the impropriety of our interfering in the domestic affairs of a friendly, neighboring republic, as proposed by Senator Borah, and some others of our people who appear more concerned about matters in other countries than in their own.

The Latin Americans are sufficiently distrustful of us, and none too friendly at best, so why widen the existing breach by gratuitous, unwarranted and impertinent meddling in their purely domestic affairs? On the contrary, the interest, welfare and security of the Americas are interwoven by nature, by geographical propinquity and destiny. Therefore the keystone of our foreign policy should be the cultivation of the most cordial and intimate social and commercial relations with all of our Southern neighbors.

To that end we should studiously refrain from giving offense by the assumption of superiority, and by criticism of, or interference in any manner with their internal affairs.

All nations have their social, economic and political problems, and often handle them in a manner that may not appeal to our ideas of right and justice. That is their affair and not ours. Reverse the case, and see how quick we would be to resent any criticism or interference in our domestic affairs by another nation. God knows there is enough in our social, political and economic life that can be justly criticized, but I know of no people more sensitive to and resentful of criticism than are the people of the United States.

I have a very high regard for our Latin-American friends. Many of the South American countries are far in advance of us in social, economic and political legislation, and among their upper classes there is far greater culture in art, music, literature and architecture than exists among our cultured class. In fact, there is much we can learn from them.

ALEXANDER S. LANIER.

Washington, Feb. 18.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letter contained in the column State vs. Church Issue signed by one "Verity" leads me to think that the author because of deep study of the questions involved has a right to that pen name. The word verity, which has its root in the Latin "veritas," and means truth, impels one to believe the writer is exhibiting truth, honesty and sincerity. But after analyzing the article, we find an absence of truth and objective study, excluding honesty and sincerity in presentation. To the following, I take objection and in the name of verity call for substantiation:

"1. A condition of feudalism has prevailed in Mexico for centuries and she is only now undergoing the religious reformation. Is it reformation or downright persecution of a free religious conscience? Is it reformation or is it tyranny?

"2. This liberalization is resulting in a widespread education of the Mexican children which has been denied them heretofore." In the name of "verity" prove that! Is it education the Catholic Church objects to or the quality of the education? If, as you say, this educational movement is conducted by leaders like Luther and Calvin for the benefit of the populace then by comparison I part with all respect for Verity's much esteemed and "inspired" Luther and Calvin.

"3. The protest of the Protestant preachers and journals may well be ignored as lacking in perspective." I dare say that the Mexican events of today change when looked at from that angle. The closing of the Catholic churches, the persecution of the Catholic faithful, the trampling of Divine Will is not persecution. Murder is not murder—incarceration for teaching the Will of God is not incarceration—now in verity's name how do these crimes present themselves to you from your perspective?

"4. We should extend to Mexico a congressional vote of encouragement * * *" My friend (or should I call you Comrade), I do not censure you; I sympathize with you because of your unfortunate deviation from the body of American ideals so dear to Americans.

MIGUEL SPITULIS.

Washington, Feb. 18.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many Catholics frown on the organized campaign to cause trouble between Mexico and the United States by interference with domestic affairs of the latter country.

Mexico is a Catholic country, so much so that it is unusual to find within it persons of other denominations. It's men are as numerous, comparatively speaking, as men are in the United States and so far as I have heard they are quite healthy, fairly well educated, and therefore should know what they want.

In the United States there would be civil war tomorrow if Catholics were subject to the alleged persecutions and outrages which churchmen claim are the part of Catholics in Mexico today, so perhaps it is significant that the "persecuted Catholics" in Mexico take their persecutions with unusual complacence! Public sentiment in Mexico, where the country is preponderantly Catholic, to my mind is much more convincing than the sentiment of propagandists in the United States whose zeal for their church is a bit stronger than their patriotism for country.

Borah Apologist.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Speaking as a member of the Roman Catholic Church," C. R. Cotton, in his letter published in The Post on February 11, recalls the Smith presidential campaign and that "the sponsor" (U. S. Senator William E. Borah) "of the resolution now seeking public aid for Mexican Catholics was more or less of a bigot in his speeches regarding the New York Governor."

This writer (not speaker) is and was well known to Gov. Smith prior to and in 1928; is a native of New York State; still with legal and voting residence in that State, and stumped for three weeks in 1928 for the elections of Smith and Roosevelt. I know and am known to Senator Borah, ever since he came to Washington.

The Senator is no bigot. I have the honor of his friendship; know he is intellectually honest; a great American; a great statesman, and in no speech, interview or letter of his known in the campaign of 1928 did the Senator indirectly or directly show bigotry toward Gov. Smith.

Peons And Idleness.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With 85 per cent of the manganese mines in the United States idle, Secretary Hull, in reducing the tariff on manganese ores imported into this country from Brazil, endeavors to wreck the industry by compelling American to compete with the peons of Brazil, the peons of Cuba and the Communists of Russia—even the savages of the Gold Coast.

Mr. Hull should read the report of the Geological Survey which shows 216 manganese deposits in 34 States. He exhibits an abysmal ignorance of the resources of his own country.

Secretary Morgenthau has the power to place this material on a quota basis. I ask him why he makes no effort to do so. There must be a reason.

Europe's Food "Kings."

Gaston Menier, the "chocolate king," was one of the richest men in France. The recent death of Sir John Elleman, the shipping magnate, leaves as the richest Englishman, it is said, one Joseph Bank, who is Great Britain's "flour king," though his name is known to few. Here at home our biggest fortunes have as a rule been built up in industry and transportation and allied fields. In Western Europe the biggest returns are apparently in food products—particularly beverages — and other articles of domestic consumption.

To be sure, American meat packers in their time have managed to find their occupation a rewarding one. The broad foundations of the Rockefeller fortune were laid when petroleum chiefly meant kerosene for lamp and oil stove. Even today the gasoline for the car ranks as a necessity with bread on the table and coat on back. Nevertheless, the tone in great wealth, up to 1929, was set by the industrial kings, in steel, lumber, railroads. Since then the tobacco and chainstore kings have loomed higher, as their rivals in the heavy industries have gone down.

The Post Impressionist

Post Office, Thursday.

LUDWIG BAUER'S biography of "Leopold the Unloved" is getting a lot of praise from the critics, and perhaps the book deserves it—but the publishers haven't yet sent the Post-Impressionist a review copy. We understand, moreover, that, living up to his title, Herr Bauer presents an array of facts which seem to justify the epithet bestowed by the author upon his king-subject—but we once saw somebody who unmistakably loved this Coburg monarch of the Belgians, and we happen to know a little about another somebody who loved him, too.

* * *

Not that thousands of people hadn't excellent reasons for hating Louise Philipe Marie Victor, Leopold II, son of Leopold the Disappointed and uncle of Albert the Good. There was Bismarck. There were several brother monarchs. And there were the black thousands of that patch of darkest Africa ironically called the Congo Free State.

* * *

Leopold's upbringing—his very birth, in fact—had a great deal to do with it, if that is any excuse. You might say he just missed being King of England—because his father's first wife wasn't young Leopold's mother. That first wife of Leopold I was Charlotte, heiress to the British throne. Bad enough to lose out thus—worse when your aunt's daughter becomes England's Queen; worse still when a cousin marries Cousin Victoria.

Leopold II, long before he succeeded his father at Brussels, came to believe, as keenly as did Leopold I, that the world was ruled by a Fate which opposed him and which, therefore, he would all his life have to oppose.

Here was one point of view—we suspect other points of view were scarce—whereon father and son agreed. The boy was educated accordingly.

* * *

Then came more intimate sorrows.

On whichever side the first blame lay, no love was lost between Leopold II and his wife. Nor was there male issue to their union . . .

* * *

King of a minor kingdom, Leopold felt worthy of a larger realm. He set himself to the acquisition of a rich one. The blood of the Congo turned to gold—and turned to horror whatever feelings his Belgians had ever entertained toward him.

* * *

There is always a plenty of mud for the favorites of any king. For the favorites of a king so detested as Leopold the supply is enormous. Everything that could be whispered about the dancer Cleo de Merode was shouted about her. She bled the old man. She betrayed him. All the while that he lavished unbelievable fortunes upon her—jeweled her fingers with royal ransoms—hung about her neck those pearls which were the envy of other sovereigns—she loathed him. That sort of thing.

* * *

Well, the Post-Impressionist was very young in those latter days of Leopold, and therefore perhaps too impressionable. But we remember this king as an imposing figure—except for an even longer-than-most Coburg nose, he looked an older and more benign-seeming Edward VII, white bearded like a patriarch of the Eastern Church. And we remember Cleo, seated beside him at the supper table, with hair drawn down on either side of a forehead superbly calm, with eyes entirely unworldly and with lips that should have belonged in a church window . . .

Of course, looks means nothing. Of course, any woman can fool any boy as readily as she can fool most kings. Leopold was a "bad actor," of course—because he was a good liar. And Cleo was, of course, no better than she should be. But she was a worse actor than Leopold, in that she never could act at all—on the stage or off it—and never lie, either.

In those days, we were sure she loved him. In these—considering what he did for her—we should marvel if she didn't love him. . . .

* * *

Even Herr Bauer admits that once and wholly Leopold lost his heart: it was to Cleo's successor. We ourselves add, on better authority, that Cleo's successor lost her heart to Leopold.

* * *

The King must have had a weakness for childlike faces: the face of Caroline Lacroix was that of a child. She was said to have been a girl of the streets, but there are as many classes in the underworld as in the upper. Caroline started life as the daughter of a Paris janitor. Thanks to Leopold, she ended it as the Baroness Vaughan. And just as his ultimate constancy to her evoked surprised jeers, so is there no doubting her fidelity to him.

The test came when, at last, he lay on his deathbed. The good Cardinal Mercier refused the King the last Sacrament unless he married her: he married her. Then there was no more that he could give—but she would not leave him. Until word arrived that Heir-Apparent Albert declined to see the expiring monarch in her presence, she clung to that wicked old hand.

Governor To Discuss Philippine Relations

Murphy Returns To Assist In Formulation Of New American Policy.

By Vincente Albano Pacis.
(Special Correspondence of The Post).

Manila, P. I.

GOVERNOR GENERAL FRANK MURPHY of the Philippines comes to Washington primarily to help formulate a new American policy in the Philippines, reach an understanding with the President and Congress on the powers and authority of the American High Commissioner, America's representative in the next Philippine government, then accept the position of first commissioner and stay on the job long enough to set the standards of the new office before returning to Detroit to seek the Governorship of Michigan in the next elections.

The Governor General, as a matter of fact, has long been in intimate touch with Washington on Philippine affairs and many of the decisions reached by the White House in recent years have been based on his cabled recommendations. Aside from such cables, however, he has been submitting long, confidential reports on the independence question in an effort, as he puts it himself, "to interpret the will of the Filipinos themselves without influencing that will." These reports, it is understood, have aroused the interest of President Roosevelt, who three months ago suggested personal conferences with the Governor General in Washington in view of the necessity of drawing up a new American Philippine policy.

As the commonwealth government, which is to last for ten years, will be inaugurated this year, probably next September, adjustments in the exercise of American control over the islands are essential. In the new government, the only representative of American sovereignty will be the American High Commissioner, although the American Army and Navy in the islands will remain at status quo.

The independence law, however, is so general and vague on the duties and powers of the Commissioner that it has been deemed necessary to discuss with the President and the leaders of Congress the details and extent of his authority. Conflicts might result between the American Commissioner and the Filipino President of the Commonwealth, unless the matter is clarified.

• • • •

IN this connection, there is the logical necessity of defining American policy with respect to the new Philippine government soon to be inaugurated. Heretofore, American control of the Philippines has been complete, almost absolute, the Governor General being possessed of arbitrary powers which, however, have been seldom resorted to.

Henceforth, under the independence law, the United States will simply watch from the sidelines and respectfully advise the Filipino President whenever something is amiss. When and how to give such advice, and whether to insist on it or not must now be worked out in Washington. In the formulation of this new policy, some amendments to the independence law may be thought of as advisable. Enjoying the complete confidence of President Roosevelt, Murphy, of course, will render the decisive opinion on all these matters.

It follows that he will be the first American High Commissioner. Senate President Quezon as good as nominated him for this office in the farewell banquet given in his honor by the Council of State. It is common sense that if Murphy helps to clarify the powers of the new position and is so well liked by the Filipinos he should be the one to start the office going. If Washington should decide to read into the general powers of the Commissioner some authority not expressly stated, a new and strange American High Commissioner would run into trouble as fast as Governor General Leonard Wood clashed with Quezon when he tried to reverse the liberal policies of his predecessor, Francis Burton Harrison.

• • • •

AS long as he can not be Governor of Michigan, Frank Murphy will prefer to remain in Manila. "I like my job," he says, "and there is no other position that the United States Government could give me that I would prefer." He explains that he would even disdain a Cabinet position and states that the main reason why he turned deaf ears to Michigan leaders when they wanted him to run against Arthur Vandenberg for Senator is that he is only interested in executive positions.

"I am in politics," he says, "because I like it better than anything else. The opportunity for public service is tremendously greater in politics than in any other field of endeavor. But this opportunity is greater in executive positions."

Governor General Murphy realizes that if he must stay in politics, he ought to be in Michigan preparing his grounds, but he also feels that it would be a terrible and selfish blunder for him to leave the Philippine post at this time.

While in Washington, he will also act as the vanguard of a new Philippine mission coming there to seek changes in the independence law. Just as in other occasions he has helped such missions by cable, so now he will perform the same task on the spot and face to face with the officials concerned. In his own quiet but efficient way, he will inquire into the possibility of increasing the quotas on Philippine exports to America and the possibility of radically modifying the export tax which the Filipino political leaders consider so burdensome that they are not sure whether or not to prefer Japan instead.

More Federal Emergency Projects.

No. 444, Series D, Hollyhock Point—$3,500,000 for a city-operated shuffleboard stadium and horseshoe pitching arena. Nothing is more important to a people's morale during a crisis than shuffleboard and horseshoe pitching, and the Federal Government is glad to provide this loan as part of its program for the broader life.

No. 289, Series K, Wisteria Shores—A $1,550,000.34 bond issue to provide a chain of elevated picnic groves. The idea is to raise the picnic so far off the ground that red ants can not make the grade and share the lunch. Another $1,000,000 will be provided by Congress to feed the ants.

No. 77, Series R, Hardscrabble City—$5,000,000 for the erection of a chain of steel landing and rest stations for stratosphere balloons. There is no immediate need at the moment, but in 50 or 60 years from now the problem of how to provide comfort for stratosphere balloonists may have become national, in which case Hardscrable City will be away out in front.

No. 987, Series S, Onion Hills—$1,250,000 to provide the town with a municipal hitch-hiking school. Onion Hills wants the first Thumbing Center ever established in America. A thumbing center is a vast rose bowl in which young people will be given practical training in hitch-hiking. Hitch-hikers are pretty crude, and Onion Hills politicians have convinced Washington that it is time thumbing was put on a higher plane.

No. 655, Series N. Stony Creek—$2,000,000 for a municipal chute-the-chutes. Stony Creek has long felt that some diversion should be provided for those members of its community who do not play bridge or chess. Quite a few civic leaders stood out for a municipal fancy skating rink with year-around ice direct from Washington, but the chutes project finally won out. The Federal loan must be paid off in installments of $10 a month beginning in April, 1987.

No. 954, Series W, Higginbotham Hegihts—$1,350,000 for a flying trapeze foundation. The purpose of the foundation is to provide every man, woman and child with a flying trapeze. In the words of Senator Potts, "they won't be happy till they get it."

Along The Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

The Big Bear.

REVELATION in Pittsburgh yesterday in his income tax suit that Andy Mellon sold short in the market in 1931 is one of the things that make the Nation's Capital one of the funniest places in the world to live in. We understand now, for the first time, why the Republicans after sounding their big bear scare of that year were so reluctant to proceed with it.

BARGERON.

One's sides literally ache as he thinks of those happenings. Ah, but those were tragic days. One can never forget how George Barr Baker, for some reason or other, got it into his head, while meditating in his New York office, that sinister market operators were prolonging the depression, that they were deliberately selling America short.

He sold the idea to Mr. Hoover and I can recall until this day the injured air the White House took on when this dastardly plot was got onto.

• • • •

Mr. Hoover promptly summoned his close friend, Senator Walcott, and when the Senator issued forth to meet the waiting newspapermen his expression was a mixture of tragedy that his fellow men could be so unconscionable and happiness that they were now to be smoked out and the depression thereby ended.

He went running up to the Senate and made plans immediately to have the Senate Banking Committee, of which he was a member, launch an investigation. All sorts of stories went around as to the identity of these men who were selling the country short to embarrass Mr. Hoover. The plain intimation was that they were Messrs. Al Smith, Kenny and John Raskob.

• • • •

Well, sir, we all laughed around here at the time. In its desperation this seemed to be about the darndest thing the Administration had yet dug up.

But the matter got even funnier when after a boisterous start the investigation drew up short and the Republicans began to look sort of silly. Whereupon, the diabolical newspapermen wrote stories that something had happened to the big bear plot expose, that, apparently, efforts were being made to squelch it. Then the committee would wearily hold another session and again try to quit.

It was very clear by now that it had got hold of a hot potato and was trying to let go. The Democrats never took much interest in the proceedings. They assumed the whole thing was some Republican propaganda and treated it this way.

Now wouldn't it have been a scream had the inquiry been vigorously pursued in the temper of Mr. Hoover when he initiated it and suddenly it would have come upon the two operations of Mr. Mellon, two short selling operations by which, it was testified at Pittsburgh yesterday, he cleaned up $72,000 in one and lost $68,000 in the other.

• • • •

It was not disclosed what Mr. Mellon's purpose was. He actually held the stock in which he traded although his transactions in both instances were speculative.

But regardless of what his purpose was it would have been a pretty come-off for the Administration. It had put a bad odor on short sellers, had held them up as subversive influences, and now was out to reveal them in their sinister light. What a boomerang it would have been for Andy's name to come out.

As matters turned out the Republicans never did anything with their big plot. They puttered around, backed and filled, had the late Percy Rockefeller down once and, after considerable trouble, got Tom Bragg and Benny Smith before the committee. It was apparent from the beginning, though, the boys didn't have their heart in the work.

When the Democrats came in they took up the investigation and switched it into an inquiry into the banks and the stock market generally. The banking and securities acts resulted therefrom. Andy, for some time, had been over in London as our ambassador.

Richard Bennett Improving.

London, Feb. 20 (AP).—Richard Bennett, famous American actor, recently injured in a fall from a horse, was much improved today. He was permitted to talk with visitors for the first time.

No End Of Books

Sketches and Tales by John O'Hara, Our O. Henry Decked Out With All Modern Improvements.

By Theodore Hall.

TALL, strapping John O'Hara, doctor's son from Pottsville, Pa., ex-reporter, ex-newspaper editor, ex-staffman of Time and the New Yorker, ex-press agent, ex-soda jerker, ex-railroad and steel hand, ex-sailor and farmer, ex-secretary in a factory office, ex-day laborer, ex-bum, ex-married man—I'm not stretching it; these matters are all in the record—now collects his tales and sketches in "The Doctor's Sons and Other Stories" (Harcourt Brace, $2.50).

All this, as well as the writing of that sharp, thin-cutting novel, "Appointment in Samarra," he has packed into his 30 years. The stories of the present volume have, for the most part, appeared in The New Yorker and other not dissimilar magazines. With this dossier in hand, we can begin to place Mr. O'Hara.

• • • •

HIS must be a fine exuberant energy—though necessarily parceled out at some such ratio as soda-jerking for two weeks. But that throwing himself into a wide sampling of life, whether consciously for a literary purpose (which I should doubt) or unconsciously from an Irish gusto and unrest, indicates Mr. O'Hara's prime point. He shows a total sensory zest for the American scene he knows; he has its customs and dio-syncracies at his fingertips, its language on his tongue's end. And of it he writes with that brief sardonicism and sentimentalism which has been stylized by—you will know what I mean—"smart" publications. Writes, let me say, though, with an excellence which flashes in the mind time and again.

Let me quote a quiet passage I enjoyed. Here a boy remembers a spring day when he walked along the streets to go riding at the riding stable.

"I remember the sounds. the woop-woop of my new breeches each time I took a step, and the clop sound of the draft horses' hooves in the thawed ground of the streets. The draft horses were pulling wagonloads of coal from the nearby mines up the hill, and when they got halfway up the driver would give them a rest; there would be a ratchety noise as he pulled on the brake, and then the sound of the breast chains and trace chains loosening up while the horses rested. Then presently the loud slap of the brake handle against the iron guard, and the driver yelling 'Gee opp!' and then the clop sound again as the horses' hooves sank into the sloppy roadway."

But more often his eloquence lies in the native eloquence of the characters he chooses. From the broker's lady to Judy O'Grady the waitresses, from the Princeton sophomore to the Second avenue pool shark, Mr. O'Hara seems to have listened to them and made notes on his ample cuff. His ear is as all-including as a city directory.

HERE are genre pictures of two partners arguing over the name for a "quick-and-dirty" eating place; of a speakeasy doorkeeper describing a hold-up; of a precocious young scamp, the "hotel child;" of a master of ceremonies in a night club; of the silent old ladies who sit in hotel lobbies; of chorus girls and speakers at afternoon clubs. All are caught with an acute mimicry of speech and attitude.

And further, the young Italian barber nets the manicurist's heart before the police catch up with him; the dried-out sub-executive tries to draw his clubmates into celebrating a $10,000 bonanza; the deb tells how she put it all over the haughty movie actress at a party; the minor clerk has his day of fame as a murder witness. In such anecdotal glimpses Mr. O'Hara takes us into a score of varied lives—if not deeply, at least pointedly and memorably.

As an example of this skeletonized compression, take the little sketch called "Pleasure." It is merely a scene or two from the life of a $16-a-week "clean-up girl" in a cheap restaurant—the owner calls her down when she starts to take pride in her work; cab drivers hoot at her as she passes on her way home; up in her single, bare room, she wonders where her money goes ($3 a week for the room, 50 cents for the "L," 60 cents for cigarettes, 50 cents on the winter coat, $2 to her married sister, $5 into the tin box of savings, and so on). She takes the box from under a floor board and the sketch ends—" 'There ought to be 240 bucks there,' she said, 'instead of 120, if I'd saved 10 bucks a week.' She closed the box, locked it, and put it back under the flooring. 'But what the hell, a person has to have some pleasure,' she said. And so saying, she lit a whole cigarette.' "

• • • •

Mr. O'Hara is the O. Henry of our day, with all modern improvements. Love in apartments, hate in a poolroom, regret in a club lounge—here are "the four million" 30 years later. But the trick surprise ending has turned into mannered, laconic suming up—e. g., "For a while he would just sit there and plan his own terror." The essentially comradely stance of O. Henry (almost Whitmanesque) has thinned out to an air of superiority. Mr. O'Hara writes down to has characters; by his very sauvity he reassures the reader that there are no odious implications. Yet with all his considerable skill, he paints nothing but futility upon futility. It can be entertaining enough, but it remains sophisticated botanizing.

Col. Lea Receives Law Books Only In Mother's Will

Under terms of the will of Mrs. Ella Lea, who died here last week, her son, Col. Luke Lea, former United States Senator from Tennessee, who now is serving a prison term in North Carolina on an embezzlement charge, receives nothing but his father's law books. The will was filed yesterday in District Supreme Court.

Mrs. Lea in her will pointed out that Col. Lea already had been given a large share of his father's estate.

Two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth L. Murdock, of 1824 Twenty-third street northwest, and Mrs. Laura L. Robertson, of Chattanooga, Tenn., will divide the bulk of the $350,000 estate, which consists largely of land in Tennessee and personal property valued at approximately $30,000.

Mrs. Lea left $10,000 each to Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Hinton, her granddaughter and grandson-in-law. Mrs. Horace H. Lurton, jr., a friend, was left $4,000.

Dr. Rowland Resigns As Penn Hall Dean

Chambersburg, Pa., Feb. 20 (Spl.). Announcement was made today of the resignation of the Rev. G. H. G. Rowland, D.D., dean of Penn Hall School for Girls for the last seven years.

Dr. Rowland intends to reenter the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a member of the Philadelphia Conference and expects to be assigned a pastorate at the conference session at Germantown the week of March 7.

Inferior Sequels

By Wm. Lyon Phelps

THE most difficult thing in writing a play is to write a good last act—for one good final act there are 33 good first acts—and so true is this, that when Barrie wrote "The Admirable Crichton," he wrote the last act first, so as to be sure and get a good one.

R. D. Blackmore produced his novel, "Lorna Doone," in 1869, and for 30 years tried to write another as good—in vain. Then he wrote a sequel, "Slain by the Doones," which is not only forgotten, but the fact of his having written it is forgotten.

• • • •

Thackeray's greatest novel is "Henry Esmond." The sequel, "The Virginians," is good, but not nearly so good as its predecessor.

Tennyson's "Locksley Hall Sixty Years After" is quite inferior to "Locksley Hall." Although all parts of "The Forsythe Saga" are good, no succeeding part is quite equal to the first one, "The Man of Property." Stevenson's "Catriona" is not so good as "Kidnaped."

If one writes a trilogy, that is not the same thing as writing a sequel. We expect there will be a falling off because the three parts have to be taken as a whole, as in the case of Pearl Buck's Chinese trilogy, where I see no inferiority whatever in the second and third novels.

• • • •

A genuine sequel fully equal to the splendid original is Alexandre Dumas' "Twenty Years After," which is in every respect as good as "The Three Musketeers." But when he added "The Viscount of Bragelonne," he did not maintain the same high level.

I have been impelled to write this article because of a letter I received from A. R. Dorroh, of Washington, D. C. He wishes to know why Barrie treated Tommy so cruelly in "Tommy and Grizel," after Tommy had shown such good qualities in "Sentimental Tommy." Well, I think "Sentimental Tommy" is a great novel, a work of genius. The sequel, "Tommy and Grizel," came four years later, and is in every way inferior; while the death of the hero is a most unpleasant surprise, and never seemed inevitable. Stevenson, writing a letter to Barrie, was amazed when he heard of the possibility of such a conclusion; he did not live to see it in print.

I suppose, as a mere conjecture, that Barrie was full of inspiration when he wrote "Sentimental Tommy," and that the sequel was, so to speak, written to order.

Byrd Anticipates No Counterclaims On Discoveries

Dunedin, N. Z., Feb. 20 (AP).—The question of sovereignty over the territories he has discovered in the Antarctic is unlikely ever to occasion an international dispute, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd said today.

"There never will be any controversy about any lands I have discovered," the Polar explorer said. "Science knows no boundaries and the discoveries are purely scientific and of no value from a practical standpoint."

Byrd said about two years would be required to coordinate the scientific data gathered on the second Antarctic expedition and determine its significance. Meanwhile, the Admiral said, he would devote himself to liquidating the financial burdens of his enterprise.

"I'll have to lecture for a year or two to pay my $50,000 debt and avoid bankruptcy," he commented cheerfully.

Bill Would Widen U. S. Merit System

Janitors, charwomen, watchmen, elevator operators and other workers in postoffices throughout the country would be given a civil service status under terms of a bill introduced yesterday by Representative Celler (Democrat), of New York.

The measure would place all employes below the salary grade of laborers under the Postoffice Department as regular postal employes. A minimum salary of $1,200 a year with automatic promotions to $1,500 is provided, and the employes would be entitled to noncompetitive examinations to improve their positions.

Representative Compton I. White (Democrat), of Idaho, offered a bill supplementing his resolution asking $1,000 for each Representative for additional clerk hire. The bill would amend the law of 1923 fixing the amount allowable for clerical employes at $5,000.

Barring Gold Claims Savors Of Inflation

Closing Court To Suits Would Repudiate Majority Decision Of Court.

PROPOSALS to have Congress bar gold clause suits from the Court of Claims or to have the Treasury refund gold-clause bonds with nongold-clause bonds sound singularly inappropriate at this time. It is not hard to understand why President Roosevelt at a press conference yesterday exhibited annoyance with newspaper reports to the effect that the Government had decided to close the door to collection of damages on gold clauses.

For, apparently, under the Supreme Court's decision the right to collect damages would only exist if the dollar were drastically inflated until its purchasing power went far below what it has been for many years. Any such steps as those suggested would amount to a confession that the New Deal expected such inflation and hence expected the occasion would arise for filing damage suits.

Clearly, Mr. Roosevelt's monetary policy, whatever else may be said about it, is intended to avoid any such situation. At one time he appeared to be bent on forcing the value of the dollar down until it reached its 1926 level in average purchasing power, as measured by the commodity price index. That has been the express goal of the inflationists in Congress. They regard the 1926 index number of 100 as the proper "parity" for the dollar. Lately Mr. Roosevelt has appeared to come to the view of economists who hold that the way to recovery is by finding a new "normal," a new equilibrium in prices, and not by returning to a preexisting price level the attainment of which would entail continuing uncertainty and new dislocations. Indeed, the 1926 level was marked by wholly undesirable disparities notably between agricultural and industrial prices.

IN any event, Mr. Roosevelt has appeared to be seeking, not a return to 1926 prices and buying power of the dollar, but a stability and correction of disparities at something approximately the present price level. This level is more than 20 points under the 1926 "parity" of 100. Under what appears to be the theory laid down by the Supreme Court the right to sue for damages on a Government bond gold clause would not arise until the index number had not only reached 100, but gone far beyond it. The Liberty bond on which John M. Perry sued and in whose case the court held that no loss of buying power was shown, was issued in 1918. At that time the price index stood at 131. It had risen to 138 by 1919 and to 154 by 1920.

Thus the dollar would have to be inflated from its present level of about 79, measured by the price index, to well beyond 131, if not beyond 154, before Perry could show loss of buying power, under the court's apparent thesis, and so have the right to sue for damages. This would represent a very large degree of further devaluation of the dollar—or further "inflation." Since the New Deal came to office and sought to force prices up, or in other words to force the dollar down, the price index has moved up from 59 at the low point of the banking holiday to around 79 at present, a rise of some 20 points. How much influence cutting the gold content of the dollar had in this rise is a matter of dispute. However, it is plain that even with the cutting of the gold content, prices have risen only 20 points so far. For Mr. Perry to collect prices would have to rise fully 52 points more.

• • • •

THIS, of course, is computing buying power by the measure of an average of wholesale prices as compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor. The court did not undertake to say how loss of buying power could be measured, and the subject is full of pitfalls. Nevertheless, these figures serve to indicate broadly how large an additional degree of "inflation" would have to take place before Perry, for example, would have suffered a loss of buying power entitling him, under the court's rule, to recover damages.

Certainly, Mr. Roosevelt's expressed and intended policy is far removed from any such further loss of buying power as is implied by this or similar yardsticks. And to ask Congress now to take action precluding suits that would arise under such a further "inflation" would be to admit that, far from being "managed" or stabilized, the dollar is headed for a continued, rapid plunge downward.

It may be that Mr. Roosevelt's irritation was not due to these considerations, but it might well have been. Or it may be that the New Deal may yet conclude that the door to suits must be closed against other contingencies such as suits by foreign holders of Treasury gold bonds—though this seems needless unless a different rule of loss is to apply to foreign as compared with American holders of Government gold bonds.

• • • •

IN any case, for the New Deal to put itself in the light of expecting further drastic inflation and hence seeking to forestall damage suits would, in the absence of other explanation, seem to be a most ominous danger signal. More than that, it would amount to saying that the Administration means to frustrate application of the Supreme Court's ruling, and means by this circumvention to effectuate a repudiation which it now denies has resulted or would result unless there is a demonstrable loss of buying power.

As pointed out in this space yesterday, the Attorney General appears to think that under the court's rule no suit would be in order even if dollars were drastically depreciated. But if so there would be even less occasion for closing the door to suits.

However it is viewed, barring explanations not yet heard, any such precautionary action would savor strongly of expected, uncontrolled inflation and of repudiation under the rule laid down by the court majority.

Rally to Propose Public Take Over District Utilities

Public ownership of utilities in Washington will be proposed at the public ownership and permanent prosperity conference which will open today at the Willard Hotel and last through Monday. More than 1,000 delegates from the entire country and Canada will attend the gathering, which is under auspices of the Public Ownership League of America.

The session devoted to the cause of public ownership in Washington will be at the hotel Saturday at 2 p. m., open to the public. It has been learned that the movement's leaders intend to have bills introduced in Congress for public ownership here and for the development of a hydroelectric plant at Great Falls.

For the conferences as a whole, addresses and reports will be made by nationally known authorities on economics, banking, labor, electric generation, education, municipal developments and other subjects. Representatives from towns and cities will report their experiences in owning and operating utilities.

Shuttle Bus Line Route Shift Slated

A shift in the loop of the shuttle bus line which connects with the Sixteenth street bus line at Sixteenth street and Alaska avenue northwest will be ordered by the Public Utilities Commission at the request of People's Counsel William A. Roberts.

Instead of making the turn by way of Floral and Fourteenth streets and Alaska avenue to Sixteenth street, the buses will now turn into Alaska avenue from Sixteenth street and go north to the intersection of Fourteenth and Elder streets, and return by way of Alaska avenue to Sixteenth street.

The Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Association protested that the buses moving through Floral street constituted a hazard to traffic, because of the narrowness of the street, and were also a danger to children. The shuttle line runs from Sixteenth street and the District line to the connecting point at Sixteenth street and Alaska avenue.

Saengerbund Will Hold A Songfest Tomorrow

Beer will flow and songs will echo tomorrow night when the newly organized Saengerbund, all 69 members, give an old-fashioned songfest at the National Press Club. Wives, sweethearts and daughters of the merry Germans also will sing.

In the old days the Saengerbund was one of Washington's best-known German societies. Prohibition, however, caused the distintegration of the club atnd demolition of its clubhouse. When beer came back, the nucleus of the new club was founded by Karl Richter, and with repeal it has grown to the extent that a new clubhouse is being contemplated.

Judge Gives Drunk Term He Suggests

Still Under Influence, Prisoner Admits.

"Were you drunk?" asked Judge Gus A. Schuldt.

"Yes sir, Judge," was the reply, "and I still am."

"What would you suggest?"

"All right—ten days."

"Thank you."

"You're welcome."

Veterans Group Plans Broadcast Tomorrow

Commemorating the seventeenth anniversary of their entry into the front-line trenches in the Lorraine sector, the Rainbow Division Veterans' Association will sponsor a Nation-wide broadcast of a patriotic program over a National Broadcasting Co. network tomorrow from 3:30 until 4 p. m.

Speakers will include Col. Noble Brandon Judah, former American Ambassador to Cuba, who served in the 149th Illinois Field Artillery in France; Col. Alexander E. Anderson, of the "Fighting Sixty-ninth;" former Gov. Wilbur M. Brucker, of Michigan; Col. J. Monroe Johnson; Sergt. Jack A. Clarke and M. Manning Marcus.

Area Winners n Scholarship Contest Listed

ix Central, Eastern High Students Qualify in Post's Competition.

At special exercises yesterday at stern and Central High schools, ee girls and three boys were nounced as the first selections of vision winners in the second shington Post Scholarship Comdition and were presented with ver medals in recognition of their tory over nearly 500 opponents. The champions are entitled to mpete for four-year tuition schol-ships in the project's finals, heduled this spring on the cam-ses of American, Catholic and eorgetown universities, against vision winners in other local hools and rural sections through-t the competition's Washington d tri-State area.

Dr. J. M. Campbell, dean of the ollege of Arts and Sciences at e Catholic University of America, esented the awards to the Eastern inners, and Mirs. Grace Hays iley, dean of the Washington Col-ge of Law and member of the mpetition's central committee, ve the medals to the Central hampions. Both commended, as ell as the winners, the hundreds defeated classmates who pre-ared original essays on social ience problems and praised the mpetition as an important factor the enlargement of public in-rest in current civic problems.

"For the next 50 years, at least," redicted Dr. Campbell, "the science government, to my mind, will oc-upy the place of first importance n educational institutions. This leading newspaper, The Washington Post, is to be highly commended for inaugurating and so ably sponsor-ing an undertaking of this kind in cooperation with local universities. It is undoubtedly stimulating intelli-gent interest in current civic, eco-nomic and international problems."

Understanding Gained.

"These medals," asserted Mrs. Riley, "represent to our committee more than the winners to whom I present them. They represent the work of the many other students, who have prepared essays and thus increased their knowledge of to-day's civic problems. We feel that everyone who has taken part has gained an understanding which will last longer than the awards."

Each of the six champions has won other high honors in their school activities and their teachers and classmates held high hopes for their success in the campus finals, when ratings will be based on their social science essays, their school records and on mental and oral col-lege entrance examinations.

At both schools, faculty commit-tees designated top honors, first place going to Paul Eldridge in the Eastern match, and to Leona Shade at Central. Their runners-up, who will enter with no handicaps in the campus finals, are Gordan Girling and Frances Goebel, at Eastern, and George W. Hoover, jr., and Ruth MacMillan at Central. Certificates of honor were awarded Eldridge and Miss Shade, in addition to the medals.

Eldridge, the son of Dan P. El-dridge, of 1423 East Capitol street, won first honors with an essay en-titled, "Can Capitalism Solve the Unemployment Problem?" He is active in Eastern's cadets and track team. His ambition is to win the scholarship offered by the Catholic University of America and to major there in sociology.

Chemistry Enthusiast.

Girling is a major in the East-ern cadets and an active member of the Officers Club, the Science Club and the Spanish Club. He has won first and second honors in his classes throughout his high school course. He is particularly interested in chemistry and hopes to specialize in that subject at American University. His winning paper was entitled, "America's Need for a Trained and Extended Civil Service." He is the son of Bridges Girling, 1245 E street northeast.

Miss Goebel is an honor student, having maintained first honors throughout both senior and junior high school. She is active in both the Spanish and glee clubs. She hopes to specialize in history at American University and to become a teacher of that subject. "The Two-Party System; Its Eect Upon the American People," is the sub-ject of her essay. She is the daugh-ter of F. A. Goebel, 1342 North Carolina avenue northeast.

The Eastern program was presid-ed over by Charles Hart, principal, and Miss Kate D. Bucknam, chair-man of the faculty committee in charge of the competition.

Miss Shade, voted to first place by the Central committee, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Shade, of 1468 Chapin street north-west. She holds one of the top places in Central's senior class honor roll and is secretary of the school's chapter of the National Honor Society. She is intensely ambitious for a college scholarship, although undecided which of a number of favorite subjects she will major in. She is active in Central's Four-Minute, Dramatic and Spanish clubs and is social service chair-man of a Girl Reserves unit here. Last year she won a gold medal for first honors in a local essay con-test sponsored by the Sons of the Revolution.

Sergeant in Cadets.

Hoover, whose essay also covered the civil service topic, is a first sergeant in the Central Cadets and secretary of the cadet fraternity there. He is the son of George W. Hoover, sr., of 1407 Montague street northwest. He is ambitious to pur-sue college work in his favorite studies history, sciences and mathe-matics.

Miss MacMillan's paper was on "Russia Today," a subject on which she has read extensively the last year. She resides with her uncle and guardian, Robert A. Young, of 219 Whittier street northwest. She is also a member of the National Honor Society and leads in many activities at Central, including the Girl Reserves and the Four-Minute, French and History clubs. She has included a secretarial course in her high school work, but hopes to pur-sue college studies and major in his-tory and English. The required reading in these subjects, which she has more than covered, has stimu-lated an especial interest in current economic problems.

County Chiefs Convene Today

Commissioners to Study Property Reassessment at Annapolis.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—County Commissioners from all sections of the State will gather here tomorrow to discuss tax problems and other subjects at a joint meeting of the Eastern and Western Shore Commissioners Associations.

One of th emost important topics for discussion is the State-wide re-assessment of property. Seven of the western counties favor immedi-ate reassessment, while the eastern group opposes it.

Reenactment of the present emer-gency law, expiring in September, which gives 1½ cents of the 4-cent gasoline tax to be spent for main-tenance and construction of lateral and county roads will be consid-ered.

Other subjects will be the ap-pointment of full-time assessors in each county; reversion of motor ve-hicle fines to the counties instead of the motor vehicle commissioner, and the return of control of county roads to the counties.

Area Headquarters to Be Opened Monday.

Front Royal, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.). Information reached here tonight that William A. Smith, of Rich-mond, State administrator of the Virginia Emergency Relief Admin-istration, has authorized the loca-tion of the area office of the VERA in Front Royal. The counties in-cluded in the area are Warren, Page, Rappahannock, Shenandoah, Clarke, Frederick and the city of Winchester.

The office will be located in the Hotel Royal. It is understood that the personnel of the office will be approximately 15 persons, including the area administrator, Miss Doroth-y Smith, of Luray, and her as-sistants, and the rehabilitation and auditing departments. The office will be opened Monday.

Guard's Maneuver Role Depends on Congress

Richmond, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—A movement by Virginia National Guardsmen to New York State next summer to participate in first Army maneuvers depends upon the adop-tion of an appropriation by Con-gress, it was learned today at the office of Brig. Gen. Samuel Gardner Waller.

Charges Are Quashed, Mill Workers Freed

Martinsburg, W. Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—On motion of the State in Circut Court here yesterday, in-dictments against a number of mill workers, charged with being in-volved in disorders during labor troubles at a local mill some months ago, were nolle prossed.

Indictments were returned last fall by the grand jury. Those named were Morgan Kees, Charles Dailey, Noah Burker, Harry Dorsey, J. T. Chambers, Cecil Reedy, Walker, Royal Files, Jack Frazier, Cecil Brooks, Forest Lehew and others whose names were unknown to the jury. The mill has since resumed operation.

Mine Equipment Sold.

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.). The extensive and costly equip-ment of the Sullivan Brothers Coal Co. mine at Clarysville, this county, was sold yesterday to Abe Wolfe and Abe Feldstein, local junk deal-ers, who submitted a bid of $2,250 for the machinery on the property, which has been closed for several months. This was one of the most modern equipped mines of the George's Creek field.

Dr. Kelly 'Defers' 77th Anniversary

No "Time to Celebrate," Hopkins Founder Says.

Baltimore, Feb. 20 (AP).—Dr. How-ard A. Kelly, one of the founders of the Johns Hopkins University, today postponed the celebration of his seventy-seventh birthday to next year.

"I don't have time to celebrate it," remarked Dr. Kelly, "so I've postponed it until next year."

He said he was busy from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m. with correspondence, addresses and other work and was planning several trips.

He said he has not received many presents, adding, "You don't get presents when you are old, you give them. I have received a good many letters and cards. They are the presents that are worth something —letters of affection, the pure gold of the spirit."

Dr. Kelly, with his son, Dr. Ed-mund Kelly, last year treated one of the Dionne quintuplets with radium for a growth on the thigh.

Awakened by Smoke, Three Flee Flames

Frederick, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—Awakened by smoke, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Bowers and their guest, Miss Mary A. Arnold, of Hanson-ville, fled in their night clothing last night when the home was damaged by fire.

Mr. Bowers, 70, fell down a flight of steps and fractured two fingers. The flames, caused by an over-heated furnace, reached the first floor and filled the other part of the house with smoke. A general alarm brought the fire department to the scene.

Economy Quiz Report Ready In Frederick

Legislators Will Attend Meeting to Hear Body's Recommendations.

Frederick, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—Following an inquiry of about six weeks relative to the administra-tion of the business of the county, an efficiency and economy commit-tee, through its chairman, T. Poole Jones, will make a report to three organizations—the Farm Bureau, Grange and Real Estate Board—sponsoring it, at a meeting at the courthouse Saturday. State Senator Harry W. LeGore and the five local members of the House of Delegates have been asked to attend.

Committee members include Will-iam T. Delaplaine and Richard Potts, this city; Daniel E. Wright, of near Urbana; Walter E. Burrall, New Market; Alvie M. Etzler, Mount Pleasant, and Daniel S. Guy-ton, Burkettsville. The group was appointed by Wilbert L. Smith, president of the Farm Bureau; James H. Cramer, president of the Real Estate Board, and David Fry, of the Grange.

A number of county officials, in-cluding the county commissioners, R. Bruce Murdoch, former clerk to the commissioners, and the county auditors were questioned in refer-ence to salaries of officials, expen-ditures and other business of the county. The report of the commit-tee will include recommendations for changes in the method of trans-acting business that may require legislative action. In the event such recommendations are made bills embodying the recommendations will be drafted in time to be pre-sented to the General Assembly now in session.

Last year an efficiency and econ-omy committee recommended a number of changes, including a re-duction in the salary of the county treasurer and sheriff, a reduction in the number of county commission-ers from five to three with a re-duction of salary from $1,500 to $1,000 per annum and a change in the fiscal year from July to corre-spond with the calendar year in January. The recommendations were made operative by legislative enactment.

HagerstownSession Urged by Firemen

City Receives Support of Williamsport Group.

Williamsport, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—The Volunteer Fire Company of Williamsport has approved Hagers-town as the 1936 convention city for the Maryland State Firemen's convention.

Hagerstown is the second city to seek the gathering, a move of the Eastern Shore having been started to pick Easton for the convention city.

Cumberland Reports Improved Finances

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—The report of the city finances at the beginning of February, com-piled by City Auditor Frank A. Wolfhope, shows collections better than they have been for the two previous years. For the first ten months of the current fiscal year, percentage of the tax levy for 1934-35 collected to date is 74.17, an increase of nearly 5 per cent.

The total appropriation for opera-tion this year is $318,097.37, with $254,257.30, or 79.68 per cent of the amount, used to date. The amount saved in appropriations for the first ten months of this year totals $10,-813.70.

Virginia Group To Perpetuate Cherry Legend

C. of C. to Set Tree Where Ax of Washington Re-putedly Fell.

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—The George Washington cherry tree legend will be revived here Friday afternoon in a colorful program prepared by the Chamber of Commerce. Exercises will take place on the George Washington boyhood farm, across the Rappa-hannock River from this city, at 3 p. m.

A cherry tree, gift of the Traverse City, Mich., Chamber of Commerce, will be planted as near as possible to the original spot where young George is said to have chopped down the cherry tree belonging to his father.

The tree will be planted by George Steptoe Washington, de-scendant of the first President.

The Marine Band from Quantico will give a short concert at 2:45 p. m.

Jere M. H. Willis, former Mayor of Fredericksburg, will make the principal address. C. O'Conor Gool-rick, president of the Virginia Bar Association, will introduce the speaker.

Following is the program:

Band concert, Quantico Marine Band; song, "America;" invocation, Dr. Forrest J. Prettyman, former United States Senate chaplain; ad-dress of welcome, Dr. Robert J. Payne, Mayor of Fredericksburg; pageant, elementary school chil-dren; unveiling of marker, Mrs. J. B. Colbert; presentation of tree from National Cherry Week Com-mittee, Miss Anna Mae York, na-tional cherry queen; accepta..ce of tree, Benjamin T. Pitts, president of Chamber of Commerce; planting of tree, directed by W. B. F. Cole, planted by George S. Washington, of Philadelphia; presentation of speaker, C. O'Conor Goolrick; ad-dress, Jere M. H. Willis. "Star-Spangled Banner," by the group.

400 Ready to Confer At Youth Conference

Salisbury, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—Ap-proximately 400 delegates are ex-pected here Friday for the Del-marva Youth Conference, to be held for three days at Asbury Metho-dist Episcopal Church.

In addition to ministerial and lay delegates from churches of the East-ern Shore of Maryland, Delaware and Virginia, many high school representatives and youth counsel-ors of schools, Boy Scout units and other groups are expected.

Solution to
"What Would You Do?"

"The Woman Who Cheated"
Broadcast Wednesday, at 10:30 P. M., from WJSV.

Raymond Wilmott arose from his chair.

"Well, Enders, Mrs. Enders is waiting for you."

Wilmott walked slowly by the huge mirror from which he had seen Mrs. Ender's act.

"Enders, promise me you'll say absolutely nothing to Mrs. Enders about this affair. Do you promise?" Enders was suffering immeasurably. His nervous fingers had already twisted the brim of his soft grey hat out of shape.

"Yes, man, of course! But what are you going to do? She'll show the check all over town."

"No, she won't, Enders, I saw to that."

* * * *

Mrs. Enders flung her clothes upon the chaise lounge, threw her arms around her distracted and shame-stricken husband.

"You're not awfully ashamed, are you, Harry?"

Enders was silent.

"I'll have that new dress and that perfectly adorable hat you refused to buy me! Oh, Harry, I'm so happy, and I won! Look—here it is—proof to the world that Evelyn Enders beat Raymond Wilmott, the famous bridge champion!"

Mrs. Enders took out the check. Anxiously she un-folded it. Suddenly the smile faded from her excited face. The check read: "Pay to the order of 'The Woman Who Cheated'."

Excess Condemnation Idea Studied Under Works-Relief Program.

Discussing the proposal that a great system of transcontinental highways be built as part of the works-relief program, President Roosevelt yesterday described a suggested "excess condemnation" plan under which part of the cost of the roads might be met.

Without committing himself to any road plan, the President said such a program was one of the many things studied. From other sources it has been learned the discussion involved a proposal for three east and west highways and two running north and south.

"Excess condemnation," as described by the President, would involve acquisition through condemnation by the Government of a broad strip of land on each side of a new highway. This land would be acquired at a value placed on it before the highway is constructed. With value enhanced by the new highway, the land could be sold at sufficient profit to meet some of the costs.

The President pointed out that the plan has been used in London in connection with the widening and extension of streets and that the theory of "excess condemnation" is well established in Europe. He pointed out that land owners along new highways ordinarily would receive considerable profit as a result of pure luck and that he believed such profits should go to the Government or the States.

Similar condemnation, he suggested, could be used along the shores of new lakes created by construction of dams. The President said, however, that he did not know whether new legislation would be required to make possible such condemnation along lakes and highways.

Blind Man Asks $20,000 in Suit

Says He and Trained Dog Were Run Down, Hurt by Automobile.

A charge that John L. Davis, a blind man, and the German police dog he had trained to lead him about both were injured when an automobile operated by Lewis E. Ryan, 3021 Sedgwick street northwest, ran them down at Seventeenth and De Sales streets northwest, was made by Davis, who lives at 1123 Seventeenth street northwest, in the District Supreme Court yesterday.

Davis complained, through his attorney, Alvin L. Newmeyer, that he was crossing the street guided by his dog when the automobile struck them. He asked $20,000 damages for the injuries to him and his dog.

Davis charged the automobile was operated negligently. He claimed that under the traffic regulations he should have been permitted right of way because there are no traffic lights at the intersection.

The petition alleged the dog had been injured seriously and its use to its master impaired.

Broadway
—Goes to Miami

By Ed Sullivan

Underneath the Miami Moon.

Miami Beach, Feb. 20.

Night and day, in this amazing community, you fancy that you hear the meallic roar of the pari-mutuel betting machines that feed on any type of currency that is printed or stamped by the United States Government. They clank night and day in this town, these iron robots that confirm Barnum's estimate of a sucker born every minute, for you find them in the afternoon at the race track where the horses run, and you find them at night where the racing dogs run.

• • • •

I have been figuring things out on a pad and arrive at some staggering totals. By the middle of March the pari-mutuel machines will have gobbled up $20,000,000 in bets here. You observe the figures and wonder whether some one was kidding when he told of an American depression, because twenty millions of dollars is an awful lot of money.

My figures are extremely conservative. The Hialeah Race Track, owned by Joseph E. Widener and a syndicate of wealthy men, announced yesterday that they believed the 45 days of the meeting would show a daily average betting total of $300,000. That means that $13,500,000 will have found its way into the metallic stomach of the Australian totalizer, which is a pari-mutuel machine with modern plumbing. The four dog tracks here will have handled $7,000,000 by the end of the season. Extra millions were fed into the robot at Tropical Park.

I've commented here before on the insatiable appetites of these pari-mutuel machines. There is no Broadway chorine who can match their ravenous appetites, and the Broadway chorine, ordering steak and potatoes, or even ordering caviar, will give you a better break for your money.

For instance, if you go to the window in pari-mutuel row at the track, where the horses race, and bet $10, the minute you lay down your money the machines take $1.20 of it. The track percentage on every dollar is 12 per cent, divided between the State and the trace track. At the dog tracks, if you bet $10, the track appropriates $1.70 of it, because the dog tracks insist on 17 per cent.

The pari-mutuel machines have huge stomachs, but they have no heart. You can amend the old saying to read that not even death and taxes are so certain as the pari-mutuels. They get theirs, hot or cold, wet or dry, and the tapeworm that is hidden in their metal stomachs is forever begging for nourishment.

• • • •

There is glamor and sharp

There are glamor and sharp color at the track where the horses race, for the race track offers greater showmanship than Ziegfeld possessed and more fascinating colors than Joseph Urban could conceive for Broadway clubs and stages. There is no sight so colorful as that of a field of thoroughbred horses rounding the turn that leads into the homestretch. The colored caps and blouses of the jockeys stretched along the necks of their lathered mounts, the cloud of dust spurting from under the flying hoofs—no artist has ever truly realized the breathless beauty and excitement of this particular moment at the race track.

Yet you find little emotion among the professionals who follow the ponies from one race track to another. Their judgment of horse and jockey is coldly analytical. "He quit," they say contempuously of a horse whose straining lungs can not suck in enough air to continue an uneven battle with a better and gamer horse. They don't like quitters, four-legged or two-legged.

• • • •

There is an old gentleman who is a regular visitor at this race track, and every other race track in the horse belt. He is badly dressed, with a ragged Panama hat covering a wild thatch of unkempt hair. Every time I've seen him he was badly in need of a shave. Before every race you find him in the paddock, and he goes from one group of men to another: "Beaver Dam," he whispered to me, "is like finding money. He can't lose today."

The next race, he had another tip just as authoritatively voiced. Ten years ago, he was a millionaire. He had private boxes at the race tracks that now tolerate him as an amiable and unwashed derelict. He used to make big bets on the races. He lost his fortune because he lost his first $100 bet. He lost his house, his home, his yacht and his money trying to win back the $100 he lost.

I asked a big bettor who he was, this old derelict. "He's crazy," said the bettor. "He thought he could beat the races." I assume that the one who told me this was perfectly sane, but I'm afraid that old P. T. Barnum was right.

Boy, 5, Hex Victim, Cuts Baby Brother With Butcher Knife

Williamsport, Pa., Feb. 20 (AP).—The mystic "Hex" flung its weird shadow over central Pennsylvania again today while authorities pushed an investigation of the slashing of a baby boy by his older brother.

Eight-month-old James Leroy Fritz is in a hospital, his forehead slashed by a butcher knife. His head also bears the unhealed scar of a penknife cut, inflicted Sunday night. Physicians said he has a fair chance for recovery.

District Attorney John C. Youngman said the baby was attacked by John Fritz, jr., 5, after the older boy had been pronounced "cured by faith" of a spell for which his father blamed "unfriendly neighbors."

A "woman witch doctor" called by the parents to their Sallasasburg home, 15 miles from here, had wrought the "cure" with a mumbled ritual, Youngman said.

Youngman disclosed his intention of appealing to the State department of health for aid in the inquiry.

Hearings Are Set Off In Boundary Dispute

Hearings of the Virginia-District of Columbia Boundary Commission were adjourned yesterday until next Thursday, when Virginia will continue its presentation of evidence.

The House Judiciary Committee this week reported favorably the resolution to give the commission another year of life. Its existence originally was scheduled to end March 1, this year.

"There is much more testimony and evidence yet to be submitted," Chairman Charles H. Brough said yesterday. "After Virginia finishes its case, the United States will be heard in rebuttal and then a number of private claimants will take the stand."

U. S. Auctions Objects Owned By Bryan Pitts

Sale of sumptuous furnishings in the winter villa of G. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board of the F. H. Smith Co., now serving a 14-year-term at Lorton on an embezzlement charge, was completed yesterday at Palm Beach, Fla., by Federal auctioneers who are seeking to satisfy income tax claims.

The sale started Monday, according to Associated Press dispatches, and consumed three days, during which winter visitors and agents of collectors vied for possession of art objects and expensive furnishings.

On Monday the income tax auctioneer sold the furnishings of the bedrooms and upper floors. On Tuesday, the heavy furniture on the first floor. Yesterday, silver, china, linen, costly draperies, paintings and contents of the wine cellar were disposed of.

Federal auctioneers refused to reveal the sum received from the sale but did admit that they had refused a blanket offer of $20,000 and that more than that sum had been realized in the first two days.

Tapestries valued at between $15,000 and $20,000 were sold for between $1,000 and $1,800, while an antique Spanish altar piece, valued at $7,500, brought $280.

Some articles claimed by Mrs. Pitts were withheld from the auction pending a ruling by J. Edwin Larson, collector of internal revenue for Florida.

Hollywood

The Exhibitors

Hollywood, Feb. 19.

PICTURE producers like to please both the critics and the exhibitors and if a flicker receives bad notices you can be certain that the producer will boast about the good business it does throughout the country. We had to take the producer at his word. That is until we started to read the statements of the exhibitors themselves in the Motion Picture Herald. Here we learn that the producer is often dishing out baloney. We learn that often the critic and the box-office agree.

For example: "It Happened One Night" is rated a fine flicker. Frank Capra, who directed it, is to receive the Academy award for the best direction and Robert Riskin, who wrote the screen play, is to receive the Oscar for the best writing job. The exhibitors have praise only, and the latest to say so is A. E. Christian, of Monticello, Ky., who writes: "The most entertaining picture we have played since we opened up three years ago . . . We had better than average business and our patrons were delighted."

• • • •

Another flicker which received fine reviews from the critics and is receiving fine notices from the exhibitors is "The Gay Divorcee," which made a picture star of Fred Astaire. M. P. Foster, of Monte Vista, Col., is a pay and play manager and he says: "Very long, but entertaining. The audience won't notice the time, and you won't need so many shorts, for you have a big show in the feature. If they don't like this, open a garage, because it's hopeless."

• • • •

THE small-town opinion of Broadway is very interesting. They look with awe toward the big street and at the same time with scorn. Exhibitor Ryland, of the Village Napoleonville, La., boasts of the fact that he played "Flirtation Walk" day and date with its debut on Broadway. "Played this even date with Broadway and was I proud?"

It is a credo in the picture business that the words New York, Manhattan, or Broadway should be avoided in titles because the sticks resent the metropolitan city. Therefore Columbia defied tradition in naming it "Broadway Bill," although this flicker didn't have anything to do with the street. This is shown clearly by Exhibitor H. J. Brown, who says: "Bad name for the West. The West thinks Broadway the nuts—so do I—but then I am a Westerner, only I have spent years on Broadway—bum place. Be sure to point out that the name applies to a horse, not a four-flusher, in your advertisements."

• • • •

The exhibitors follow the Hollywood columns closely and take advantage of news items and situations to exploit their wares. The exhibitor from Kentucky is an example of this for he declares: "I didn't expect much but got a nice surprise at the box office and the picture was O. K. . . . My patrons liked it and that usually makes me like them. Use the real life sweetheart angle of Brown and Louise."

Exhibitors who are wide awake use the gossip items for exploitation purposes. And that is why Garbo chases her leading man across the desert just before her latest flicker is to be released.

• • • •

Tim McCoy and Buck Jones are two players who never get their names on the Broadway marquees. Yet these two Western heroes are big stars throughout the small towns and often are billed above your big favorites.

First Lady Entertains Large Group

Sketches Given by Miss Best and Songs by Miss Aldini.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Mrs. Roosevelt established a precedent in the White House yesterday when she entertained a large group at luncheon followed by a musicale. Luncheon was served in the state dining room, where the table was decorated with masses of Columbia roses, sweet peas, snapdragons and maidenhair fern.

Miss Mollie A. Best gave a number of character sketches, including the "Lilly Langtry Literary Circle," and "Aunt Sally and Caroline." Miss Bianca Aldini, soprano, gave a number of selections, including "Nel cor piu non mi sento," by Paisiello; "I know a Lovely Garden," by d'Hardelot; the aria "Comme autre fois," from "The Pearl Fishers," by Bizet; "Plaisir d'Amour," by Martini; "Less Than the Cloud," by McGill, and "Il Bacio," by Arditi.

The guests included Countess van der Straten Ponthoz, wife of the Belgian Ambassador; Mme. Muriel Steele Becomes Bride Of W. G. Buck

All Saints Church in Chevy Chase Is the Scene of Ceremony.

Miss Muriel Dulany Steele, of Baltimore, Md., daughter of Mrs. Steele and the late Mr. Guy Wakeman Steele, of Westminster Md., became the bride of Mr. William Griffin Buck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Buck, of Brooklandville, Green Spring Valley, Md., yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in All Saints' Episcopal Church, Chevy Chase, Md. The Rev. Henry Teller Cocke, officiated at the ceremony which was performed in the presence of only the members of the two families. The church was effectively decorated with Easter lilies, against a background of palms and ferns.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Commander Comfort Benedict Platt, wore a gown of ivory satin, made on princess lines with a deep yoke and cuffs of point lace, a family heirloom. Her tulle veil, which was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms, extended to the end of her long train and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Alice Carter Bowie, who was maid of honor, wore a robe de style of turquoise blue flat crepe with a picture hat formed of brown ribbon. She carried a shower bouquet of varicolored spring flowers. Mr. Buck, the bridegroom's father, was best man.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Commander and Mrs. Platt, in Chevy Chase, for guests who witnessed the ceremony. The couple were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Steele, mother of the bride, who wore a gown of black satin made with a three-quarter length tunic finished with long, tight sleeves, a broad-brimmed, black velvet hat and a corsage of gardenias.

Dorothy, I can't keep my secret any longer
Last night Jim proposed. He said he couldn't be happy without seeing my smile every day. Oh, I'm so lucky! And I owe it all to you. That new way to clean teeth you told me about has really made life wonderful. It works miracles and what a fool I was to ever believe my teeth were naturally dull and discolored! Why, they now have a lustre and brightness I never dreamed they would have!

NEW WAY TO CLEAN TEETH GIVES THEM NEW BRILLIANCE AND CLEARNESS

See how it transforms teeth in 3 days

If you want the truth, go to your dentist. Ask him why your teeth look so unclean and unattractive, why the daily care you give them doesn't make them lustrous and white. His answer will be this... Germs you breathe into your mouth collect on your teeth, forming dull, stained discolored spots and causing decay. When you brush your teeth, clean off these germ-spots by using an antiseptic toothpaste like Kolynos. And in a few days your teeth will have a clearness and brilliance they probably never had before.

MONDAY: I DON'T BELIEVE ANYTHING CAN WHITEN MY TEETH. BUT I'LL TRY DOROTHY'S WAY.
TUESDAY: MY TEETH LOOK BRIGHTER ALREADY!
WEDNESDAY: JIM CAN'T TAKE HIS EYES OFF MY DAZZLING SMILE.

One of the world's most famous dental scientists developed Kolynos which embodies cleansing and whitening properties not found in ordinary preparations. As it enters your mouth it foams into every crevice between the teeth. Kills 80% to 92% of all the germs in your mouth. Removes the ugly germ-spots. Polishes every tooth surface. And cleans your teeth as only an antiseptic toothpaste can.

Now if you believe your teeth are naturally dull, yellow or stained, there's a surprise in store for you. Start using Kolynos today like you would any toothpaste or powder—with one exception. Do not dilute its effectiveness with water. Put a half-inch on a dry brush for each cleaning. After the first brushing your teeth will look and feel cleaner, brighter. Soon they will have new clearness, a gleaming whiteness that will make you smile with delight. Try it. Get a tube of antiseptic Kolynos today.

Shoppers Told Of Prosperity By Astrologer

By Ruth Anne Davis.

PROSPERITY is going to bob up and smack you in the eye during 1935 and 1936, predicts Prof. J. La Tour, astrologer, who is lecturing this week at a downtown store.

And, furthermore, he says, Hitler is riding for a fall, Mussolini is a man of destiny, Roosevelt is slated for re-election, and the United States is going to enter war in 1944. All these things and hundreds of others, explains the professor, are told by the stars and interpreted through the zodiac.

In fact, maintains the professor, there is nothing which is not told by the stars—unless, he smiled—it is the horse races, and even then an astrologer's guess might be better than yours.

Prof. La Tour not only forecasts, he explains. If you think the zodiac looks like a circus chart when you first attend the lecture, you can wager your pay check that it will have meaning when you leave. And if you read some of those books which the professor has you'll be quite in on the know, reading the stars, and finding your lucky days like a thoroughbred astrologer.

Waterprof Umbrellas.

If umbrellas become any more waterproof, we'll be taking to sea in them soon. For, after all, those with the rubber linings featured now in a local shop are hearty enough to keep out a deluge.

Not that they look this way. They don't. To all appearances they're light and fragile, but they will satisfy the most fastidious rain-braver. Underneath the silken top lies a rubber lining and let it rain, let it pour, but whosoever standeth beneath is shielded from the downpour.

Fragrant "Cocktail" Shaker.

Here's something you'd never set out to buy, for the chances are you'd never think of it until you saw it. But it's so attractively made, and the contents are so fragrant, and the purpose after all is certainly so practical, that your sales resistance begins to ebb.

What you see at first is a small cocktail shaker, built especially for two—either one drink for two people or two drinks for one. It's made of solid copper, brightly polished. If you detect the faint aroma of lilac or rose, open the shaker and you'll find that it's filled with delicate scented bath salts.

Ensemble for the Master.

Little gentlemen from 4 to 10 may have perfectly matched ensembles even though they buy each piece separately. What a time they will have shopping for slacks, polo shorts, regular shorts, coats, etc., in tweeds or woolens, either plain or checked.

The young fellow's mother will delight in selecting his wardrobe, for here she is given scope to exercise her taste. For instance, she may choose a plain coat to wear with checked shorts and then long slacks to match the coat. Maybe a checked coat, too, and then he has a four-way combination. The articles are inexpensive and of fine quality, so remember—shop early.

Quaint Oil Lamps.

Candles are notorious for the flattering light they cast. But candles are so perishable. On the other hand, small oil lamps with queer little low shades also cast a soft light, gentle to the homeliest women, and yet they last—and last.

There are a few of these on sale in a downtown store, quaint, odd little things that cost only 55 cents. Most of them have a glass chimney and metal parts in pastel colors.

Colonial Coverlets.

There's a special sale of colonial coverlets in the bedding department store. Ordinarily they sell for anywhere from $3.95 to $4.50, but now they are only $2.95.

The coverlets have authentic old patterns in soft colors ranging from blue to brown. They're available in double or single sizes.

Strictly Speaking

What About These?

1. What is the difference, if any, between accumulative and cumulative?
2. Is it proper to use affable and courteous interchangeably?

Check Here.

1. These words can be used synonomously, but there is a shade of difference in their meanings. Accumulative is defined as "serving, tending to amass, or characterized by amassing." Cumulative means "gathering volume or strength by addition or repetition, gained or acquired by accumulation; superadded."
2. These words should not be used interchangeably. Courteous (connected with manners at court) relates to good breeding, whereas affable relates to natural disposition.

Pattern No. 883.

SMALL NEED to tell mothers how difficult it is to dress the early teens! Clothes that look neither too childish nor too grown-up, that are of sturdy quality yet inexpensive—these are hard to find.

This pattern will save a shopping trip. The dress is very easy to make, and gay enough to please the ten-to-sixteen. The little jacket is cut on lines that are becoming to this awkward age. And because you make it, or have it made, it can be of good quality silk or cotton. In sizes 10 to 16. Size 12 requires 3⅞ yards of 39-inch fabric for the dress and jacket, ¼ yard of 39-inch material for contrast.

What TODAY Means

By Mary Blake.

"PISCES."

IF FEBRUARY 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:45 to 10:45 a. m., from 1:45 to 3:45 p. m., and from 8:45 to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:45 to 8:45 a. m., from 3:45 to 5:45 p. m., and from 10:45 p. m. until midnight.

Your friendship may be subjected to a very severe strain on this February 21. It might be well to remember circumstantial evidence often turns out to be unsupported by facts, so think well before accepting it.

Try to avoid having to make excuses, as only the most plausible may be accepted. Currency will possibly circulate freely in certain circles, but will be a scarce commodity in some highly specialized lines of trade, and for some home requirements. Entertainments of a social nature should prove very successful.

If a woman and February 21 is your birthday, it is likely to prove a turning point in the right direction, if you will make up your mind to regard things in an optimistic light, and will not allow discouragement to interfere with your efforts. You may receive not only important but welcomed news. Outside influences are likely to be responsible for a stroke of good luck, which is likely to come to you in an unexpected manner. Love will possibly dominate your domestic affairs in a highly satisfactory way. Secretarial work, interior decorating, office or tea room management, the concert stage and teaching are among the lines of activity in which you should do well.

If a man and February 21 is your natal day, your sense of justice, as well as your ideas of discipline, qualify you for executive or administrative work. By directing the efforts of others you can get greater results than if you try to do things yourself. Educational, factory or business management, newspaper or other forms of publication work, or chemistry may give you the opportunity to prove your real worth. Marriage should be the logical thing for you, as you would probably get a great deal of joy through it.

Renaissance Period to Be Topic.

"Literary Figures of the Late Renaissance" will be the topic for discussion at the meeting of the Columbia Chapter, Delphian Society, at 10 o'clock today at Woodward & Lothrop. Mrs. George Ellis will be the leader. Election of officers will be held.

Those who will take part in the program are Mrs. William Graham, Mrs. A. R. Horn, Mrs. H. Huntington, Mrs. C. M. Jansky, jr., Mrs. Charles Le Hew, Mrs. Maude Thatcher, Mrs. Roy C. Miller and Mrs. Wilson B. Navin.

Gifted Child Has Problems, Educator Says

College Bred Mothers Are Most Common Handicap, He Observes.

The college educated mother often allows herself to become a handicap because she seeks to realize her own frustrated ambitions vicariously through her brilliant child, Prof. Zorbaugh explained.

The mother usually had her ambitions frustrated when she found the "world was stacked against her" after leaving college, although, as a member of the first generation to come out of coeducational institutions, she had been encouraged to have the same aims and to develop the same skills as the men students.

Close Emotional Ties.

Parents constitute yet another handicap in that they usually bind the exceptionally brilliant child to them by too close emotional ties, Prof. Zorbaugh pointed out. He has found that the unusually intellectual child is usually a member of a small family; hence the tendency for too close emotional ties.

Aside from the handicaps his parents, especially his mother, present, the gifted child has a harder time than the less gifted in adjusting himself to life's problems, according to the educator.

He believes the ability to go through elementary school at the head of the class is likely to make the gifted child feel insecure when he meets equally brilliant students in high school and college. A lack of training in how to stand up under competition usually has even more pronounced effect when the youth goes out to get a job, Prof. Zorbaugh believes.

Handicapped in Vocations.

The gifted child also feels more acutely the struggle for adjustment in the vocational world, the educator has discovered.

"As you go down in the scale of intelligence," he said, "the problem of youth is finding ways of obtaining what it wants. As you go up, the problem is to decide what it wants."

Prof. Zorbaugh scored those parents who are hesitant about discussing sex problems with their children.

"The problem of achieving sex adjustments without a crippling sense of guilt is made especially difficult for the gifted adolescent because his interest in sex comes much earlier," the educator said. "We used to think that this interest was characteristic of adolescence, but now we know it comes with a certain mental level."

Seeing the Probabilities.

Much time has gone into calculations on the mathematical probabilities and permutations of bridge hands. And for many years card distributions have been figured according to the known laws of chance. In addition, there are certain probabilities that may be reckoned from bidding or responding. Upon such may depend which way to finesse.

In the teaching days of Geoffrey Mott-Smith, many hours had been devoted to a certain pupil on the subject of finesses. The student seemed to have a thorough grasp of the subject. So a practice game was arranged with another pair. The pupil became Declarer in a three notrump contract.

The opening lead knocked out Declarer's only entry. The dummy showed Hearts A K Q 10 3 2 and declarer held three small ones. After studying the hand for some time, declarer remembered the lesson on finesses and led a small heart, finessing the ten-spot. Fourth hand showed out and Mott-Smith was momentarily delighted with the success of the play. This was soon tempered by chagrin, for the pupil had finessed in opposition to all the laws of chance.

"Don't you believe my teachings?" inquired Mott-Smith at the conclusion of the hand.

"Oh, yes," the pupil replied. "I know you know your stuff, but this fellow pulled the fourth card from the end. Now, whom was I to believe?"

Of course, Mr. Mott-Smith's pupil had gleaned his information in a manner which is specifically frowned upon, but I attribute the pupil's disregard of ethics to ignorance.

Glittering Gold.

"All is not gold that glitters," says the old proverb, and West in today's hand would have done well to remember it. Doubles which appear sound are sometimes wrecked on the rocks of distribution, and West was the victim of one of these disasters.

South Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ 9 ♡ 10 5 4 ◇ A 9 6 ♣ A Q 10 5 4 3
♠ Q 10 6 5 3 ♡ Q 9 6 ◇ K 5 ♣ K 7 6	N W E S	♠ 4 ♡ K 8 3 2 ◇ Q J 10 7 4 3 2 ♣ 9
	♠ A K J 8 7 2 ♡ A J 7 ◇ 8 ♣ J 8 2

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♣	2◇
2♠	Pass	2NT(1)	Pass
4♠(2)	Dbl.(3)	Pass	Pass(4)
Pass

1—Not an especially good bid with a singleton in partner's suit, but North felt that it was necessary to make some constructive bid at this point.
2—Never dreaming that his partner has bid notrump with a singleton spade, South decided that it was easier to make ten tricks at a suit with his distribution, than nine tricks at notrump.
3—West can not be criticized for thinking that South could not make four spades, particularly with a partner who has overcalled.
4—East foresaw impending disaster, but feared that a rescue at five diamonds would be too expensive.

The Play.

West opened the King of diamonds, dummy winning with the Ace. The nine of trumps was allowed to ride to West's ten, and declarer then ruffed the diamond return. The Ace of spades disclosed the sad news about the trump situation, but nothing daunted, declarer then forced out the Queen. Fortunately for South, West could not lead another diamond, the heart return was taken by the Ace, and all the trumps were taken out. The club finesse sucessful, the rest of the tricks were taken in dummy, declarer scoring a doubled game with an overtrick.

Cherry Dishes For Tomorrow Are Suggested

George Washington Pie and Deep Dish Pudding Among Favorites.

By Dorothea Duncan.

TOMORROW is the day for cherry dishes. February 22 always demands a cherry dish of some sort as an honor to the memory of George Washington.

Choose one of the following dishes to serve at dinner.

George Washington Pie.

3 egg whites
¾ cup sugar
10 white soda crackers, medium size
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon almond extract
½ cup chopped nut meats
8 marshmallows, cut in quarters

Beat the egg whites until stiff. Then add the sugar a little at a time and beat constantly while adding. Roll the crackers very fine and mix the baking powder thoroughly with the cracker crumbs. Fold this cracker crumb mixture, the almond extract, the nut meats and the marshmallows into the beaten egg whites. Place in a well greased 9-inch layer cake tin and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for approximately ½ hour. When serving, cut like pie and top with sweetened whipped cream to which maraschino cherries, cut in small pieces, have been added.

Deep Dish Cherry Pudding.

1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 cups canned sour cherries, drained
3 cups water and cherry juice
1 tablespoon lemon jice
2 tablespoons melted butter

Combine ingredients in a greased baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 30 minutes, or until done, stirring well every 10 minutes, and again when removing from the oven. This recipe serves eight. The pudding may be served with or without the addition of cream.

Use a one-two-three-four cake recipe, or any white or yellow cake recipe that will make three 9-inch layers. When the cake has cooled, put the layers together with a plain white icing. Seven-minute icing is suggested because it is always a success and has a soft snowy appearance. Frost the top and sides of the cake with the same icing. When the frosting has become firm make a cherry tree on the top as follows:

Dip a toothpick in melted chocolate and trace the trunk and branches of a tree on the top of the cake. Use halves of maraschino cherries for the cherries and place them against the branches and spearmint candy leaves for the foliage. The cake may be placed in the center of the table as a decoration during the main part of the meal.

Cherry Pie Glace.

2½ cups (1 can) red cherries, drained
1 package cherry flavored gelatin
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
2¼ cups warm cherry juice and water
1 baked 9-inch pie shell

Combine cherries and sugar. Dissolve gelatin in warm cherry juice and water. Add salt and pour over cherries. Chill. When slightly thickened, turn into cold pie shell. Chill until firm. A large white hatchet or several small ones may be made to decorate the top of this pie, by piping whipped cream from a pastry tube.

Dorothea Duncan will be glad to answer your culinary problems. Write to her, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope, in care of The Washington Post.

Rise in U. S. Sugar Consumption Prompts Warning From Expert

Overuse of Sweets Puts Too Great Strain on Body; Insulin Reaction May Occur and Diabetes Develop.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

LUCIUS SENECA, a famous Roman philosopher, said: "Man does not die; he kills himself." This is emphasized by the rising use of sugar, particularly in America. E. V. McCollum and J. E. Becker make the statement that in 1812 the average American citizen used 15 pounds of sugar per year, whereas the present-day consumption is more than 100 pounds a year per person. It is not the fact that sugar is used that is dangerous, but that more sugar than is necessary is consumed, thus placing an added load upon the sugar burning agency of the body, namely, insulin.

Insulin is not a substance that can be used with impunity. In the normal body a carefully regulated mechanism produces just enough and not too much.

An insulin reaction occurs whenever too much insulin is taken or whenever there is to little carbohydrate upon which the insulin can act. There is a reduction in the amount of sugar in the blood to considerably below the normal level, and symptoms develop that must be treated promptly. The patient is pale and faint; the pupils of the eyes are usually dilated, and there is extreme nervousness, sweating and trembling. If the reaction is exceedingly severe the patient may become unconscious. Symptoms quickly disappear if the individual will eat two or three lumps of sugar, drink the juice of an orange, or take a tablespoonful or two of corn sirup. As a precaution against too low blood sugar, every diabetic should carry a few lumps of sugar in his pocket.

Occasionally acidosis is associated with diabetes. This is because proteins and fats are burned more rapidly than carbohydrates, resulting in the production of certain organic acids. Sometimes this condition develops quickly and leads to unconsciousness (coma). The usual symptoms are headache, nausea and vomiting, rapid and shallow breathing, and drowsiness. In any diabetic in whom the symtoms of drowsiness are unduly pronounced, examination for diacetic acid should be made. In unconsciousness of any type associated with this disease a physician should be called promptly, because an emergency exists. The patient should be placed in bed, the body kept warm, and an enema given.

Patients with diabetes must observe special hygienic precautions: (1) Care should be used to keep the bowels normal; (2) there must be a daily bath, and the teeth and mouth kept exceptionally clean; (3) scrupulous attention must be given the feet, the toes, and the toenails; (4) exercise must be taken regularly, at the same time guarding against overfatigue; (5) anything that tends to lower resistance should be avoided, as well as all types of infections.

SHADOWS in PARADISE

By INEZ WALLACE

Helen Burns meets with nothing but discouragement when she first tries to break into the movies in Hollywood. But shortly after her marriage to Jim Nelson, cameraman, she achieves overnight success. Jim is made a director and buys Helen a magnificent home. Helen goes on location and stays in an isolated log cabin with her maid. One night in a thunderstorm, Angelo Rocci, an actor, appears at the cabin, says his car has broken down, and insists on spending the night on an extra cot. Jim appears in the morning and refuses to understand. When Helen returns home, he is gone.

I WANDERED aimlessly through the great, empty rooms, my feet making no sound on the velvet carpets, and jumped at my own reflection in the full-length mirror in the hall. Even the servants moved noiselessly, like people living in a ghost world. It might help to unpack my things but, when I went upstairs, somebody had thought of that, too, so all I could do was come back down again. If only the doorbell would ring, or the telephone. Out on the street, motors were hurrying toward town to the theaters, parties. Everyone had a place to go and friends to go with them, but I——

I had to get Jim back! Of course, that was the thing to do. What did I care about my pride? Eating humble pie would be heaven compared to this awful loneliness. Yes, sir. I'd send for him and when I got my arms around him, I'd never let him go.

But who would I send? Acquaintances I had plenty but my circle of real friends was pitifully small. Of course, I could call Lawson. But I hadn't quite liked what he had said about not blaming Jim for his attitude. No, he wouldn't do. Men always hang together anyhow.

Vera Was Choice.

I ought to send a woman. Of course — Vera! Why hadn't I thought of her in the first place? Jim liked her. They were old friends. She'd be just the person!

It was a relief to hear her voice on the wire and when she walked into my living room her very presence radiated confidence.

"That kid must be losing his mind," she scowled thoughtfully, as I talked. "If he thinks you'd twotime any man, he's crazy. Well, don't worry. I'll bring him back—no matter who I have to kill. Just sit tight. I only hope he's at the club."

"Why not telephone him?"

"Nope. Too easy to turn me down that way. I'll go down. Read a book while I'm gone—great for the nerves."

After I had let her out the side door and watched her car swing around the curve to the street I went back to the library. Books lined the walls, reaching straight to the ceiling.

Mission Had Failed.

Then a title caught my eye. Maid of Lyons. Although it was two hours later that the doorbell rang, I wasn't conscious of another thing until Vera stood there under the porch light alone.

I knew before she spoke that she had failed. Not since the first day I met her had I seen her look so serious. "This thing's thicker than I thought," she began, sinking into a chair and lighting a cigarette. "I've been with him all this time and it's a good thing I went instead of you. Now listen, Helen, Jim's not coming back—not now, anyhow. I've talked for two hours and I know the League of Nations can't change his mind. So the only dignified thing for you to do is accept the situation and wait. That'll have to be your cue—a waiting game. That is, if you want him back. Personally, I'm so darn mad at him right now, I could kill him—but then, I'm not in love with him."

"But how can I go on alone? What'll I do?"

"Work. That's the cure-all for every ailment in the world. From a practical standpoint, you're not so badly off. You've a long contract and a swell place to live——"

"I won't stay here——"

Amazing Invitation.

It did. Two weeks later, I came home from the studio to find a message from my leading man. Would I phone him before 6? Now, what could he want? I'd left him only an hour ago at the studio—we were still shooting "The Canyon of Gold" and he had said nothing about my calling him. Oh, well.

"How's chances for stepping out with your good-looking, leading man?" he began the moment I had him on the wire. "I thought it'd be swell to have dinner and then drop around and call on some of the gang. No serious drinking, angel. I know you don't like it."

"Are you trying to be funny?" I asked, coldly. "You know perfectly well that I'm married. What is this?"

There was a dead silence for a minute. I thought the lines had gone dead. Then, in a quieter tone, I'm awfully sorry, Helen, really. I thought your marriage was definitely off. I'm not carrying tales but I'd like to justify myself. After all, I have to work with you and I want your respect. You see, it just happens that every night for the past week, I've had dancing dates at the hot spots around town and, every night except one, I've run into Jim Nelson. I naturally thought—well, you see what I mean."

"Can't he go dancing if he wishes?" I asked weakly.

"Sure, but you see he was with the same girl every night—and she happens to be your worst competition on the lot—Winnie Green."

"So Jim was running around with Winnie Green. No wonder he'd been so strong in his defense of her. A great artist! Why hadn't he just said he was in love with her and let it go at that? Why had he bothered to come round to the hospital and bring me back—to this? These bitter cogitations were interrupted by the butler bringing in a card marked: "S. Shapiro, Attorney at Law."

"Mrs. Nelson?" the lawyer asked from the doorway.

"Yes."

He was an elderly man with a Vandyke beard and it aggravated me, somehow, to observe that he looked quite reliable.

Lawyer Was Explicit.

"I represent your husband in this —er—unfortunate affair," he said, as I motioned him to a chair. "Of course, Mrs. Nelson, we are endeavoring to get this entire matter settled as quietly and expediently as possible. Owing to the prominence of both parties——"

"Yes," I replied, as he looked at me questioningly. "Well, there won't be an trouble with me. You may tell my husband, Mr. Shapiro, that I'm not the type to try to hang on to a man who no longer wants me. I'm as anxious to have it over as he is."

"That's fine—fine," he agreed, obviously relieved. "And now as to a few details. You are aware, of course, that it takes a year in this State for a decree to become final. During that time you are to have absolute freedom, just as though you were not married. Mr. Nelson expects nothing else. Now as to the settlement. It is Mr. Nelson's wish that you continue to live in this house and, with that in mind, he has turned the deed over to you. If you will mention to your lawyer——"

"I have no lawyer and I don't want the house. I don't want anything that doesn't belong to me."

A Generous Offer.

"Especially if you are not to be represented by counsel, may I suggest, Mrs. Nelson, that you would be making a grave error in declining Mr. Nelson's offer? You need have no feeling about it from the point of pride. There is a mortgage of some some thousands left to be paid, and he will allow you to take care of that. It will all be covered in the papers I am drawing up. This house suits you," he added, with a smile. "In your position, you require a suitable background and, with your handsome salary, you can easily keep it up."

"Why is he giving me this place? I want you to be candid."

"I don't know. He said something about wanting you to be taken care of, but he feels that in view of the —er—evidence in the case it will be unnecessary for him also to pay up the mortgage."

"I see." Then, as an after-thought, "I wonder why he doesn't live here himself?"

"I would never have brought it up, Mrs. Nelson, but now you mention it, I suppose you know that Mr. Nelson will not be a bachelor long after he gets his decree. Unfortunately, in your very interesting profession, there appears to be no secrets and, if I may have the temerity to say so, it would be better taste for all concrened, for you to continue living here than for Mr. Nelson to bring another woman into your home."

That settled it. "I'll sign the paper," I said promptly. "Where is it?"

Lawson Was Worried.

I was late at the studio next morning and I expected to find Lawson fuming, but he wasn't even on the set.

"He wants you in his office," the assistant director called when he saw me. "Better make up first. We'll be ready in 20 minutes—that is, if you two are," he added significantly.

Maybe it was because I was beginning to feel numb that the worried look on Lawson didn't impress me this morning as it usually would have.

"What's the matter now?" I asked, sitting on his desk with my feet hanging off. "If you're going to tell me those rushes yesterday were no good, all I can say is I'm not surprised. Honestly, Lawson, hadn't I better just quit and let you find another leading woman? It's not cricket, you know, for me to mess things up for you just because my own life has suddenly gone cockeyed."

Bad News Disclosed.

"No—no, Helen. Don't suggest such a thing. We'll come through all right, my child—but I have a hard blow for you this morning. That's why I've called you in here, instead of telling you on the set. Mind now, no hysterics."

"Get right on with it. Nothing can be worse than what's already happened."

"Not worse, perhaps," he said, musingly. "But different. You see, Helen, you've had a bad break in your private life, but whether you realize it or not, till now your career has gone swimmingly. But this hits the career. Take it easy now, my dear."

"I know—I'm fired."

"No. But Winnie Green leaves next week for France to star in 'Maid of Lyons' and your husband is going with her and will direct her production. Rather neat, eh?"

I nearly fell off the desk.

FERA Undertaking Gives Women Out of Work Chance to Practice Their Professions

Projects Help Morale, Says Chloe Owings

By Virginia Lee Warren.

EVERY TIME cotton is plowed under or hogs slaughtered to stabilize markets there is talk of waste.

Yet when an unemployed teacher is put to work making mattresses so she can obtain a subsistence wage on work relief, little thought is given to the waste of skill and professional knowledge. The only concern felt by most persons is whether the school teacher should be given direct relief or put on work relief.

But over at the Federal Emergency Relief Administration is a tall, blue-eyed woman with level gaze who realizes the importance of conserving skills. And by skills she means anything from canning apple butter and making beds to painting murals. The tall, blue-eyed woman is Chloe Owings. She is assistant director of the Woman's Work Division.

It is not enough for Miss Owings that women be permitted to earn their budget deficiencies. She is convinced it means as much to their morale for them to do the work for which they have been trained as to work for the relief they receive from the Government.

Chance Given the Jobless.

And so she has proudly helped the FERA reopen little red schoolhouses, establish hygiene centers and nursery schools, and set up book-mending rooms in libraries because those projects give teachers, nurses and librarians a chance to keep alive their skill in their particular professions.

"We've managed to find jobs for women along every line of business," Miss Owings said yesterday at her office in the Walker Johnson Building. "That doesn't mean we've put all the nurses at nursing. But at least we've put a good many of them back in their profession. We've even found work for beauty parlor operators. At first we didn't think we could do much for them. Beauty is considered a luxury, you know, and we only pretend to meet subsistence needs."

Out in Joplin, Mo., Miss Owings explained, an abandoned beauty shop was reopened and out-of-work beauty operators were hired to teach women on relief how to shampoo their hair, how to care for their skin and nails, even how to bathe.

"The improvement in the morale of those women has been as great as the improvement in their personal appearnace," Miss Owings said. "We found that when a woman learned how to keep herself well groomed on little money, she also kept her children and her house clean. The neighbors then followed her example so that a whole community became a more attractive and self-respecting place. And the out-of-work beauty operators were a lot better off earning their relief subsistence by shampooing and manicuring than by canning tomatoes or making overalls."

Housekeeping Aid.

The projects that thrill Miss Owings most are the visiting housekeeper and housekeeping aid. Under the visiting housekeeper plan, women who are good homemakers but who are on relief are sent into the homes of other families on relief to teach them how to make the best use of limited resources.

"The ingenuity displayed is nothing short of marvelous," Miss Owings said. "Kitchen cabinets have been made out of orange crates. Drapes have been made and furniture has been upholstered with burlap bags. Chairs have been made out of nail kegs and small barrels. It's wonderful to see how willing the people are to work with whatever materials they can find and how proud they are of their poor little homes."

The visiting housekeeper also teaches the blundering homemaker how to prepare inexpensive but nourishing meals, how to market, can and preserve. In many villages the homemakers hold open meetings in church basements, in schoolrooms, or wherever they can find a place.

"With the visiting housekeeper in charge, recipes and ideas are swapped and the women enjoy themselves as much as if they were at a bridge party," Miss Owings smiled. "In the small communities women not on relief often come to the meetings, too. This is splendid. It takes away any feeling of inferiority the woman on relief might have."

Housekeepers' Instructions.

The housekeeper aid plan provides for an experienced homemaker to go into the home of a family on relief and do the housework while the mother is ill or while she is on a temporary job.

Instructions to the housekeeper who goes into another's home include:

"Remember at all times that you are subject to the family's wishes and instructions. Do not wait to be told what to do; try to see what is needed. Do not talk about your own affairs, nor inquire into those of the family. Do not indulge in neighborhood gossip."

The visiting housekeeper and housekeeper aid projects now in operation in 33 States have absorbed a great many women ordinarily classed as untrained, Miss Owings explained.

"You see, at least 50 per cent of the women on work relief have no special training," she continued. "So, in addition to conserving skills our problem has been to find work for persons who have no particular skill. That's why we established sewing rooms and canning factories long before we set up the visiting housekeeper and housekeeping aid. Almost any woman can be fitted into one of those two projects."

Projects Thought Up.

Something new is always bobbing up for the women to do. If it doesn't the heads of the Women's Work Division think up something. Recently some poultry concerns in Kansas offered to turn over to them all their chicken feathers. Immediately women were put to work getting the feathers ready for pillows. The pillows are being distributed among families who have been without any for a couple of years.

"Please understand that none of these work relief products is sold in the open market," Miss Owings said. "We aren't competing with manufacturers. We are only making it possible for people to have simple things they can't afford to buy."

The most recent project to be thought up by the heads of the Women's Work Division concerns poison ivy. It calls for women who are immune to the poison to rid parks and roadsides of the plant.

Here is a typical family on work relief. The mother, as head of the house, is given enough work so she can earn the subsistence needs of herself and her children. It is into such homes as this that the visiting housekeeper goes to help with the housework. The visiting housekeeper is also on work relief.

Mother of Two Sons Wishes to Help "Lost" in Solving His Problem.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I have just read the letter signed "Lost" in your column last Saturday by a youth of 16. I am a widowed mother of two sons and had both of them pass through what this boy has written you about.

* * * *

I would like to help that child. In fact, I know I could. When a boy gets like that one has to be sympathetic and kind and let him drop out of school. I do not want my name mentioned except to him and his parents.

* * * *

It hurts me to the heart when I read that boy's letter because I know what he is suffering and no one can help him except one who has gone through that experience with one's own sons. Very truly yours, N. L. D.

Real Help Held Out.

DEAR N. L. D.: I shall be only too glad to put you in touch with the boy who signed himself "Lost," if he will provide me with his name and address, which he failed to include in his letter printed last Saturday.

* * * *

In answering his letter, I suggested he talk with Miss Bertie Backus, assistant superintendent of District Public Schools and head of a character education project in this city. To date, I understand he has not done so.

* * * *

I well appreciate the hesitancy a boy might feel toward taking his dissatisfaction with the fruits of the public school system to one of the heads of that system for discussion. I can assure him, however, that Miss Backus has no desire to "shanghai" a maladjusted student now past compulsory school age, into submitting to formal education against his will. Her one desire would be to help him get the proper perspective and grasp on his future.

* * * *

I am sorry, N. L. D., that you insisted on my leaving all identifying data out of your letter. Uncensored, it was a much more compelling document than it now stands. However, I will say, for the boy's information, that this woman who understands his problems, sympathizes with his distress, and longs to help him, is the widow of one of America's outstandingly distinguished men. I believe she might be of real assistance to him. M. H.

New Consumer Chairman to Carry on Policies of Predecessor.

GENUINE RELIEF and enthusiasm filled the atmosphere in NRA circles yesterday over the appointment of Mrs. Emily Newell Blair as chairman of the Consumers Advisory Board. Every one, from technical experts to office boys, apparently approved the selection.

Ever since the death of Mrs. Mary Rumsey, former head, early in December, conjecture has been rife as to her successor and as to the future of the board.

Mrs. Blair began as a charter member of the executive committee in 1933, and has had a hand ever since in formulating and directly the policies of the Consumers Board. Hard a work at her desk when the news broke, she looked up long enough to smile at photographers and reporters. Then with a brief statement she resumed her duties.

"Challenge," She Remarks.

"It's a challenge," she said simply, "that I accept with pleasure. The general policy of the board, of course, is inherent in its functions. Mrs. Rumsey's program will be carried on in its entirety. I hope, however, as the opportunity arises to make some contributions of my own."

More loquacious was Miss Mary Dewson, another original member of the board and chairman of the general advisory council of the Democratic National Committee.

"Mrs. Blair is ideal for the position," she declared warmly. A happier choice could not have been made. She has not only pioneered in the field of consumers' needs, but has contributed vastly to the present emergency set-up. She, more than anyone else mentioned for the post, represents the genuine housewife who is the ultimate consumer. This interest she has championed in her speaking, writing and organization work for years.

Incidentally, Mrs. Blair once wrote a book of advice to young housekeepers. Entitled, "Creation of a Home," the publication which covers many of the consumer problems from the viewpoint of the home-maker, is used as a text book in college home economic courses.

Father's Political Methods Are Good Enough for Her, Reba Doughton Says

Capitol Hill "Thrilling" to Daughter of House Veteran.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

ALL this talk about how politic is becoming a science and how candidates don't get votes the way they used to is lost on attractive Reba Doughton, daughter of Representative Robert L. Doughton, of North Carolina.

"If I were running for office today, I'd go about it exactly the same way my father did when he first went into politics," she said yesterday across a table in the House dining room.

Very well. But how, exactly, had he gone about it? How had the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee managed to stay in Congress for 26 consecutive years? If it didn't take a knowledge of "political science"—new or otherwise—to stay afloat through that many administrations, what did it take?

This barrage of questions didn't baffle the daughter of "Farmer Bob" Doughton. Apparently she was used to answering them.

Knows His Constituents.

"In the first place, he knows almost every voter in his district well enough to call him by his first name," she said. "Knows him well enough to understand many of his problems. And he lends a helping hand rather than depending on a handshake and a backslap to turn the trick. Realizing he is a public servant, he actually tries to serve. Any politician who really does that needn't worry so much about votes.

"Furthermore, Dad doesn't make a lot of campaign promises unless he plans to keep them," she went on. "That's how he has won the confidence of his constituents. That's how he has stayed in office year after year when many of his contemporaries have fallen by the wayside."

So, in view of that, even if politics is becoming more scientific and if the method of winning votes is, as some persons suggest, changing—Miss Doughton thinks she will stand by the method her father has used with such marked success.

"Heard Politics" All Her Life.

Did this mean she planned to enter politics herself someday?

"I don't know about that," she said. "I'll admit I'm interested. How could I help being so? As far back as I can remember, my father was always running for office. I've heard politics at home all my life."

Yet she hasn't made up her mind to enter politics officially, because, in her words, "I think I'll stand by a while and watch developments. Maybe five years from now, nobody will want to be in public office," she laughed.

She declined to explain what she really meant by this statement, but did say, "It probably won't get that bad. And as things stand now, there's nothing that interests me more than politics in general and the House of Representatives in particular."

She confessed, however, she hadn't always been as interested in Congress as she is now. When her family first moved to Washington, she took her father's position simply as a matter of course, chiefly because she was interested in other things—school work, chiefly.

Then after graduation from Central High School and, later, Gunston Hall, there was more education that had to be attended to. So she went to the North Carolina College for Women and from there to Columbia University.

But within the last two years she has discovered the most fascinating place in Washington is Capitol Hill. In order to observe congressional happenings at closer range, in fact, she has become an unofficial member of her father's office staff. ("Unofficial" because she isn't on the pay roll.)

"I've found out it gets more thrilling up here the longer you stay around," she said. "I enjoy it more every day."

Harris & Ewing.

If she ever goes into politics, Miss Reba Doughton, daughter of Representative Robert L. Doughton, of North Carolina, will follow the same "method" her father has used to stay in Congress 24 consecutive years.

Child Chats

By Alice Fox Pitts.

ONLY THE PURIST in speech objects unalterably to slang, for it is commonly used in this informal age, and some of it eventually finds its way into our accepted language. But most children, and many adults, overdo the use of slang.

This is a pity because the person who uses slang phrases to excess loses the power to express himself adequately. To him everything is either "swell" or "lousy." The dictionary offers dozens of words to denote approbation or disapproval, each with its own shade of meaning. They all should be included in a good vocabulary, but they won't if a child is permitted to use a currently popular slang phrase instead.

To ask a child to eliminate all slang from his conversation would be futile, since he doubtless associates with classmates who use it constantly. But it is not asking too much of him to omit it, let us say, at the dinner table. During one hour of the day, make a special endeavor to use good English. Bar "swell" and "katzy" and "okeydoke" and let the children develop their vocabulary by using better words in their place.

Sheer Fabrics Are Favored For Evenings

Yards of cobwebby creations from the charm spinning looms of American and French designers foam around the sandaled feet of the smart young things.

At a St. Valentine ball four out of five of the ensembles were in sheer fabrics. Pale laces were in the majority, with pastel-hued chiffons a close second and mousseline the material for many of the more romantic models.

High on the list of gowns worn was an intricately designed affair of chiffon, like a bunch of spring violets. The hue of tropical orchids at the skirt swirled in graduated ruffles that paled to a pinky lavender at the knee, continuing to a wood violet blue for the bodice.

White chiffon with silver is another prime favorite. One debutante appeared at a Valentine celebration in a gown of this bride-like material that frothed into a slender plaited train attached at the waist with a spray of gardenias. Silver straps crossed at the back to form a girdle that tied with streamers at the front of the bodice.

A gown of stiffened mousseline in lemon yellow had a panel encrusted in tiny silver stars that floated at the back.

Wellesley Women To Join Expedition

Geneva, N. Y., Feb. 21 (AP).—The distinction of selection as one of two Wellesley College women permitted for the first time to join a Princeton University archaeological expedition has come to Miss Gladys K. Baker of this city.

She will sail February 20 for Antioch as the expedition's numismatist and cataloguer.

She will be accompanied by Miss Margaret Surre, a cataloguer in the Farnsworth Museum, and Prof. W. Alexander Campbell of Wellesley College art department, who has been appointed director of the expedition.

Miss Baker was graduated in 1932 and since then has included in her post-graduate work the cleaning and cataloguing of 1,049 coins collected by two expeditions to Agora at Athens, Greece, of which she was a member.

Chicago Union Refuses to End Clothing Strike

U. S. Mediation Proposal Is Rejected; Coal Walkout Violence Flares.

Chicago, Feb. 20 (AP).—A spokesman for the employers proposed Federal mediation of a garment-makers' strike today, but officials of the Chicago unit of the Cotton Goods Workers Union elected to continue their walkout indefinitely.

The union claimed 10,000 employes had answered the strike call this morning and that "every shop in town is crippled." Manufacturers asserted their plants continued to operate with no letdown in production. Pickets carrying red-lettered placards paraded before 28 factories in support of their demands for pay increases and union recognition.

Meanwhile, the third volley of shots in a 24-hour period was fired in the strike of the Coal Teamsters Union. New threats were hurled by roving bands of hoodlums, despite extraordinary police precautions.

Fire on Fuel Truck.

A. J. Schanfarber, an attorney for the Central Cotton Garment Manufacturers Association, advanced the suggestion for Government intervention in the garment workers' strike.

Eluding the vigilance of 100 detective squads protecting coal deliveries a carload of vandals sprayed a fuel truck with five shots. The driver was uninjured.

Coal yards throughout the city were guarded by patrolmen. Six thousand officers were ready to meet any emergency. Thugs attempting to enforce the strike launched Monday by the coal teamsters union rode through western suburbs, warning drivers they would "get the works" if they remained on duty.

Under the wary eyes of police fuel was delivered on schedule.

Strikers and Guards Clash.

Cleveland, Feb. 20 (AP).—Strikers and guards at the Ohio Rubber Co., where a strike is in progress, clashed today in front of a school, terrifying hundreds of school children.

The disturbance was the latest of a series that started early today, the second day of the walkout of 400 union workers who are asking a system of seniority rights and abolition of a company union.

Three pickets were injured and three were arrested in a disturbance earlier between company guards and pickets.

11 Named for Jury In Lamson Retrial

Clash on Evidence Halted by San Jose Judge.

San Jose, Calif., Feb. 20 (AP).—Seven men and four women were tentatively acceptable as jurors in the second wife murder trial of David A. Lamson today after a clash of attorneys had enlivened the routine proceedings.

Defense Counsel Edwin McKenzie and Deputy District Attorney A. P. Lindsay became disputants over the relative weight of direct and circumstantial evidence, but were halted by Judge R. R. Syer.

McKenzie, outside the courtroom, said he would call at least 10 medical experts from Pacific Coast cities to testify in support of the defense theory that Mrs. Lamson, whose body was found in the bathtub of the Lamson home on Stanford University campus May 30, 1933, died of injuries received in a fall.

Croft Denies Seeking State Hospital Post

Waynesboro, Pa., Feb. 20 (Spl.). Reports that he was an applicant for appointment as medical director of the Pennsylvania State Sanatorium at Mount Alto were denied today by Dr. John Walker Croft, Burgess of Waynesboro. Dr. R. H. McCutcheon has resigned.

Dr. Croft said, "I have never discussed the matter with any one in authority and have never been an applicant for the post." He further stated that he would not consider the appointment should it be given him, owing to his medical, civic and industrial connections in Waynesboro.

Schoolgirl Is Killed, 3 Injured in Crash

Washington, Ind., Feb. 20 (AP).—One girl was killed, another is in a critical condition and two other pupils were hurt when two school buses collided near here today. One bus carried 18 passengers while the other was empty.

Laverne Rodimel, 13, died from a skull fracture. Louise Waggoner, 13, suffered the loss of her left eye and the side of face was crushed. Delema Bennett, 15, received injuries to her back, and Marjorie Bennett, 14, a broken shoulder.

Strange as it seems, the fighting power of all the ships in Dewey's fleet at Manila was not equal to that of one modern battleship. Dewey's fleet included no battleships, his biggest ships being cruisers. He had a total of nine ships in his fleet, carrying 131 guns and manned by 1,678 sailors. The Spanish fleet destroyed by him in the famous battle consisted of 10 vessels armed with 120 guns and carrying 1,796 men.

Today either of these fleets would be ineffectual against a single big modern battleship. Gunnery has improved to such an extent that the modern ship could lie out of range of the fleet and shell it at will.

Mental effort calls for very little actual energy, according to research conducted by the Carnegie Institution. Brain workers, contrary to a once popular belief, do not require as much food as manual workers, nor is there any basis for the often heard statement that brain workers require food that is particularly rich in phosphorous.

Experiments show that it takes much more actual energy to do light housework than heavy thinking. For example, the five minutes or so required to dust or sweep a college professor's study takes more energy than an hour of intense manual work.

Fireman Perishes In Mystery Blaze; Film Actors Flee

Hollywood, Feb. 20 (AP).—A mysterious fire in which one fireman lost his life burned the top off the fashionable Voltaire apartment building today, routed several movie colonists and made a real-life reporter of Lee Tracy, who has played newspaper roles on the screen.

Two firemen were injured.

Driving by, Tracy saw smoke puffing from the windows. He telephoned a newspaper office. He was instructed to get more information and "phone back."

Before 11 fire companies could extinguish the blaze, damage estimated at nearly $150,000 was done to the $400,000 building on a west Hollywood hillslope.

Firemen E. W. Wood and Curtis Dillon fell from the steep roof of the French Norman structure into a clump of bushes 100 feet below.

They were found 40 minutes later and taken with Fireman Lee McIntyre, a victim of minor burns, to a hospital. Wood died shortly afterward and Dillon's condition was reported critical.

Quadrangle Divorce Action Brings Blushes to One Wife

Los Angeles Feb. 20 (AP).—Mrs. Walter W. Emerson, one angle of a quadrangle divorce suit involving herself, her husband and Mr. and Mrs. Barton Sewell, blushingly testified today she had been indiscreet with Sewell, but insisted her husband knew and gave his consent.

Her testimony was given before Superior Judge Ben B. Lindsey, former Denver jurist and author of numerous books and articles on marital problems.

Mrs. Emerson took the stand after a private detective had described a raid on the Emerson home during which he said Mrs. Emerson and Sewell were found together in the small hours of the morning.

Emerson, an actor-writer, sued Mrs. Emerson for divorce, naming Sewell, wealthy sportsman, as co-respondent. Mrs. Emerson filed a countersuit, asking $250 a month alimony and custody of their children and naming Mrs. Sewell as co-respondent.

In an answer, Sewell asserted he received Emerson's permission to associate with Mrs. Emerson. Mrs. Sewell, in her answer, made a complete denial.

Hauptmann's Lawyers Plan Peace Parley

Meet Today in Attempt to Settle Differences in Appeal Fight.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 20 (AP).—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's four lawyers will meet here tomorrow to try to straighten out their differences and decide on the next move in the appeal from the death sentence for the kidnap-killing of the Lindbergh baby.

The conference will either close the breach in the ranks of the lawyers or widen it, probably beyond repair. Should Edward J. Reilly disagree with C. Lloyd Fisher and Frederick A. Pope on the next action to be taken, Egbert Rosencrans, third of the New Jersey counsel, has indicated he will side with the Brooklyn man.

Pope, meanwhile, is preparing the writ of error which he will mail to the clerk of the court of errors and appeals. A certified copy will be sent to Warden Mark O. Kimberlin of the State prison and this will automatically stay Hauptmann's execution, now fixed for the week of March 18, until the appeal is argued.

Gov. Harold G. Hoffman has received 124 letters to date containing pleas for a new trial for Hauptmann or commutation of the death sentence to life imprisonment. Two of the writers said they had dreams which proved Hauptmann's innocence.

Col. Kimberlin visited Hauptmann in his death cell for the first time today, talked with him for ten minutes, and later said the prisoner was eating and sleeping well.

"Hauptmann is perfectly healthy and assures me he is feeling all right," the warden said. "He looks well, and smiles often."

Hauptmann, he said, has been visited several times by the Rev. John Goorley, prison chaplain. He has been given a Bible, and in his cell he also has a box of cigars and a package of matches.

School Taxes Due for Rise In Maryland

By Laurence F. Stunts
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 20.—A threat of higher school taxes hovered over the General Assembly today, while sentiment against a sales tax gathered, and school teachers and oystermen saw a gleam of hope in other bills introduced.

Higher school tax rates in all southern Maryland counties and in five other Western Shore counties will be necessary under the budget submitted by Gov. Harry W. Nice, according to figures given to the House ways and means committee by Dr. Albert S. Cook, State superintendent of schools.

Dr. Cook was called before the committee for questioning on the school items in the budget. Yesterday he revealed that the reduction in the census and attendance fund would raise tax rates in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties. Today's figures show that Allegany, Frederick and Washington Counties would also be forced to raise their levies by this budget reduction.

Increases Necessary.

Allegany will get $23,021 less from the State than last year, pushing the tax rate up by 3.1 cents. Frederick will get $16,464 less, with a consequent increase of 3.12 cents. Washington's share in the fund will be $19,924 less than last year, and the tax rate will have to be 2.77 cents higher.

Gov. Nice's budget allows the State to pay only half of the cost of bus transportation of pupils to high schools. This limit will mean increased tax rates in Anne Arundel, Calvert, Charles, Garrett, St. Marys, Wicomico and Worcester Counties.

The amount of the transportation bill each county will have to pay and the amount it will raise the tax rate is: Anne Arundel, $11,054, 2.3 cents; Calvert $4,570, 8 cents; Charles, $7,667, 7.5 cents; Garrett, $10,288, 5.8 cents; St. Marys, $7,755, 8.9 cents; Wicomico, $5,868, 2 cents, and Worcester $4,215, 2 cents.

Sales Tax Measure.

As the Senate convened, Senator Milton J. Veasey (Democrat), Worcester, introduced his double-barreled bill to substitute a sales tax for the State property tax. But even before the bill was offered protests from retailers all over the State had appeared. The bill provides for a tax of 2 per cent on articles costing more than 10 cents, and is designed to gradually reduce the direct tax until it disappears.

The brighter skies for school teachers appeared disguised in a massive measure reducing their salary cuts from the present slash of 10 per cent to a continuing cut of 5 per cent. This partial restoration of salary scales would cost the State about $174,000 per year. A bloc of 29 Delegates offered the measure.

A bill to delight the hearts of Eastern Shore oystermen would permit 70-pound dredges to drag for oysters in the Potomac River. Southern Maryland watermen already have expressed their opposition to any relaxation of the present ban on dredging in the river.

Meeting on Jury Bill.

Several hundred women chattered in the House chamber this afternoon as the judiciary committee held its biennial meeting on the bill permitting women to serve on juries. This measure is regularly introduced at each session, so far fruitlessly.

Representatives of women's organizations who favor the bill were reinforced by four men, equally for it. The men were Winship Wheatley, president of the Bar Association of the District of Columbia; Paul Welch, president of the Young Democrats Club of Prince Georges County; Oliver Metzerott, of Prince Georges, former senator and minority floor leader at the last session, and former Senator Harry O. Levin, of Baltimore.

Among the women who spoke were Mrs. Charles Page, of Annapolis, representing the Maryland Federation of Republican Women, and Mrs. George Moss, of Annapolis, who appeared for the United Democratic Women. Others who spoke represented national women's groups.

A committee report on the bill probably will be made within a few days, Joseph Griesacker, of Baltimore, chairman of the committee, said after the hearing.

Other Measures Introduced.

Among the fresh bills introduced today were measures providing for a new registration of Garrett County voters in 1936, continuing the exemption of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Railroad from taxes, eliminating the State tobacco graders, and an administration measure setting up a conservation commission.

The Senate passed bills for Charles County introduced by Senator Robert V. Cooksey. These measures provide for refunding $20,000 of the courthouse bonds, and repeal an old law against selling liquor within 300 yards of the courthouse.

The Washington County measures, already approved by the Senate, were passed by the House and sent to the Governor for his signature. They are the bills permitting Hagerstown to retire its bonds at a premium and allowing the town of Boonsboro to borrow $2,500 a year for current expenses.

Delegate Walter M. Magruder (Fusion), Montgomery, announced that he would hold a hearing on the Gaithersburg Fire Department bill on Friday at 1:30 in the Statehouse. The Gaithersburg fire board, headed by Henry B. Kraft, will appear before the delegation to talk on the bill.

Gov. Nice Sends Senate List of Appointments

(By Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 20.—Edgar C. Czarra, of Hyattsville, was appointed land commissioner of Maryland today as Gov. Harry W. Nice sent to the Senate for confirmation his list of "green-bag" appointments.

The list was the fruit of more than five months' struggle with a swarm of applicants for State jobs. Gov. Nice, taking office as the first Republican Governor in 15 years, found the selection of applicants unusually hard. "Boys, I'm going to be the most unpopular man in the State when that list comes out" was his only comment on the nominations.

Among the State-wide appointments made today by the Governor was the selection of Walter Rudy, of Mount Airy, as commissioner of motor vehicles, in place of Col. E. Austin Baughman.

J. Milton Patterson was appointed a member of the board of regents of the University of Maryland, in place of Maj. E. Brooke Lee, resigned.

Dr. Joseph I. France, of Port Deposit, Md., won a membership on the State Board of Health for his support of Gov. Nice in the general election. Charles F. Goodell, of Frederick, was reappointed a member of the board of the Springfield State Hospital. Dr. Lewis K. Woodward, of Westminster, was appointed to the board of the Maryland Tuberculosis Sanitorium.

Others Selected.

Gov. Nice chose Andrew K. Coffman, of Hagerstown, and J. Jerome Frampton, of Federalsburg, as members of the State board of undertakers. Frampton was reappointed. As custodian of the works of reference, William H. Claude, of Annapolis, was selected. Ralph Crier, of Salisbury, was appointed a member of the board of managers of the Eastern Shore State Hospital.

Walter W. Whittig and John Hendley, both of Frostburg, were appointed to the board of directors of the Miners' Hospital of Maryland.

Harold C. Smith, of Rockville, was appointed police justice of Montgomery County, while George B. Merrick, of Marlboro, got the same post in Prince Georges County. Thomas M. Anderson was selected as magistrate of the Montgomery juvenile court.

Justices of the peace in Montgomery County were made as follows:

Fletcher D. Bennett, Clarksburg; Duvall J. Willard, Poolesville; John A. England, Rockville; A. Guy Watkins, Rockville; Henry Carroll, Cloverly; Frederick Miles, Burtonsville; John G. Newell, Bethesda; Richard D. Bennett, Bethesda; William N. Self, Glen Echo; Albert M. Dorsey, Gaithersburg; Titus J. Day, Damascus; Herman C. Heffner, Takoma Park; William F. Wilson, Silver Spring; Charles N. Woodson, Silver Spring and Charles H. Davidson, Kensington.

Other appointments were:

Justices of the peace in Prince Georges County: Henry O'Neil, Chester B. Morris, Mortimer E. Khan and William A. Bobb, Bladensburg; George B. Merrick, Donald Swanson and Horace J. Taylor, Upper Marlboro; Harry E. Owens, District Heights; William T. Windell, Suitland; James W. Latimer and Thomas D. Griffith, Silver Hill; Judson Rea Creecy, Spaulding; Griffith Dursler, Surrattsville; G. Bowie McCeney, Jacob W. Wachter and James S. Vater, Laurel; E. J. Billingslea, Brandywine; John T. Peery Gives Post of Epes To Eggleston

Norfolk Senator Named to Supreme Court of Appeals.

Legislative Successor Is Subject of Virginia Speculation.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—John W. Eggleston, Norfolk attorney and member of the State Senate, today received from Gov. Peery the appointment to succeed the late Justice Louis S. Epes on the State Supreme Court of Appeals.

His selection, which had been keenly predicted in State capitol circles yesterday, was one of the rare cases in which a man without previous judicial experience has been honored by elevation to the bench of the State's highest court.

Eggleston, the first justice of the court to come from Norfolk, had the unified indorsement of that city, and southside Virginia.

Serving First Term.

Justice Eggleston, the junior Senator from Norfolk, was serving his first term in the upper branch of the Assembly, but already had attained prominence by his work in sponsoring, writing and steering through that body the alcoholic beverage control act.

Notified of his appointment this morning, Justice Eggleston said, "I deeply appreciate the honor which the governor has conferred upon me. A seat on the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia is an honor of which any lawyer may well be proud.

"I appreciate the wonderful support which was given me by my friends throughout the State."

Speculation on Successor.

The appointment by Gov. Peery is until 30 days after the General Assembly convenes in 1936. Then it must be confirmed or another justice selected.

Rudy Promises Fairness in Post

Mount Airy, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.). Promising a "conservative administration and courtesies and impartial treatment to each individual member dealing with his office" Walter R. Rudy of this place today said he considered it an honor to receive the appointment as commissioner of motor vehicles from Gov. Nice.

Politically active for 40 years, Rudy last fall demonstrated his undisputed right to the county G. O. P. leadership when he carried Carroll for Nice by the unprecedented majority of more than 3,600 votes. In that decisive victory, which the successor of E. Austin Baughman today characterized as one of his most colorful campaigns, only one Democratic aspirant to county office was elected in the county, which is normally Democratic.

Rudy is giving active support to a plan of finance which will provide a new high school for Mount Airy, Westminster and New Windsor.

Washington Bible Going to Cherrydale

The Bible that was used in the initiation of George Washington into the order of Masons when he received his first or entered apprentice degree in the Fredericksburg, Va., lodge, November 4, 1752, will be taken to Cherrydale, Va., tonight to be used in George Washington birthday exercises there. Shown above is the Bible in the Fredericksburg lodge room. Gathered around the sacred and historical volume are, left to right, Right Worshipful Edward H. Cann, secretary; Charles R. Buckley, senior warden; Worshipful Master Walter W. Shelton and Elwood Wymbs, junior warden of the Fredericksburg lodge, who form the committee that will take the Bible to Cherrydale.

Conservation Board to Move

Present Quarters Found Too Crowded; Ad Drive Funds Approved.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—The State conservation and development commission, completing a two-day meeting here today, decided to move the commission headquarters from the present crowded offices on the first floor of the State Office Building to the eighth floor of the Life Insurance Co. of Virginia Building.

The rooms, 800 to 809, inclusive, which will be occupied by the conservation and development commsision, take up the remainder of the floor already occupied by offices of the State auditor, who previously found the Capitol Square too crowded to accommodate his expanded force.

Yesterday the commission decided not to move offices of several of its departments away from Charlottesville because funds for renting offices for them in Richmond are not available.

Earlier today the commission had approved an appropriation of $10,000 for newspaper and magazine advertising to stress the advantages of Virginia, and Mr. Hall said this afternoon that on Thursday of next week a meeting of advertising representatives will be held to discuss this project. Those attending will be asked to prepare prospectuses and submit bids on the basis of which contracts will be awarded at a later date.

D. A. P. Plans a Tablet For 'Drummer Boy'

Easton, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—Washington's Birthday will be observed Friday by the Col. Edward Lloyd 4th Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, with an informal dedication of a tablet for the grave of Solomon Barrett.

Barrett was known as the "drummer boy" at the Battle of Cowpers and was buried in Spring Hill Cemetery at Easton. The tablet later will be placed on a granite marker on his grave.

Dr. Prince to Speak.

Waynesboro, Pa., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—Dr. Leon C. Prince, State Senator from Cumberland County, Pa., will speak at the Franklin County Republican Club meeting Friday night in Chambersburg.

22 Shotguns and Rifles Are Stolen From Store

Berryville, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—The hardware department of E. G. Coiner's store was burglarized early this morning. Fifteen shotguns and seven rifles, valued at $300, were taken.

The burglar gained entrance by sawing a lock. The rest of the stock, including ammunition, was untouched.

Named FERA Supervisor.

Warrenton, Va., Feb. 21 (Spl.).—Miss Drusilla Davis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Davis, Warrenton, a graduate of William and Mary College, has been appointed home economics field supervisor of the FERA for Fauquier County, and will begin her work on Monday. Miss Davis has been teaching in the public schools of Fauquier since her graduation.

Youth Sentenced To 6-Month Term For Halting Train

Cumberlanad, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.). Edward Taylor, of Dawson, Allegany County, was sentenced to six months in the house of correction in Peoples' Court here yesterday for causing a freight train on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad to stop suddenly near Dawson last Sunday early, when he stared a fusee burning on the right of way.

While the trainmen were investigating the sudden stop, which damaged two cars, Taylor took an overcoat belonging to John W. McMakin, conductor, of this city.

Virginia Girl Is 'Kidnaped' Third Time

Note Telling of Abduction Found in Yard, Relatives Declare.

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—The third disappearance of Caroline Musante, 15, of Stafford County, was reported today when her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Musante, asked that news of her "kidnaping" be broadcast on the radio.

County officials said the family told them Caroline went to carry some ashes into the yard before leaving for school at Stafford Courthouse. When she did not reappear, they looked for her and found a note which said she had been kidnaped.

Twice before, at almost the same time of the year, Caroline was found tied in the woods not far from her home after reports that she had been kidnaped.

Last year, after her second disappearance, county officers dropped the case after Judge Frederick W. Coleman refused to allow any expenses for an investigation and branded the affair a "hoax."

On both previous occasions Caroline was discovered tied to a tree with hands and feet bound. The searching parties in both instances were led by her older brother, Lonnie.

Caroline's other disappearances were on February 3, 1933, and February 22, 1934.

Colleges in New Step To Gain Degree Power

Richmond, Va., Feb. 20 (AP).—Another step toward the State Teachers Colleges goal of being allowed to grant A. B. degrees will be taken tomorrow, when the State board of education will receive from the four such institutions a report on curricula for the proposed degree.

Dr. Sidney B. Hall, superintendent of public instruction, said that no immediate action will be taken on the colleges' request, but that the board will study the matter further before reaching a decision.

The Belasco Theater Is Having Its Face Lifted for Tomorrow Night's Opening

Many Changes Will Be Noted By Old-Timers

Both Balconies Discarded; More About Savoyards; Amusement Notes.

By Nelson B. Bell.

The Belasco Theater, which first began its purveyance of legitimate dramatic attractions 40 years or so ago, once more will occupy a position of some uniqueness in the Capital's amusement world when it reopens tomorrow night as an all-foreign motion picture house with the Soviet film, "Chapayev," as its first feature attraction.

For its new venture, the Belasco is being completely redecorated. Modern sound equipment is being installed by Western Electric; both balconies are being discarded, by reason of imperfect sight lines for the best enjoyment of screen entertainment, and a new ticket booth is expected to be in operation today.

New electric signs in orange neon will extend the length of the theater's facade, announcing to the Washington public that the house on Lafayette Square once again has something of importance to show the city.

Follows Broadway Policy.

This all-foreign film policy, while new to the National Capital, is not untried in other large cities. In New York, for example, two theaters have been devoted to the exhibition of outstanding foreign screen productions for the past several years.

Matty Radin, who has managed both of these houses with rare success, will exercise a supervisory direction of the Belasco here.

In addition to the feature subjects, of which announcement already has been made in this space, Mr. Radin has secured appropriate short-reel features to supplement his programs. Among these may be mentioned the unusual "Musical Moods," travel reels and, of course, newsreel coverage of world events.

Thursday, by the way, will scarcely be a day of rest for the dramatic desks of the local press. With a change of bill on the part of the D'Oyly Carte Opera Co., at the National, the reopening of the Belasco with an evening presentation of "Chapayev" and a midnight premiere of "The Scarlet Pimpernel," starring Leslie Howard and Merle Oberon, at RKO-Keith's, the drama editors will have ample cause to lament that inexorable natural law that precludes the presence of a single individual in two places at the same time. It may have to be done regardless of the law.

More of Savoyards.

As one who, man and boy, has dabbled vicariously with one or two Gilbert and Sullivan roles and grown up—if at all—with a deep respect for Sir William and Sir Arthur as perhaps the world's most efficient journeymen playmakers, I must confess that the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company, now at the National, brings an entirely new significance to the Savoy operas.

This I attribute not so much to any single outstanding element of superiority as to a faultlessly coordinated acting ensemble and the sacrifice of any individual aggrandizement to a flawlessly attuned concert of effort that results in a uniformity of excellence that suffuses the given work with an aura of perfection.

In our home-grown productions of Gilbert and Sullivan it has been customary to stress the excellence with which some outstanding stellar role has been played and let the rest of the work take care of itself. In the D'Oyly Carte productions there are no stellar roles—or perhaps it were better said that every role is a stellar role.

In this regard, I am reminded of the Abbey Theater Irish Players from Dublin, who appeared on the same stage earlier in the season. They also make the play paramount and subordinate personality to the perfection of the whole work. Thus the leading man or woman of one play may be little more than a supernumerary in the next. That, in modified degree, may be said to be true of the Savoyards.

Splendidly Orchestrated.

Another aspect of superiority is to be found in the extraordinary beauty of the orchestrations that have been brought to the embellishment of this engagement. Under the sympathetic conductorship of Isidore Godfrey, instrumentation becomes a factor of utmost importance in the enrichment of works that have never been accorded quite such illuminating intrepretation on this side.

The vaults of the Bank of England, where the libretti and scores of the Gilbert and Sullivan collaborations are safeguarded, have preserved their treasures well.

It is not surprising, in the light of such distinguished performance, that the D'Oyly Carte engagement at the National should have attracted the greatest seat sale in the history of the theater. Those who may imagine that they do not care especially for the Savoy operas will find in this week's offerings a revelation of new beauties in both the lines and music of these famous works.

Since it was not mentioned in yesterday morning's hurried midnight review of "The Gondoliers," it may be added now that the Bryn Mawr salutatory spoken across the footlights between the first and second acts at the National Monday night was delivered by Mrs. Isabella Greenway. It was a graceful and deserved tribute to a capital organization behind the footlights and a stiffly starched audience out front.

One stands a little aghast at the number of private projection-room previews that are being missed these days. Yesterday, frigsample, Rudy Vallee's new Warner Brothers starring vehicle, "Sweet Music," was unreeled for the drama desks at 11 a. m., and at 2 in the afternoon the Loew executives unwound "Sequoia" for the edification of the same group.

Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's "Sequoia," as everybody must know by now, is one of those rare nature-dramas that reveal themselves to the public, from time to time, as gems of unexpected excellence. It is based on Vance Hoyt's story of "Malibu" and has been one of the most widely acclaimed productions of the year.

Rudy Ran Projector.

Rudy Vallee—coming to the Earle screen on Friday, just as "Sequoia" is coming to Loew's Fox the same day—believe it or not, once was a projectionist in a motion-picture theater in Westbrook, Me., for which he received the munificent sum of $7 a week. Judged from the present pay scale of the craft, that must have been a great many years ago. While working in "Sweet Music," he was greeted by many of the stars whose images he used to squirt upon the silver sheet from the cramped confines of his projection booth.

Ann Dvorak, who began her theatrical career as a dancer, dances and sings again as Vallee's leading woman in "Sweet Music." Miss Dvorak, whose name—"Vorzhank"—is often mispronounced, is the only feminine screen star who owns a baseball team, the Dvorak All-Stars. She is the wife of Leslie Fenton in private life, and among her many interests includes that of walnut ranching, bacteriology, and languages, of which she speaks four.

Allen Jenkins, who appears as Rudy's press agent in the picture, was awarded his contract in recognition of his work as the gangster's bodyguard in "Blessed Event," which he played both on the stage with Roger Pryor and in films with Lee Tracy. It was in this picture, by the way, that Dick Powell made his first screen appearance also.

Script Girl to Scallywag.

Alice White, importantly cast in the flicker, is the only script girl on record who ever has achieved stardom and stayed up there.

Helen Morgan, whose "I See Two Lovers" number is one of the highlights of "Sweet Music," is the daughter of a farmer and was born near Danville, Ill., eventually migrating to Chicago, and, so it is said, to the glove counter of the Marshall Field department store. Subsequently, while studying music in Montreal, she acquired the title of "Miss Canada" in a beauty contest and went on to the stage from there.

Ned Sparks, the comedian of the cast, received his first stage training as a vocalist—and a tenor at that! Can you harmonize a tenor-singing voice with that sour puss of Sparks'?

Neither can I.

Not that it means for a surety that he will accept, but Rudy Vallee has been invited down from New York for the Friday opening of "Sweet Music" by the local executives of Warner Brothers. He is in New York fulfilling a night club engagement with his Connecticut Yankees, following the completion of the picture, and it is hoped by Zone Manager John J. Payette and his associates that the ace crooner will find it possible to take time off and pay Washington a visit of at least a few hours.

Vallee-of-the-Shadow Note.

He might even bring his megaphone along and demonstrate some of the Rudyments of singing!

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Organ recital by Virgil Fox in First Congregational Church. Program: Noel (Daquin), Chorale Prelude, "Sleepers Wake" (Bach), "Dreams" (Wagner-Middelschulte), Fantasia and Fugue in G minor (Bach), Andante from "Grande Piece Symphonique" (Franck), "The Spinner" (Dupre), Fantasia and Fugue on B-A-C-H (Liszt), Perpetuum Mobile (Middelschulte), "Pageant" (Sowerby).

Possessing a remarkable technique for so young an organist, Virgil Fox is well on the road to virtuosity. His youth speaks in the dashing manner of his performance, and one would judge from the evidence of this recital that he is not without a goodly measure of confidence in his powers. His mannerisms, such as the flourish of the arms when releasing final chords, are those of youth, and the style of his playing is on the whole more showy than substantial.

His equipment, however, favors his development into a sterling artist of the console. His dexterity on the manuals is assured and accurate, and his skill on the pedals, demonstrated in the "Perpetuum Mobile" of Middelschulte and the fanfare passenges in Leo Sowerby's "Pageant," is unusual. His registrations are usually well made, although some of the mixtures resulted in obfuscation of the harmony.

That he has a vein of poesy was evident in his fine reading of the Franck excerpt and the transcription of Wagner's "Traume," much as one questions the value of transscriptions of this kind when there is so much legitimate organ literature available. He has abundance of temperament, and his imagination sometimes breaks away from his judgment, as in the flamboyant performance of the Bach and Liszt fantasias.

There is so much of interest in Mr. Fox's playing at this stage that one will watch his career hopefully. If the word of an experienced listener will help him, one advises him to study the art of program building. Variety is not the only thing to be sought.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Continuing their triumphant week at the National Theater, the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company last night thrilled another standing-room audience with their vigorous and punctiliously perfect performance of two of Gilbert and Sullivan's familiar works—"Trial by Jury" and "The Pirates of Penzance"—strikingly in contrast, but equally well executed.

"Trial by Jury," the one-act curtain-raiser, although the first of the Gilbert and Sullivan collaborations, staged by Richard D'Oyly Carte in London in the year 1875, might have been written yesterday, so perfectly attuned are its sprightly melodies and satirical comedy to any age and any generation. It was sung with spontaneous enthusiasm and a fine regard for its fullest vocal possibilities by an excellently chosen cast, led by Sydney Granville, Leslie Randa, Robert Wilson, Doreen Denny and Richard Walker.

Mr. Granville's judge and the court usher of Mr. Walker embodied a lusty comedy spirit and the jury presented a quaintly comic spectacle in costumes and makeups as amusingly picturesque as they were resourceful and varied. The ensembles were both sung and staged with a fine flourish and respectful regard for the merit of a short but superlative piece of humorous writing.

"Penzance" Another Gem.

It remained for "The Pirates of Penzance," the major offering of the evening, however, to lay new stress upon the vocal excellence, the interpretative sense and the versatility of the Savoyards.

This flamboyant political satire, with its swashbuckling buccaneers, noncombatant "bobbies," highly decorative Maj. Gen. Stanley and his bevy of charming daughters, is played and sung with appropriate gusto and an obvious sensitiveness to the sheer beauty of many of the score's loveliest melodies.

In the person of Kathleen Frances, who did not appear in the opening bill Monday night nor in "Trial by Jury," the romantic role of Mabel found an interpreter of unusual endowment. Miss Frances is a coloratura whose voice is of exquisite quality and wide range, with high notes as clear and pure as crystal. It is used with that unostentatious and complete freedom from apparent "method" that marks the real artiste. The opposite tenor role was sung with comparable skill and effectiveness by John Dean, and Darrell Fancourt was a properly ominous and amusing pirate king.

"Old Friends" Score Again.

The other principals already have been appraised in these columns for the extraordinarily fine accounts they gave of themselves in "The Gondoliers." They comported themselves no less magnificently last evening. In point of fact, encores were considerably more numerous last night than on Monday, many of the concerted numbers being interrupted by storms of applause.

"Penzance" was staged and costumed with utmost beauty and taste and Mr. Godfrey's orchestra also was roundly applauded.

This afternoon and tonight the bill will be "The Mikado," with "The Yeomen of the Guard" scheduled for tomorrow night.

Further strengthening its reputation for the presentation of thoughtfully enacted and effectively staged plays, so auspiciously begun a short while ago with "The Silver Cord," the Studio of Theater Arts last evening offered W. Somerset Maugham's three-act comedy-drama, "The Circle," in the Wardman Park Theater before a near-capacity audience.

"The Circle" relates the story of separation and divorce in an otherwise stolid English family and of the recurrence of those twin events in the subsequent generation. Not a play of much levity, there is, none the less, a lightness of touch that raises the work above the usual level of Maugham starkness.

The players handled the lines with commendable precision and conviction, with Frank Westbrook, as the grayed father, and Ralph Howenstein as the earlier "other man," slightly topping the other members of the company in histrionic ability.

Romaine Stevens, "a caricature of a pretty woman grown old," quite lived up to that description of the wife and mother who had left her home some 30 years previously for another man. That man was portrayed with praiseforthy effect by Mr. Howenstein as a very blunt, crochety Englishman.

Sally Hinman depicted the young wife who finds herself facing the same dilemma as encountered by her mother-in-law and Walter Pick played the other man, but lacked much of the superior craftsmanship that characterized his work last summer at the Roadside Theater.

Movie Advertisers Have Used too many Superlatives

What PICTORIAL REVIEW says: "The two years of patient, painstaking work is justified up to the very last minute. Every film goer in the world will applaud long and loudly for this one."

LIBERTY MAGAZINE . . . "There has never been another picture quite like 'Sequoia'—it remains one of the most interesting stories ever filmed."

What is left to describe something that really deserves the words that have been wasted on mediocrity? For example, there is the film "Sequoia" which a delighted public will see starting Friday.

This picture truly deserves special consideration, special adjectives of praise. It is no cheap melodrama, no false description of life as it is not. "Sequoia" is something apart, something wonderful, a picture to enjoy and remember.

For two painstaking years the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios worked at this ambitious picture. When you see it you will get some idea of why it took so long. Comments from advance previews have been so enthusiastic that to quote them all would require literally all the space of this newspaper.

We will restrict ourselves to Mr. Jim Tully, the well known author. He says: "No picture in years has given me the same emotional quality which I derived from 'Sequoia'. I often get discouraged about films. 'Sequoia' renewed my faith. I congratulate its makers."

Mysterious Babe Ruth Weakens

Refrains From Loud 'No' When Asked if He'll Pinch-Hit.

Declares He Has Plan in Mind, but Refuses to Give Details.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (AP).—A somewhat puzzled and bewildered Babe Ruth came back from a long Oriental barnstorming junket today more of a baseball mystery than ever.

He hasn't the faintest idea what he is going to do, and while he still insists he'll not wind up as a part-time player or pinch hitter, he carefully left a door open, just in case he changes his mind.

Instead of the violent "No!" with which he has been dismissing all suggestions that he decorate the Yankee bench this season, with occasional appearances in the field and at the plate, interviews today were greeted with a chorus of:

"I may change my mind," "It's awfully hard to get out of that suit," and "I don't know what my attitude may be later."

He Will See Ruppert.

This much is certain. He will see Col. Jake Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, and if the colonel insists that he have another try at outfielding—and the price is right—it is an even bet the great man will reach for a fountain pen with far greater alacrity than has marked this gesture in the past ten years.

Ruth's ambition is to manage a big league ball club and his friends believe he figures he will have a much better chance to realize this dream—with the Yankees or some other team—by remaining in harness than if he calls it quits and spends a summer or two on the golf links.

"I'll call Col. Ruppert this week," he said, "and if he wants me to drop around I'll go and I'll take my $1 per year contract with me. Right now I believe I would refuse a player's contract, but I might change my mind. I have played baseball a long time and the old urge is still there. But if I sign with anybody it will not be as a pinch hitter. None of that for me. I'll be a regular or nothing.

Not Anxious to Play.

"Whether I would consider another year's active work will depend on how I feel during the training season. I don't know if I could do it. I'm not anxious to."

Then George Herman became mysterious and hinted he has other baseball irons in the fire.

"I have an idea in mind which I can't talk about now," he said. "I am going to certain people for advice. It has to do with big league baseball, but not as a club owner. That's all I can say at the present."

Fat and Healthy.

The Babe looks fat and healthy. He doesn't know what he weighs, but believes he is lighter than he has ever been at this time of the year.

Since leaving with the big league barnstormers last October, he has visited almost a dozen countries, traveled more than 20,000 miles and spent 56 days at sea.

He played ball and hit 13 homers in Japan, Manila and China; saw the sights in Java, had a try at the skis in Switzerland and played a little cricket in London.

About cricket? "Naw!" he roared. "They bunt the ball."

Rickey in Roanoke, Weighs Franchise

Confers With N. & W. Agents Regarding Field.

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—Branch Rickey, vice president of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, conferred here tonight with Norfolk & Western Railway representatives regarding possibility of establishing a Cardinal farm here with a franchise in the Piedmont League. Prospects were that an agreement would be reached.

The conference tonight was in regard to terms which the proposed club might obtain for the use of Maher Field, owned by the N. & W. Rickey made a special trip from St. Louis and visited the field this afternoon. Oliver French, Cardinal representative and manager of the Greensboro club, submitted to Rickey a report recommending St. Louis operate a Piedmont entry in this city this summer. French was accompanied here by Dan W. Hill, Piedmont president.

Maryland Five Tops Virginia By 33 to 32

Sothron, Substitute, Gets Goal Near Finish to Bring Victory.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—A clever shot in the last two minutes of play by Norwood Sothron, substitute guard, enabled Maryland's basket ball team to nose out Virginia here tonight, 33-to-32. It was the last contest of the year for the Cavaliers, who have a season's record of 11 victories and 9 defeats.

The game was closely contested throughout and at times very rough. The quintets played on even terms in the first half, neither having a margin of more than three points at any stage. Just before the whistle for the intermission Waters caged a basket that gave the Old Liners the lead at 15-14 count.

Midway the second period, the Cavaliers, led by Sturm, launched a drive that produced a 6-point lead. This advantage was short lived, however, as Vic Willis, another Maryland substitute, got into action. His three goals in rapid succession soon knotted the count at 31-31. With four minutes left to play, "Bus" Male made good on a free toss from the charity mark, but a moment later Sothron caged the ball for what proved to be the winning point.

Conference Picks Quintets Sunday

To Seed Teams for Court Tourney Next Week.

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 20 (AP).—The Southern Conference basket ball tournament committee today announced that it would meet here at 11 a. m. Sunday to name and seed the eight teams to compete in the 1935 championship event here the following week-end.

Dr. A. J. Wilson, of N. C. State College, is chairman of the committee, while other members are: H. C. "Curly" Byrd, director of athletics, and H. Burton Shipley, basket ball coach, University of Maryland; A. W. Norman, basket ball coach, University of South Carolina; Gus Tebell, University of Virginia; Dr. Ray E. Dermop, director of athletics, N. C. State.

Of the ten conference teams, Maryland already has definitely withdrawn from the event. The other team which will be left out, on the basis of season records is expected to be V. P. I., leaving the following clubs as tournament entries: Washington and Lee, 1934 champion; University of North Carolina, University of South Carolina, Duke, N. C. State, Clemson, Virginia and V. M. I.

Silver Spring Girls Turn Back Faculty

The old adage, age before beauty, was reversed yesterday as the varsity girls' five of Silver Spring High School defeated the faculty, 32 to 26, in their annual farce.

Slightly out of practice, the teachers were benefited by goals counting 5 points apiece and fouls counting 2 and also were aided by Referee Welch, who threw in a snow bird when the teachers were lagging.

Vandy and Duke Meet In '36 Opener on Grid

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 20 (AP).—Vanderbilt athletic officials announced today that the 1936 Commodore football season will open against Duke at Durham on September 25.

The new agreement with Wallace Wade's Blue Devils is intended to extend over a three-year period. As yet, however, dates have not been set for the 1937 and 1938 games.

Fights at Kilmarnock.

Heathsville, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—Billy Bussells, lightweight champion of the Northern Neck, will fight Vincent Taylor, Richmond champion, in the Opera House at Kilmarnock Saturday night. This is the feature bout of a card just completed by Promoter Bill Clanton.

Final Tilt Won By C. U. From St. Thomas

Cardinal Five Victor by 48-25 in Game Marked by 30 Fouls.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S dribblers closed a successful season last night in a splash of glory with a well deserved 48-to-25 victory over a rugged St. Thomas' quintet, manufactured in the presence of some 1,500 fans at Brookland.

It was a knockdown, dragout battle that the score gives no inkling of, with 36 fouls charged against the combatants. The Cards played their best home game of the season, and at the finish were pouring leather into the sagging bucket with Niagaran regularity.

The eventual winners were obliged to play the last half-minute of the game with only four men, when Bernie Lieb, their center, was thumbed off the court because of four personal fouls. Two of the four remaining men were substitutes. Abe Rosenfield, co-captain, preceded Lieb from the fray for the same reason, but their eviction came to late to be of any value to the visitors.

Schmarr Sets Pace.

Hermie Schmarr, leading scorer of the District, paced the Cardinals to victory with five field goals and a quartet of fouls, making all of his shots with half the Tommies clinging to his arms or riding his back. The Tommies did everything but manacle Schmarr, but the only effective means of stopping him required a hammer, nails and blindfold.

Rosenfield and Schmarr gave the Cards a 5-0 lead in the first few minutes of play, but St. Thomas rallied and assumed an 11-9 advantage midway in the period. Catholic was guarded so closely the visitors did not sink a field goal until eight minutes elapsed.

Leads 18 to 11, at Half.

Catholic's outlook was bleak for a few moments, but the clouds dispersed when Schmarr and Lieb opened up with an assault that carried the home team into an 18-to-11 lead at the half time.

St. Thomas switched from a man-for-man defense to the zone as the second half got under way, and that is just what the Cards wanted. In less time than it takes to write it, "Fod" Cotton's men were out in front by the safe margin of 28 to 15 and then 30 to 17. Buddy Deitch, St. Thomas' highly publicized center, flipped in a couple that didn't even ripple the cords, but the Cards brought out the bottle, shoved him it, and kept him there for the rest of the game.

For Rosenfield and Gearty, co-captains of the Cards, it was the final game of their collegiate careers, and both drew a hearty round of applause when removed from the fray.

Star Jockeys Summoned To Coast

Meade Called From Mia to Ride Ted Clark; Peters on Top Row.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20 (AP).—An array of riding talent, including the best jockeys in the world, is being gathered together here for the Santa Anita Handicap with its $100,000 added money on Saturday.

Hurry-up calls were sent to Miami, Fla., today as owners who feel their charges have a chance to beat Equipoise in the wealthy mile and one-quarter event sought to put in the saddle the best riders available.

Don Meade has been called in to ride the Canadian sprinter, Ted Clark. L. M. Schwartz is making every effort to get Eddie Arcaro for Gusto.

Equipoise will be ridden by Raymond (Sonny) Workman, the Washington (D. C.) jockey who has had a leg across the king of the turf in most of his great races of recent years.

Coucci on Twenty Grand.

Silvio Coucci, who booted Gillie home in the derby here last Saturday, is going to attempt the same thing with Twenty Grand as the veteran runner seeks to make good on the comeback trail.

Jockey Robert Jones, a hometown boy who went afield to make good, will ride Good Goods, Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's starter. He came here with the thought of riding Cavalcade until a hoof infection brought about the elimination of the 1934 3-year-old champion.

Maurice Peters, champion rider of 1934, from Brandsford, N. Dak., will pilot Top Row for A. A. Baroni in the event. Riskulus, the West's chief hope in the race, will be favored by the expert handling of Jack Westrope. Norman W. Church believes that if anyone can bring the second-place horse of the 1934 Agua Caliente Handicap to the wire in front, the Butte, (Mont.) boy can do it.

Richards Gets Mount.

Ladysman will be urged on by that veteran of more than 10 years in the saddle, Harry Richards, whose record is one of the finest in the decade. Another old-timer will be Tommy Luther, the former Milliken, Ill., gasoline station attendant who takes Time Supply, Mrs. Frank A. Carreaud's Texas flyer, to the post. Luther raced Time Supply to victory in the $25,000 Narragansett Special last year.

Head Play as yet has had no rider assigned. Charley Kurtsinger is under contract to ride A. C. Bostwick's Mate, but if that veteran fails to start, the jockey is to take the reins of the handsome Head Play.

High Glee, coupled with Twenty Grand as the C. V. Whitney entry, will be ridden by Alfred Robertson, a Spokane, Wash., boy. Georgie Woolf will have charge of Azucar, the revamped steeplechaser, and Bob Tilden has been selected for Statesman, the English thoroughbred.

20 Nominees Work Out.

Five possible starters in the event, which promises to attract approximately 20 of the 70 nominees to the post, worked today. Time Supply was sent a mile in 1:42 4-5. Faireno worked seven furlongs in 1:26 4-5.

Precursor galloped the handicap distance in 2:06 1-5, while Mad Frump and Frank Ormont worked the mile and a quarter under restraint in 2:08 and 2:09, respectively.

Allegany Girls' Team Wins From Frostburg

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.). A crowd of 1,200 persons turned out for the Loyalty Night basket ball program and saw the Allegany High School girls' team hand Beall High School at Frostburg its first defeat of the season, at Campobello, 22-16.

It was Allegany's fourth straight victory and the Blue and White succeeded in halting Beall's winning streak of three games. Until this game the Mountain City team had won five games and played one tie.

Tourney Site Shifted.

Keyser, W. Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—The No. 4 regional baseball tournament in the West Virginia scholastic basket ball championship eliminations will be held on the Potomac State College Court at Keyser March 8 and 9, instead of at Martinsburg, scene of 1933 and 1934 regional meets, according to announcement made today by C. W. Jackson, president of the State Board of High School Athletic Appeals.

Post's Race Writer, Winging Coastward, Sees U. S. on Parade

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Writer).

FIVE thousand feet above somewhere west of Kansas City, Mo., and going strong, February 20—with the greatest of ease, thanks to two 700-horsepower cyclone motors purring away outside of my window, I am speeding across these United States, headed for California's sunshine to be your eye at the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap on Saturday. Cities and towns slide away under me almost as fast as teacher's pet used to rattle off the capitals of the States.

In and out, over and under the clouds, our huge silver dragon fly bites away space with the precision that an insect might walk across the map of the United States in the family atlas lying open on the table.

It all seems so strange. Twenty-seven hundred miles I'm traveling to this California horse gold rush, to see a race that will not last much longer than you wait for the green traffic light at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. From coast to coast in 16 hours the same trip that somebody's forefathers did well to make between spring and winter in the covered wagon days.

"All So Sudden."

It hardly seems possible that I gave my dog his pound of raw hamburger in Washington last night and, providing Trainer Brennan will allow it, I will let Twenty Grand munch an apple off my hand tomorrow morning at Santa Anita, Calif.

It was all so sudden, too. The boss came in yesterday afternoon and said, "Haight, you're flying to California to cover the big race." At the moment every word of the sentence was music to my ears except "flying." The Haight aviation experience to date consisted of one 15-minute catch-as-catch-can flight in an ancient seaplane at Chesapeake Beach, which cost me $2.50.

On this occasion, I slumped in the cockpit and either looked straight ahead or up in the air. I had my big moment, however, when the seaplane landed. I had to be nonchalant as we glided down where my friends were standing on the shore. The bay looked as if it were going to smack me in the face.

Just An Aeronaut.

My effort had its compensation, however. Henceforth, I was able to discuss aeronautics from a sort of personal angle. When the conversation on the Florida special last week turned to planes I was able to say, "Oh, yes, I fly."

So the boss said, "Fly." He might as well have said, "Match me for a yacht." Anyway, I said, "Yes," remembering that it will be weeks and weeks before there will be any comfortable park bench sleeping.

A rather wary race writer fidgeted about the ticket office of the Newark Airport this morning. Why couldn't they have that $100,000 race at Charles Town or Bowie? Why do horses have to run in the winter, anyhow?

When the big liner of the TWA rolled up I began to breathe a little easier. My recollection of airplanes was the result of a casual glance or two at Lindy's "Spirit of St. Louis" at the National Museum. But here was a metal plane which looked like Mr. Stability, himself.

Secret Is Out.

Mr. W. W. Jones, the copilot, made me comfortable in a chair

Sir Malcolm Seeks Pacific Beach Site

May Move Racer to Coast if Daytona Try Fails.

Longview, Wash., Feb. 20 (AP).—Sir Malcolm Campbell, automobile speed record holder, wired the Longview Chamber of Commerce today asking for specific information about the ocean speedway at Long Beach, Wash., where he has been invited to make his record attempts in the event the Daytona (Fla.) beach is found too short for speed trials.

Pacific County commissioners have offered to throw their entire road maintenance forces on the beach to clear it of any debris that might wash in with the tide the day of the run. Ordinarily the beach is free from any temporary obstructions.

Aids Changed By Capital Promoter

Ahearn's Success With Riding and Hunt Club Wins Him Job.

By Bill McCormick.

CHARLES EGBERT CORNELL, another local fistic enthusiast, who tried his hand at match-making, fell by the wayside yesterday, when he and Promoter Joe Turner came to a parting of ways. Cornell's duties as matchmaker for the Turner enterprises will be assumed by Goldie Ahearn, formerly with the Riding and Hunt Club, and the one local matchmaker to succeed in arranging pleasing contests since the legalization of boxing here.

Turner and Ahearn will not attempt to present a show next Monday night, but expect to resume operations on March 4, possibly with a return match between Pete Sarron and Joe Rivers.

The dissolving of business relations between Turner and Cornell, which was effected amicably enough, marked the end of a short tenure in office for the corpulent restaurateur who succeeded Frank Mann, another Washingtonian whose matches failed to live up to the high standard demanded by local fans.

Cites Bad Luck.

"I can not say that Cornell has failed as a matchmaker," Turner said last night, "But his bouts have not been up to the high standard demanded for the Auditorium. This has been due partially to bad luck, particularly in the making of preliminary matches. It seems that just as sure as Cornell signed a good prelim, one or the other of the contestants was injured. Of course, that was through no fault of his, but the matchmaker for a place like the Auditorium must not only be a good matchmaker—he must be a lucky one."

Ahearn was enjoying tremendous success at the Riding and Hunt Club, a place which accommodated only about 2,500 persons, when the building was ordered closed because of failure to obey certain restrictions. Adherence to the restrictions would have entailed a greater outlay than was justified by the profits from boxing and the riding stable and the site is being abandoned.

Ahearn formerly was a featherweight boxer. He won the A. E. F. featherweight championship and was nationally rated as a profes-

Temple's Spurt Defeats G. U. Five, 36-31

THE scoring eyes of Temple University's Owls were clear and keen from all angles and distances at Tech High's gym last night, while defective vision from the free-throw line cost Georgetown University's basket ball team a 36-31 defeat at the hands of the Philadelphian's.

Temple and Georgetown put on a thrilling Eastern Intercollegiate League game in which victory hung in the proverbial balance until the last few minutes of play when the invaders finished with a burst of speed. The Owls must win all of their remaining games in order to capture the Eastern Conference championship. Georgetown hasn't a chance.

Georgetown lost because its players failed to cash in on their free-throw opportunities. It rang up 14 field goals to match Temple in this respect, but the Hoyas' best in foul tossing were three goals in ten shots, as compared to eight foul goals for the Owls.

Hargaden, Gibeau Star.

Ed Hargaden, Georgetown's sleight-of-hand ace, and Don Gibeau, the black-haired stick of dynamite, made gallant but futile efforts to bring victory to the Hoyas. Hargaden tossed in four field goals in the first half and one in the second for 10 points, while Gibeau chalked up 12 points.

From Hunger to Fighting Olin—In Two Weeks

CHICAGO, Feb. 20 (U.P.).—Last week Dutch Weimer, Tucson, Ariz., light-heavyweight, was broke and hungry and fighting to keep from sleeping in the streets.

Next week he fights Bob Olin, light-heavyweight champion, in a ten-round nontitle bout at Detroit.

In between is packed all the pathos and heartbreaks of the game of boxing. Weimer and his manager, Ernie Lewis, a throwback to the old type of theatrical agent who toured the tank towns, arrived in Chicago with $5 between them. Weimer was booked to meet Johnny Vorce, Detroit Negro, in a six-round bout on the Chicago Stadium's boxing carnival last Friday night.

The stadium had advanced them $50 for expense money to come here from Kansas City, but to save money they traveled in their 6-year-old automobile. The rear end dropped out on the highway, and the repair bill was $45. When they paid their first night's room rent they had $1 left. That bought breakfast Thursday morning.

They didn't have a friend in Chicago, so they didn't eat all the rest of Thursday. Weimer was so weak he almost collapsed after his workout in the gymnasium. When they returned to their hotel, they found themselves locked out because they hadn't paid their second night's lodging in advance.

Weimer went into the ring fighting for money to eat on. He dropped Vorce twice in the second round for counts of nine each time. He piled up a big lead on points in the next two rounds, but was so weak from lack of nourishment he could barely stay on his feet the last two rounds. He wouldn't give an inch, however, and fought back with both fists, although his blows hardly would have broken an eggshell. He won the decision and his purse was $150.

Promoters Lewis and Mullen, however, liked his style and his punching power and immediately signed him to meet Bob Olin at Detroit on February 26. In making out the contract, Mullen specified that they must go to Detroit by train and that Manager Lewis must buy a new hat. Lewis wears a black derby with a high crown and small brim, vintage of 1895.

Weimer, who is 23 and won 49 fights out of 58 since he entered the ring in 1932, got his first chance here through a letter Manager Lewis wrote Promoter Lewis. In part it said:

"Weimer is ready to fight for you on a minute's notice. Anybody you throw us in with is okay provided he's tall enough. We don't want them 5 foot 6 fighters. No one will box Weimer around here since what he did to Babe Hunt. He also beat Babe Risko. We have write-ups of these fights to back up what I'm telling you. I never write a promoter nothing but the truth, as it would come out on me anyway, sooner or later."

Chancing Races to Third Straight in Close Finish at Hialeah

Evergold, 2-1, Is Second In Mile

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 20 (AP).—In one of the prettiest finishes of the meeting in which three horses reached the judges heads apart, G. P. Odom's Chancing raced to his third straight victory in the Eastern Air Lines Handicap here today. Favored by the feathery impost of 99 pounds, the Chance Play colt held on to beat the Shandon Farm's big gelding, Evergold, with the Araho Stable's poorly handled Howard third in the field of six.

Evergold was favorite, while the winner was second choice at slightly better than 2 to 1. Chancing, aided by a splendid ride from Eddie Litzenberger, ran the mile in 1:37 4-5 over a track that had dried out fast, but not lightning fast.

Howard, which Walter O'Hara purchased from J. W. Parrish along with New Deal before the gelding's last race, might have won if ridden more judiciously. It was the second time "Red" Pollard was unable to do justice to the son of Rolled Stocking. Howard, far out of it early, was taken to the inside and then steered in between horses. He finished fastest of all.

Runs Game Race.

Chancing ran a game race. He put Dowdy Dell away in short order, drew well clear of Evergold and then refused to reliquish a narrow advantage in a long, hard stretch drive.

The long shot brigade lost no time getting into stride. The first race, a 7-furlong jaunt for older platers, resulted in a stirring nose victory for Candescent, a $31.70 for $2 chance, ridden by Earl Porter. Postscript, which drew a strong play, made up her usual lost ground and would have won with another jump or so to go. Mountain Elk was a scant half length farther back. Candescent stole a long lead over her field and just lasted in the slow time of 1:26 2-5.

J. E. Widener's Hiatus, which finished first in her only previous start at Tropical Park only to be disqualified, again figured in a race that was marked by a foul, but this time the chance shot filly was not at fault. Playful Tour, which finished second, two lengths behind, was set back for swerving in badly at the eighth pole and piling up several horses. The stewards did not wait for a rider to report. They quickly awarded the place to Wise Will and the show to Free Spirit.

Races to Front.

Hiatus raced to the front and drew away from Playful Tour in the last furlong. The winner and the second horse were grouped in the field, so that there was a freak pay off of $6.40 straight, $7.10 place and $4.50 show.

The stewards absobord Jockey Porter of all blame in the disqualification of Playful Tour. It was apparent to the officials that Porter made every effort to prevent his mount from swerving through the stretch.

Broad Meadows, dropping weight off his last good effort and receiving a faultless ride from Apprentice Lynch, was an easy winner in the third. The 8-year-old plater, favorite at $5.60 for $2, was perfectly rated in third position to the stretch, where he ran over the tiring Aegis to score by daylight. Aegis ran Ding Bin into the ground and just lasted to stave off the strong closing bid of My Purchase.

Volta Maid Wins.

The elderly mare, Volta Maid, picked up plenty of weight, sprang a mild surprise by taking top honors in the class "C" division of the graded handicap at 6 furlongs. Given a rousing finish by Wayne Wright, the 6-year-old daughter of Volta came from well back to catch the stopping Enthusiasm in the last sixteenth and win by a length, going away fast.

Miney Myerson, steady-going sprinter from G. W. Ogle's barn, gave further help to the talent's cause with a gamely attained triumph in class "B" of the graded handicap. Earl Porter, riding a double, nursed the gelding along in front until forced to a hard drive in the stretch. The winner paid $4.30.

Form players figured that the Greentree 3-year-old, Cristate, was dropped in a soft spot in the mile of the seventh. When the clouds of battle cleared away, the favorite had only second money to show for his efforts. St. Moritz, owned, trained and ridden by A. J. "Whitey" Abel, got home by a neck and paid $53.30. Cristate was a half-length before Pocket.

Four Spot won the last event by two lengths from Midshipman, paying 6 to 1. Yellow Metal was third.

Three Games Tonight In Heurich Court Loop

Three games are on tap in the Heurich League tonight. The Heurich Flashes will meet Parchey's at 7:30, St. Mary Celtics engage Fort Myer at 8:30, and Olmsted Grill will clash with Miller Furniture at 9:30.

No games will be played in the league Saturday.

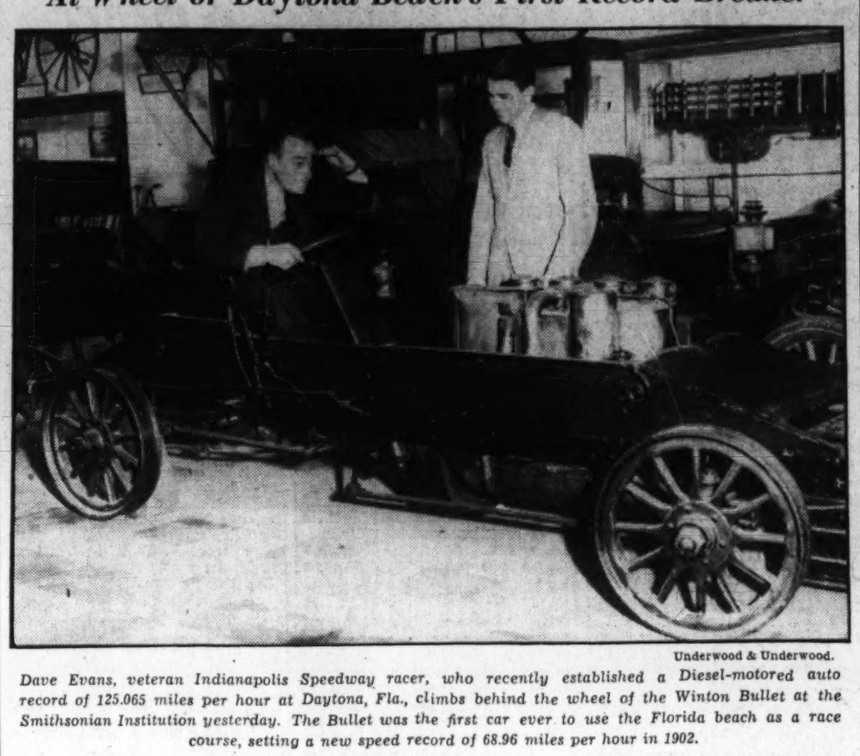
At Wheel of Daytona Beach's First Record Breaker



Underwood & Underwood.

Dave Evans, veteran Indianapolis Speedway racer, who recently established a Diesel-motored auto record of 125.065 miles per hour at Daytona, Fla., climbs behind the wheel of the Winton Bullet at the Smithsonian Institution yesterday. The Bullet was the first car ever to use the Florida beach as a race course, setting a new speed record of 68.96 miles per hour in 1902.

†Disqualified.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIATUS, $6.40, $7.10, $4.50; Wise Will, $7.10, $4.50; FREE SPIRIT, $9.20.

HIATUS, away well, closed gamely on the outside, and drew away in final furlong. PLAYFUL TOUR swerved badly, interfering with several horses, for which he was disqualified for foul. WISE WILL came with a rush in stretch and ran a good race. FREE SPIRIT showed good speed. TERRY ON finished gamely. KRONA suffered early interference.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs (out of chute). Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:22. Off at 3:28. Winner, L. E. Komorus' br. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROAD MEADOWS, $5.60, $3.30, $2.90; AEGIS, $3.80, $2.90; MY PURCHASE, $4.40.

BROAD MEADOWS, perfectly ridden, was allowed to rate along for the first six furlongs, then came around leaders in stretch, closed gamely, and right at the end was drawing away. AEGIS ran a good race. He was used up racing DING BIN into submission and tired. MY PURCHASE was badly outrun in early part, came wide on turn, and closed very fast. DING BIN displayed keen speed, but tired suddenly in final furlong. OUR DAVID is sure to improve over this effort. FLINT SHOT was never a factor.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Graded Handicap "C." Purse, $1,000. A handicap for 3-year-olds and upward of "C" division. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:58. Off at 4:02. Winner, W. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VOLTA MAID, $9.00, $4.00, $3.70; ENTHUSIASM, $3.80, $3.50; MISS CAREFUL, $7.00.

VOLTA MAID handled her weight well, moved up gamely around turn, came to outside and, closing fast, won nicely in hand. ENTHUSIASM ran into a long lead early, but tired badly in final sixteenth when caught. MISS CAREFUL came through on inside and finished with a rush. TUTTICURIO rushed up turning out of back stretch and then tired. HASTINIP had plenty of speed.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Graded Handicap "B." Purse, $1,200. A handicap for 3-year-olds and upward of "B" division. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:31½. Off at 4:34. Winner, G. W. Ogle's b. g. (5), by Amberjack—Marinette. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, 350. Time, 1:12 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MINEY MYERSON, $4.30, $3.50, $2.80; SUN MONK, $31.30, $11.60; GENTLE KNIGHT, $3.40.

MINEY MYERSON broke well in motion, rushed into a long lead, saved ground, and stood long drive gamely. SUN MONK made up ground gradually, came to outside in stretch, and finished well with a rush and was getting the verdict. GENTLE KNIGHT was a stout contender from the start. SOME KNIGHT outrun for a half-mile, closed gamely in final furlong. MAINE CHANCE broke slow and trailed far back, slipped through on inside entering stretch, and ran a good race. JIRASOL II showed a fast early speed. FREDRICK ran a poor race.

SIXTH RACE—One mile (out of chute). The Eastern Airlines Handicap. Purse, $1,500. A handicap for 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:06. Off at 5:10. Winner, G. P. Odom's ch. c. (4), by Chance Play—Courtly. Trained by G. M. Odom. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $250; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:37 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHANCING, $6.10, $3.10, $2.30; EVERGOLD, $2.80, $2.30; HOWARD, $2.50.

CHANCING, under light weight, broke fast, rushed into lead, saved ground, and just lasted to win. EVERGOLD, well up, made a game effort and held on well. HOWARD was pounds the best, but was the victim of a poor-judged ride. He was allowed to drop far out of it, then went up on inside and came through the field in stretch and finished going fastest of all at the finish. DOWDY DELL had plenty of speed for six furlongs. UNENCUMBERED is about ready to win a race. GUAPITO was outrun.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile (out of chute). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:38½. Off at 5:43. Winner, A. J. Abel's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ST. MORITZ, $53.30, $12.90, $4.30; CRISTATE, $3.50, $2.70; POCKET, $3.10.

ST. MORITZ quickly ran into contention and, rated along to stretch, assumed command and just lasted to win. CRISTATE broke very slow and trailed far back to final three-sixteenths, where he closed with a rush under a weak ride. POCKET had early speed, but dropped back around turn, came again in stretch and finished fast. STAVKA had plenty of speed, but weakened at end of six furlongs. MOTLEY at best on turf course.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 6:13. Off at 6:17. Winner, F. Wright's br. g. (4), by Coventry—Calico. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:51 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FOUR SPOT, $14.00, $8.10, $8.50; MIDSHIPMAN, $5.10, $4.20; YELLOW METAL, $7.60.

FOUR SPOT, displaying keen speed, ran into early lead and was rated along to stretch, where he swerved out and finished well out in the middle of the track. MIDSHIPMAN, showing unusual speed, was kept well up all the way. YELLOW METAL closed a big gap. UKRAINE made a game effort. XANDRA quit early.

Norma Taubele Upset in Net Tourney

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (AP).—Two favored players were eliminated today in the quarter-final round of the women's national indoor singles tennis championship. It saw the end of the reign of Norma Taubele as champion and the defeat of Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, of France.

The red-haired Miss Taubele went down to a fast and decisive defeat at the hands of a long-standing Metropolitan rival, 18-year-old Millicent Hirsh, 6—1, 6—2. Mme. Henrotin was outlasted in a thrilling two-hour struggle by Helen Pedersen, of Stamford, Conn., national girl's champion, 5—7, 6—4, 6—2.

Miss Hirsh and Miss Pedersen will meet tomorrow in the semifinal. They clashed in the same round in last year's championship with the honors going to the Connecticut girl in three sets.

Others Advance.

The other players who won their way to the penultimate round were Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, of New York, the top-seeded player and now the outstanding favorite, and Jane Sharp of Pasadena, Calif., who apparently has recovered from a bothersome chest cold which handicapped her play in the first two rounds.

Mrs. Andrus, hitfing the ball with tremendous force and a convincing finality, won from Hilda Boehn, of Boston, 6—4, 6—3. Miss Sharp set some sort of a record for expedition by accounting for 13-year-old Helen Bernhard, of New York, in slightly less than 18 minutes in two sets without the loss of a single game.

Later Mrs. Andrus teamed with Mme. Henrotin and Miss Taubele combined with Miss Sharp to gain the final of the doubles championship.

Spurt by Temple Beats Hoya Five

Temple's 5-point margin in the end was gained by reason of Messikomer's long shot, a side flip by Harold (Red) Rosan, all-Conference forward; a foul goal by Rosan and another free throw by Dave Juenger, center.

Temple Takes Lead.

Messikomer and Brown gave Temple a 6-to-0 lead, and Gibeau, Hargaden and Zola tied it with long shots. With three minutes before the end of the half, Temple led, 18 to 13.

After eight minutes of the second half, Georgetown led, 26 to 25, but Juenger got a goal and the Owls stepped into a lead it refused to surrender.

It was 30 to 29, with three minutes to go, when Temple made its winning finish.

Park View Ties With Blow at Soccer, 1-1

Second Game of Series to Decide Title in City Slated Monday.

AFTER several weeks' delay because of unfit grounds, Blow and Park View Elementary School soccer teams met yesterday on the Monument Field in the first of a three-game series to decide the city championship tournament annually conducted by the Municipal Playground Department, the game ending in a 1-1 draw.

Park View, present champions, lost the toss and Blow took advantage of the strong wind to press for the first few moments, only to be repulsed by Woodward and Ehrlich. The Park View forwards then exhibited some clever passing which culminated in Ketchell scoring the opening goal within three minutes after the start.

Blow gradually improved but could not pass the opposing backs, while the teamwork shown by the Park View players often threatened the Blow goal. Botts and Flower broke through the Park View defense twice, to shoot past, but another raid by Botts was productive of a penalty-kick through Woodward handling the ball, and Botts equalized the score just before the interval.

The second half was fairly even, with Park View the more dangerous when near the goal, but both goalkeepers withstood all attempts to score until the finish. Ketchell, Hankin, Ehrlich and Barhan stood out for Park View, and

Move Is Seen As Spur to Entries

BASKET BALL teams which will participate in the District A. A. U. tournament next month at Tech High and Langley Junior High gyms were cheered last night with the announcement that silver medals will be awarded the runners-up in the six classes.

The Washington Post, which has been sponsoring the tournament since its inception in 1926, has decided to award gold medals to the winning teams in addition to six plaques, instead of trophies, to the winning teams.

When The Post, through its promotion department, made known its decision to award the winners gold medals, the District A. A. U., through Basket Ball Chairman Winfree Johnson, stepped out with the announcement that the A. A. U. would give silver medals to the runners-up.

Due to Boost Entries.

Never before in the nine years of this great basket ball tournament have the runners-up been rewarded for their efforts, and this announcement is expected to attract at least 40 additional teams in the 100-pound, 115-pound, 130-pound, 145-pound men's and girls' unlimited classes.

Ten gold medals to members of the winning team and ten silver medals to members of the runner-up team—such is the inducement offered Washington teams and those within a 15-mile radius of the District.

Entries continued to flow in at a brisk pace yesterday. Four teams from the Northeast Boys Club have entered, and a number of CCC teams sent in entries. Fort Hunt, Fort Myer, Army War College and Fort Washington are entering teams.

Olmsted Grill Enters.

Chief among the teams which entered yesterday was the Olmsted Grill, coached by the elongated Sox Harrington. That the Grill team, which was graduated from the 145-pound class, will be one of the toughest challengers for the unlimited crown is something veteran basket ball observers openly admit. Winner of 26 games, and beaten only seven times, Olmsted Grill will sport a fast-moving aggregation, with every man a deadly shot. Johnny Sherman, guard, formerly with the champion Sholl's; Buss Cross, formerly of Central; Dave Dantzic, center; Lee Kemp, Billy Mitchell, Bud Thompson and Buss Pfau are members of the Grill outfit which bids fair to wage a mighty battle for honors with Sholl's, Bureau of Investigation, St. Mary's Celtics and other topnotch contenders.

With entries closing next Wednesday night at midnight, teams have only seven more days to enter. All entries must be made at the Washington Boys Club, 230 C street northwest.

Lists Requirements.

1. Players, to be eligible, must be registered athletes in the D. C. Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, whose registration will not run out during the tournament.

2. Every player entered with a team must have played at least two games with that team during the current basket ball season—December 15 to February 15.

3. A high school or college player entered with a team not representing his particular school must have had specific permission from the school authorities to play with such outside team. Otherwise, he will be declared ineligible for competition in the tournament, even though a registered athlete. This may result in reducing a team below playing strength after its entry has been accepted. The entry fee will not be returned. Any violation of this ruling will be summarily dealt with if brought to the attention of the A. A. U. authorities after the tournament starts, and may result in ruling the team out of play.

4. No team is eligible that has played as or against a professional team, and no player is eligible who has played with or against a professional player, unless specific permission to do so was previously granted by the Amateur Athletic Union.

Judson Is Foe Of Garibaldi Tonight

By George Considine.

Sir Frank is no stranger here. Of course you remember two years ago when you cheered yourself hoarse as the fearless one applied with telling effect his brilliant repertoire of holts on Master Jeems Londos. In the interim Frankie has been pinning the shoulders of everything in Australia but the kangaroos.

Well, sir, mine host Joe Turner has appointed genial Gino Garibaldi chairman of the reception committee. What with two out of three falls and the usual double-hour limit, to say nothing of a brace of rassledom's foremost bone crushers, all seems to point to a veddy, veddy worth-while session.

Shikat Faces Meske.

It might pay to put in an early appearance for the entertainment bids fair to eclipse anything seen here this season. Redoubtable Richard Shikat, scholar, nobleman, gentleman, wouldn't surprise us if he shows up bedecked in top hat and swallow-tails for his scheduled engagement with ripsnorting Ed Meske, youthful sensation out of the Midwest.

Inasmuch as the ambitious youngster has accounted for the skulls of most of the elite, Sahib Shikat anticipates a rather heated tie-up.

Jumping Jack McClary will don his mountain climbing costume as he squares off on the treacherous slopes of 310-pound Tor Johanson. Tiny Tor made quite a name for himself a few weeks ago on our own slamming grounds when he all but outmuscled his royal nibs, Ed (Don) George.

Other commendable hostilities center around beetle-browed Andy Rascher, the thrasher, and stolid Stanislaus Sokolis. But don't let that worry you.

Post Mortems . . .

Ted Husing, the radio announcer, who was barred by Judge Landis from broadcasting games in the recent World Series, supplies all the commentary in the official American League baseball picture, "Batter Up," which will be previewed here at Wardman Park Hotel on March 1 . . . incidentally, Husing incurred the displeasure of Umpire George Moriarity by declaring the arbiter reversed a decision in the opening game here with Boston in 1932 . . . and Moriarity played an important part in producing "Batter Up" . . . Gar Wood, the American speedboat king, will aim at 130 miles an hour when he attempts to better his world record of 124.86 with Miss America X next month . . . Wood tentatively has scheduled his 1-mile run for the first week in March as a feature of the Miami Beach Rod and Reel Club's motorboat regatta . . . the electrical machine that will time Sir Malcolm Campbell's run at Daytona Beach cost $25,000 . . . Gillie, winner of the Santa Anita Derby last Saturday, is a son of the famous Victorian, which won the 1931 $100,000 Agua Caliente Handicap . . . but father and son don't run anything alike . . . Victorian was full of early speed, while Gillie comes from behind in the stretch . . . and, Just 25 Years Ago Today: Battling Nelson ruled a 2-to-1 favorite to retain his lightweight crown which Ad Wolgast was to attempt to lift in San Francisco the following day . . . but there was plenty of Wolgast money being wagered.

Rockville High Takes 19th Victory of Year

Rockville High made its final appearance of the season away from home yesterday by trouncing the Friends Prep quintet, 36 to 19, for the second time this season.

The Rocks compiled a big lead in the first half, with Ochsenreiter and Wilson finding the basket frequently, and coasted to victory in the second half with the reserves playing a majority of the time. It was the Rocks' sixteenth victory in 19 starts.

La Salle Five Trounces Central in Rough Tilt

Lonaconing, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—In a rough-and-tumble court battle in which six players were ejected on personal fouls, La Salle Institute of Cumberland defeated Central High School here, 34 to 30.

Johnny Meyers, Central's scoring ace, was banished on fou' in the second period, and Stewart and Popalo went out later. La Salle lost Kelley, Fleming and Stegmaier. The teams had a total of 45 chances at the foul line. La Salle hooped 10 out of 21, while C. H. S. converted 10 out of 24. Kelley and Stakem headed the La Salle attack with 11 and 10 points, respectively, while Popalo and Meyers each scored 8 points for the losers.

sional following the war. He promoted successfully at Fort Washington in the pre-legal days, preceding Frank Mann at that location. Ahearn also opened the arena at Laurel, Md., which later was taken over by Cornell.

Decline in Receipts.

Boxing gates at the Auditorium, which already were under the local standard while Mann was in charge, declined even more rapidly under Cornell. Only one completely successful show, from an artistic standpoint, was produced. That show, featuring Pete Sarron and Joe Rivers, was one of the best ever seen locally.

A bout between Johnny Jadick and Phil Furr, was fairly successful. Cornell matched Buck Everett, a pleasing heavyweight who is well known to local lovers of larrup, with Al Boros, an unknown from Bridgeport. So adverse was advance criticism of this contest that only a few spectators witnessed it.

Last Monday's show found Jadick making passes at Fritzi Zivic before one of the scantiest audiences ever to witness a local professional bout. The show was a complete flop from an artistic standpoint.

Charles Town Teams Trounce Hedgesville

Hedgesville, W. Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—The Charles Town High School boys and girls basketball teams took both ends of a double-header from the Hedgesville High teams here last night. The boys won, 33 to 20, while the girls had a much easier time, 46 to 20. Bailey, Charles Town High forward, scored 33 points for the winners.

Hagerstown Quintet To Meet Martinsburg

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—The Hagerstown High School basket ball team will play the Martinsburg High team at Martinsburg Friday night in a game that may have a definite bearing on the outcome of the Cumberland Valley Athletic League competition.

A green team that got off to a poor start, the locals extended Waynesboro to the limit here last week, and came within 2 points of defeating the Pennsylvania team.

Middleburg's Hunt Draws 93 Entries

Mrs. J. H. Whitney to Have 24 Horses in Events Tomorrow.

MIDDLEBURG, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—Mrs. John Hay Whitney, owner of the famed Llangollen Stables, near Upperville, has 24 entries listed for the fifth annual Middleburg hunter trials, which will be held on the beautiful Glenwood race course, estate of D. C. Sands, M. F. H., Middleburg Hunt, near Middleburg, at 1 p. m. Friday. Other noted stables in this section make up the 93 entries.

Mrs. Whitney's entries include the gray gelding, Bon Diable, which for two years has captured the Middleburg Bowl, which is awarded to the horse having the highest score in any class; Secret Meetings, Knight of the Galtees, Hopeful Jim, Hush Money, Thornbrack, Cypress Dea Beau, Kinprillis, Nobody's Fool, Ucella, Serious, Paulette, Lover's Leap, Volney, Silver Shield, High Feather and four pairs of hunters.

Others Make Entries.

Others who have made entries are Fredrick Warburg, with Gangway, Meath and Dual Control; Dr. L. M. Allen, who has Clifton Rose, Clifton Major, Coq Major, and Pettite Poule; D. C. Sands, with Bridal Water; Paul Mellon, who has entered Shadow Play and Tanager; Miss Julia B. Southern Conference Boxers Await Tourney Draw Today

By Bill McCormick.

FIRST action in the Southern conference boxing tournament will take place today, but it will be the very passive action of seeding contestants and arranging the draw. Participating in the ceremonies of the draw will be James Driver, athletic director at Virginia; Dick Smith of Washington and Lee and Bob Fetzer of North Carolina.

From two to four boxers in each weight division will be seeded, depending upon the number of entries in each particular class. The contestants all will weigh in at 10 a. m. tomorrow. Those surviving the preliminaries and reaching the semifinals will be required to weigh in again at 10 a. m.

Because there are only four entries in the light heavyweight class and heavyweight division, the semifinals in these classes may be held Friday night in order that the contests will not be forced to participate in two battles on the same day.

Expected Today.

Most of the teams represented are expected to reach Charlottesville some time today, in order to be ready for tomorrow's weighing-in process. Some of the contestants will work out today at the University of Virginia gymnasium, but many will rest in preparation for the two-day grind from which emerge the best fighters in all the South.

The defending champions from Virginia must meet this year the most concerted onslaught ever directed at a title-holding aggregation. Maryland, Duke, North Carolina, all are strong enough contenders to upset the Cavaliers. Clemson boasts a powerful team, which held Duke to a 4-4 tie, and the other groups represented all have individual members who are strong enough to figure prominently in the disposition of the individual championships.

LaRowe Still in Bed.

The Cavaliers, who have won the conference title for four consecutive years, will go to the wars without the physical support of 67-year-old Johnny LaRowe, their coach, who founded boxing at the institution. LaRowe, who is confined to his bed by a leg injury, has not seen his team in action since it defeated V. M. I. last month, but his moral support has played an important part in sending the clouters in to victory.

Al York, assistant varsity coach, will handle the defenders for the conference. York took charge of the Cavalier clouters for the Carolina meet and steered them through that encounter, the V. P. I. meet and Navy battles without defeat. The team was held to a 4-4 tie by Coach Harmony's strong Maryland band last week.

Only four of last year's individual champions will defend their titles this year. Archie Hahn, 115-pounder; Gordon Rainey, 125-pounder, and Maynard Womer, welterweight, are three of the defending champions who battle for Virginia. Stewart McCaw, 175-pound title holder, again will fling fists for Maryland.

Norment Quarles, lightweight champion last year, has entered the professional ranks. Harold Stuart, 1934 155-pound champion and captain of the Virginia team last year, has been graduated and now is freshman coach of the Cavaliers. Henry Willard, 1934 middleweight champion from South Carolina, has been graduated, and Red Negri, last year's heavyweight title holder from V. P. I., is not competing this year.

Capacity crowds are expected throughout the tournament, which starts at 2 p. m. tomorrow, running through until the first day's punching is completed, with a few hours respite for dinner. The semifinals will be held Saturday afternoon and the finals Saturday night.

West Virginia Boxers Face West Md.

First College Bouts to Be Held Tomorrow at Cumberland.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—College boxing will be introduced in Cumberland as the mitmen of Western Maryland College meet the West Virginia Mountaineers here Friday night.

Professional and amateur fights have been held here, the latter gaining great popularity recentiy, but collegiate matches have not been scheduled chiefly due to the desire of colleges to hold their fights on a home-to-home agreement.

The series of bouts is expected to be one of the best in the East this season, bringing together the Mountaineers as the class of the Eastern intercollegiate boxing conference and the Green Terrors as one of the best aggregations in the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing League.

West Virginia has not lost a dual match in its conference since it was organized in 1932, while Western Maryland closely pressed Syracuse for its league title last year.

The probable line-ups:

West Virginia.	Class.	West. Md.
Puslia	115	Bennett
Welch or Espada	125	Rusteberg
Vacheresse	135	Armacost
Ferrara	145	Haynes
Gallo	155	Keyser
Salerno	165	Kaddy
Zaleski	175	Gorski or Kaplan
Dickerson	Hwt.	Pontecarvo or Kaplan

Referee Picked for Tourney.

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—Appointment of Estle "Eck" Miers, of Keyser, W. Va., to serve as a referee with John Long in the boys' division of the Western Maryland Interscholastic League, was announced today by Charles L. Kopp, county superintendent of schools.

G. W.'s Quintet Host Tonight To Temple

COACH ROLAND LOGAN and George Washington University's basket ball brigade make their final appearance of the season before a local audience tonight at Tech High School, where the Colonials tangle with Temple University at 8 o'clock.

Soon after sun-up tomorrow, Logan departs for Sarasota, Fla., where he will assume his duties as trainer of the Boston Red Sox. The courtmen have a game to play with Geneva, February 27, but it will take place at Beaver Falls, Pa.

Temple demonstrated last night against Georgetown that its presence in Washington bodes no good for District teams, but G. W. entertains high hopes of knocking the Owls off their lofty perch. Not only are Logan's men fighting for a victory over Temple, but they also want to win their two final games and thereby equal the best record a G. W. court team ever made—15 wins against 5 losses.

Bent on Winning.

Logan has been highly successful while at the helm of the team and has been immensely popular with the players. Thus, they have decided to present him with a victory over Temple on the eve of his departure.

If G. W. plays the same kind of ball it displayed against City College of New York—if it can muster the same fighting spirit, tonight's fracas will be more than just another ball game. It is not too far-fetched to believe the boys can win.

Only Jimmy Howell and Tuffy Leemans are left from the team that started against Temple last season, when the Owls chalked up a 49-22 victory at Philadelphia. Bill Noonan also played in last season's game and undoubtedly will see action tonight.

Bethesda Defeats Georgetown Prep

No fouls were called in the entire first half and none was called on the prepsters during the entire game by Referee Bender. Rice, of the losers, led the scorers with 9 points; Harris and Johnson had 8.

Grain Selling Brings Prices To Lower Level

Cotton Market Active With Some Futures 5 Points Higher.

Chicago, Feb. 20 (AP).—Enlarged selling that took on a stop-loss character tumbled grain values down today, with holders adversely influenced by failure of buying power to broaden.

It had been expected in various quarters that following the Supreme Court's gold decision an expansion of speculative purchases of grains would be witnessed today, but fresh weakness of wheat markets abroad quickly gave such hopes a black eye. Later, the bearish action of securities at New York served as an additional weight on grain prices.

Wheat closed unsettled at but little above the day's low point, 1@1⅜ cents under yesterday's finish, May, 97@97⅛; corn, ¾@1¼ off; May, 86¼@⅝; oats, ⅜@1¼ down, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to 7 cents advance.

Cables from Liverpool emphasized that transatlantic demand for wheat was meager, and that Argentina was offering wheat freely. In addition, traders here expressed fears regarding the Canadian export outlook, and asserted that every day which passes appeared to make the question more pointed: "How is Canada to get rid of her wheat surplus?" A leading Chicago market authority said notice of two possibilities could not be avoided—one that Canada would reduce the prices she has been maintaining, or second that some form of reciprocal trade agreement with this country would allow considerable Canadian wheat to be imported here in exchange for special duty provisions to enable some United States commodities to move into Canada.

Only one small lot of Canadian wheat was reported to have been sold today for shipment overseas. On the other hand, total Canadian stocks of wheat in all positions except on farms was announced as 244,174,000 bushels, compared with 232,681,000 a year ago. Meanwhile, domestic mills Northwest reported some improvement of flour business, but Kansas City reported a disappointing trade. Attention was called to the fact that under the NRA code, mills are unable to sell flour to cover more consumers' 90-day requirements.

Cotton Market

Cotton was moderately active today with the price movement rather irregular. The close was steady, net unchanged to 5 points higher.

March worked up from 12.42 to 12.48 during the afternoon, while October advanced from 12.47 to 12.54, making net gains of about 4 to 7 points. The market seemed to meet a little more cotton around these figures and prices eased, although the close was slightly up from the lowest on covering.

London—Influenced by adverse Wall street reports, trading was quieter on the stock exchange today with transatlantic issues, industrials, oil and rubber shares all down a bit to 5 points. Western dollar bonds, small buying, while west Australian gold mining shares became a firm feature in the afternoon. The market closed steady.

Paris—Yesterday's weakness in Wall street caused prices to turn heavy at the opening of the bourse today, but there was a quick recovery and by noon the closing was firm.

Berlin—Quotations held steady on the bourse today as the day came to a close with little change reported.

New York, Feb. 20.—The decision of the Supreme Court in the gold clause cases has clarified the legal status of the Administration's monetary policy, but it has raised practical questions of great importance to the financial community. There is, for example, the basic question of whether investors in bonds or mortgages can protect themselves for the future against further depreciation of the dollar. Also, the effect of the decision on international obligations with the gold clause is not altogether clear.

The wording of the decision as it relates to gold clauses in obligations other than those of the Federal Government deals a death blow not only to the gold clause in its standard form, which calls for the payment of actual gold coin, but also to the "gold value" clause, which calls for payment of gold coin "or its equivalent." Since the highest court barred all clauses which restrict the power of Congress to regulate the value of money, the gold value clause, which has been used increasingly since 1933, is evidently useless as a safeguard against currency devaluation.

Interested lawyers, therefore, are considering the use of other types of contractual protection which will achieve the desired objective. One of these is a clause basing the payment of interest and principal on quantities of specified commodities, a plan which has been tried abroad. A second is the use of a general wholesale commodity price index number as a measure of payment of interest and principal.

Commodity Clauses Used in Germany.

Commodity clauses, making debt contracts payable in stipulated amounts of rye, coal, potash or other commodities, were widely used in Germany during the post-war period of currency inflation there. Such clauses proved quite cumbersome in practices, however. Similarly, in the one case where a commodity price index number was used as a standard for payment in an American bond issue, that of the Rand-Kardex Bureau, Inc., some ten years ago, it proved impractical and the issue has long since been called in and replaced by a straight dollar obligation.

The basic weakness of both the specific commodity and the general index number clauses, however, is the fact that they may be construed as being, like the conventional gold clause, a restriction on the power of Congress to regulate the value of money, and hence invalid. However, some lawyers have reached a tentative conclusion that they may possibly be upheld in the event of a future devaluation of the dollar, on the ground that they are not money contracts at all, but merely commodity contracts which do not involve directly the power of Congress to regulate the value of money.

Lawyers and bankers who are giving thought to the question of a valid substitute for the old gold clause are considering also a "commodity gold clause," such as was used in Germany in numerous instances in the post-inflation period. The commodity gold clause, in contrast to the gold coin or the simple gold value clause, calls for the delivery of a stated physical quantity of gold or, where this is not available, the equivalent in legal tender paper money. However, in view of the fact that gold is not available for the settlement of contracts, in this country, and in view of the Supreme Court's ruling against the gold value clause, there is grave doubt whether this clause offers any protection at all to bondholders here.

On the other hand, the highest court's decision does not appear to have affected adversely the validity of the "multiple currency clause" in bonds, which it was not called upon to rule specifically in this case, and which was not abrogated by public resolution 10 invalidating the gold clause. The multiple currency clause gives to bondholders the option of receiving payment in any one of two or more currencies, so that they can choose the more valuable. A decision of the New York State Supreme Court has upheld the validity of the multiple currency clause in bonds of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. A number of other American corporate bond issues publicly offered abroad contain such a clause.

Multiple Currency Provision a Factor.

Unless the validity of the multiple currency provision should be denied or severely limited by later legislation and litigation, therefore, widespread use may henceforth be made of such a clause, requiring payment of debt service in francs, pounds sterling, etc., as well as in dollars, at the option of the bondholder.

The Supreme Court's decision also does not affect the validity of the gold clause in international contracts, not stated in dollars, which are payable abroad. Such international gold contracts, involving citizens or residents of different countries, have in the past been held valid by the highest courts of a number of European countries, as well as the International Court of Arbitration at The Hague.

The International Committee Against Repudiation of the Gold Clause, formed by principal European bondholders' protective associations, is expected to bring suit shortly in the Court of Claims to test the value of the gold clause to foreign holders of United States obligations to recoup the real losses caused them by devaluation of the dollar and abrogation of the gold clause safeguard in their contracts.

Federal Bonds Slacken Pace In Light Trades

Cuba Railroad Issue Makes 3¾ Points Gain in Market.

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—The Government bond market failed to keep up the rapid pace of the previous session today and prices were a trifle reactionary. Corporate bonds were mixed and the turnover was light.

Profit taking by traders, rather than offerings in substantial quantity by investment houses, was believed by market observers to be responsible for the lower trend in Government obligations, and the turnover of $2,080,000, less than half of that of Tuesday, partially confirmed this belief.

Liberty 3½s yielded 2-32ds, at 103.16, and the Fourth 4¼s were 2-32ds lower, at 103.14, but in the Treasury group and indirect obligations, losses were mostly around one-eighth of a point, and in two instances were a shade higher.

Specialties Higher.

A few selected high-grade corporation bonds disregarded other divisions of the list and broke through their old highs of a year or longer, including Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s at 118¾, up ⅛; Kansas City Gas & Electric 4½s at 104, up 1, and West Penn Power 5s at 109½, up ¼. Others selling higher included obligations of Santa Fe, Detroit Edison, Goodyear Tire & Rubber, National Dairy and Texas Corporation.

A decidedly irregular trend was displayed in lower-priced issues. Baltimore & Ohio 4½s lost 1½ points at 53, Illinois Central 4¾s yielded 1 point at 57 and declines of around that much occurred in obligations of Utility Power & Light, Studebaker, New York, Ontario & Western, Louisville & Arkansas and Boston & Maine.

Cuba Railroad Strong.

Substantial buying in obligations of the Cuba Railroad sent its bonds up as much as 3¾ points for the 7½s, and Utah Light & Traction 5s improved 1¼ points at 80¼. Others advancing moderately included obligations of Alleghany Corporation, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Reading, and Union Pacific. The Associated Press averages for 20 rails declined 0.02 of a point to 85.8 and that for 10 industrials and 10 utilities held unchanged. Low-yield bond averages likewise showed no change.

Bankers Expect Fresh Output Of Securities

Simpler Rules Will Aid New Issues, Say Blyth & Co.

Simplification of the registration of securities and the elimination of uncertainty as to the "gold clause" decisions should stimulate greatly the issuance of new securities, according to Blyth & Co., Inc., investment bankers. These two developments, the bankers say, clear up conditions that have impeded the normal flow of security issues either for refunding or new capital purposes.

Registration requirements for new financing have now been made practically the same as those for permanent listing on security exchanges. "The net effect of these changes," according to the bankers' statement, "is that corporations which now have listed securities, may engage in new financing without supplying any materially different information than is already required in connection with the listing statement."

In presenting a graphic chart to show liabilities and registration information for new financing as compared with exchange listing, the firm says:

"In the development of the new registration forms for new financing, the commission has had the benefit of the constructive criticism of lawyers, bankers, accountants, business executives and persons representing the interest of the investing public, all of whom are familiar with the business and professional problems involved in registration. Every effort has been made to provide a form which, while meeting the strict requirements of the statute, offers no serious difficulty to the well-intentioned corporation.

"The information which is required by the act is now called for in such form as to reduce the burden of expense and effort to issuers and to minimize the risk of liability to officers and directors. The commission believes that reputable companies no longer have any justification for hesitating to undertake new financing under the securities act, and has evidenced a desire to give every possible facility and encouragement to established companies desiring to raise new capital in the financial markets."

Steel Ingot Production Drops 3% to Half Capacity of Mills

New York, Feb. 20 (AP).—Steel ingot production for the past week as estimated today by Iron Age declined 3 points from the preceding week to 50.5 per cent of capacity.

The Iron Age composite price of scrap also dropped from the former week, receding from $12.17 to $11.92 a ton.

"Among steelmakers there are signs of returning confidence," the publication stated in commenting on sentiment in the industry. "Whether the setback in business was due to uncertainty over the gold-clause case, to too rapid expansion of raw and semifinished steel output, to overbuying by consumers, to code limitations on contract buying, or to all of these factors, remains a moot question, but the steel trade sees no evidence of an actual decline in consumption, and in certain directions looks for an expansion of demand above current levels."

The automobile industry is still taking quantities of steel, Iron Age reported, and there is no indication of a relaxing of activity in this field. Refrigerator manufacturers also were reported as being in the market in a good way.

"Milder weather and the completion of new Government financing programs are counted on to stimulate construction, as well as railroad expenditures, in the second quarter," the report continued. "New structural steel projects of 60,000 tons are the largest since the last week of August, 1933."

Unchanged	139	158
Total issues	750	811

Stocks—Reaction on the gold decision flurry caused recessions of fractions to a point. Corporate news was mixed and caused little opinion one way or the other. Turnover at 966,850 shares was slightly less than the previous day.

Bonds—Federals slackened their pace of the day before and slight reactionary tendencies drove prices lower. Corporate bonds were mixed in a light session. Profit taking was held responsible in the main for the soft spots. Transfers dropped to $12,513,000, as compared with $16,122,000 on the previous day.

Curb—Late selling eased prices to lower levels, most closing at fractional declines. Scattered issues displayed strength. Sales were down to 159,000 shares.

Wheat—Selling, with lack of support from consumer buying tumbled grain prices. Weakness of markets abroad was one of the main factors to offset favorable opinion on the settlement of the gold question. Liverpool cables showed meager demand. Close was unsettled near the low, May wheat at 97, and May corn at 86⅛.

Cotton—Moderate activity with irregular price changes led to a steady close. Last quotations were net unchanged to 5 points higher. May closed at 12.53.

Sugar—Raw sugar was steady and unchanged at 2.99. Refined was offered at 4.30 and 4.50 for fine granulated.

Dollar—The United States dollar was steady in foreign exchange. It was quoted in New York in terms of foreign currencies at $4,88¾ to the English pound; 6.62 cents to the French frank, and 40.28 cents to the German mark.

Business Briefs

National Electrical Supply Co., distributors for General Electric home appliances here, were hosts at a banquet held at the Mayflower Hotel last night. The banquet concluded an all-day sales meeting at which the plans for the present year were discussed and the new line was presented to the dealer and sales group. All models, with two exceptions, are equipped with hermetically sealed units. A new line of dishwashers and electric ranges were also displayed.

C. L. McCrea, head of the major appliance division of the distributing firm, reported that sales for 1934 were substantially lighter than the year previous.

Floyd Akers, president of the Capitol Cadillac Co., announced yesterday that C. M. O'Brien and M. M. Marston, of his sales staff, have been elected to the Cadillac Merit Men, made up of leading company salesmen in the country.

Only 95 out of a total of 1,400 salesmen qualified for the honor. This is Marston's first year with the Cadillac organization and the second year that O'Brien has been an honor man. Their total gross volume was $200,000.

Credit Leaders Conclude Their Annual Meet

Comprising the States of Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia, the association is represented here by the Associated Retail Credit Men of Washington, D. C., Inc.

President, William H. Talley, of Wilmington, Del.; vice president, George C. Robinson, of Richmond, Va.; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Mildred White, of Huntington, W. Va.; Directors: James D. Hays, of Harrisburg, Pa.; William R. Calloway, of Newark, N. J.; Virgil C. Powell, of Cumberland, Md.; Vincent A. Rogerson, of Clarksburg, W. Va., and Stephen H. Talkes, of the District of Columbia.

Talkes, who is secretary of the credit men here, was presented with a handsome chair by the members of the organization.

J. Bert Easley, of the Federal Housing Administration, was the featured speaker at the annual banquet which was attended by about 200 members of the local association and delegates to the regional conference. At the concluding meeting Dr. Norris A. Brisco, dean of the school of retailing, New York University, made an address on "What the Retailer Will Expect of the Credit Bureau in 1935."

Stock Trading.

Capital Transit 5s moved at 95½ for a $1,000, 95⅛ for two sales totaling $1,500, and 95 for a $1,000 lot. Washington Railway & Electric 4s moved at 100⅝ for $1,000. Capital Transit common sold at 25¼ and 25⅛ in two transactions. Potomac Electric 6 per cent preferred moved at 111.

National Refinance Elects Directors.

At the annual meeting of the National Refinance Corporation the following officers and directors were elected for the ensuing year: Lewis L. Clarke, of New York, chairman of the board; Frederick S. Dudley, of Washington, president; John R. Waller, vice president; Samuel C. Redman, treasurer; W. M. Balderston, secretary; Earl Bunting, director, engineer division; John D. Morris, of Chicago, director, and Edward J. W. Proffitt, of New York, director. Proffitt, a newly elected director, is president of the Trading Co. of North America and was formerly a member of the War Claims Board.

CLARKE.

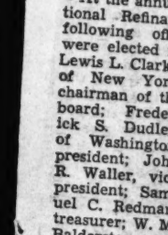
In commenting on the operations of his company, which specializes in debt readjustment and refinance, President Dudley said that banks should cooperate with the Federal Loan agencies in providing working capital loans.

Dyer to Attend Conference.

William H. Dyer, of the Perpetual Building & Loan Association, and R. L. Huston Jones, of the Northwestern Savings & Loan Association, of Takoma Park, have been chosen official delegates to the midwinter conference of the American Savings, Building & Loan Institute in Chicago on February 22 and 23.

F. Willson Camp, of the District Building & Loan Association, attended the meeting of the board of trustees of the institute, which precedes the general sessions of the conference.

The meeting will be Nation-wide in scope, discussing the practical problems of building and loan professional training as well as national issues in the field of home financing.



HOAGLAND.

Five hundred home financiers from all States will attend, according to Dyer.

Among the prominent speakers who will address this meeting are Hon. H. E. Hoagland, member of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Washington; Hon. Everett M. Dirksen, Representative from the Sixteenth Illinois District and a member of the House Banking and Currency Committee; I. Friedlander, Houston, Tex., president of the United States Building and Loan League; John R. B. Byers, of the Federal Housing Administration.

Late Selling On Curb Causes Fall in Prices

Fajardo Sugar Rises 2 Points; Ainsworth Advances 4.

Scattered issues displayed independent strength. Ainsworth Manufacturing rose 4 points on the appearance of a favorable earnings statement. Fajardo sugar advanced 2 coincident with a demand for sugar stocks on the big board. Lake Shore and Greyhound Corporation finished slightly higher.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass lost 2 points, while declines of fractions were shown by Electric Bond & Share, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Hiram Walker, Gulf Oil, Swift Internacional, American Cyanamid "B" and others. American Gas & Electric steadied.

Transfers approximated 159,000 shares compared with 186,000 yesterday.

Crime Probers Ready to Push Inquiry Ahead

Hearings to Be Resumed Next Monday; Police Are Heard Confidentially.

Preparation of a program which will carry its inquiry forward at the same driving pace which characterized hearings earlier in the week was begun yesterday by members of the House District Crime Committee, and John R. Fitzpatrick, committee counsel.

Hearings are to be resumed at 11 a. m. Monday, it was announced by Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, chairman. Who will be called next has not been decided, Mr. Randolph said.

Decision will be made after study of the record of past hearings and of the information which has been volunteered the committee by various persons, he said.

Some believe the committee should continue with its investigation of the operation of the district attorney's office and related subjects, such as activities of bondsmen and court officials. Members of the District bar would be summoned by the committee to tell what they knew of conditions which called for remedy.

Mr. Fitzpatrick conferred yesterday with Detective Sergt. Howard Ogle and Private Jeremiah C. Broderick at the crime committee room, Room 521 in the old House Office Building. The police were asked to confer with him in a letter which was directed to Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police. Other members of the police force are to be asked in the same manner. The procedure was adopted Mr. Fitzpatrick said, in order to avoid any suggestion of deceit or sneakiness. His conversations with the police were confidential and he refused to say what subjects were discussed.

AUCTION SALES

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1935—
THOMAS J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers, 1431 Eye Street Northwest.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE, BEING A REMODELED, TWO-STORY BRICK DWELLING, CONTAINING SIX ROOMS AND BATH; ALSO GARAGE, KNOWN AS 1917 OTIS STREET NORTHEAST.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 5840 at folio 320 of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned will sell at public auction in front of the premises on THURSDAY, THE TWENTY-FIRST DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1935, AT THREE O'CLOCK P. M., the following described land and premises situate in the District of Columbia, and being lot numbered Two hundred and twenty-nine (229) in Jacob W. B. Shapiro's subdivision of lots in square numbered Forty-two hundred and two (4202), as per plat recorded in Liber No. 86, folio 5, of the records of the office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia.

TERMS OF SALE: Purchaser to pay one-fourth of the purchase price in cash, the balance in three installments in one, two and three years, respectively, with interest at the rate of six (6) per centum per annum, and secured by deed of trust on the property sold, or all cash at the option of the purchaser; taxes paid or adjusted to the date of sale; purchaser to pay interest on purchase price from date of sale to date of settlement at six (6) per centum per annum; all conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., at the cost of the purchaser; good title or no sale. A deposit of $250 will be required at the time of sale and settlement to be within thirty (30) days of the date of sale, or deposit forfeited, and the property resold at the cost and risk of the defaulting purchaser after five (5) days' previous advertisement of said resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

Walt Mason

"I am out in rainy weather, I am out in drifts of snow, with my shoes of broken leather," said the sorely stricken bo. "I have nothing in my keeping that is worth a rusty red, and I often do my sleeping in some windy barn or shed. Once I had a good position in a large and stately bank, doing feats in plain addition, counting up the mark and franc. Once I had a cozy lodging where all comforts did prevail, and no constables were dodging round my door with threats of jail. Once I had a groaning larder, with the best of grub supplied, and I ate, with seemly ardor, luxuries both boiled and fried. Oftentimes I'm forward looking to the dawn of better times, with the smell of wholesome cooking, and a good supply of dimes. In my dreams I am beholding scenes of pleasures and delights, with warm comforters enfolding my thin form on winter nights; for I've long been trodden under in the haunts of busted men; but at other times I wonder if I'd like old things again. Would I like to wear white collars in the bankers' gilded tents, counting out the iron dollars that belong to other gents? Would I like to fear forever that I might be shooed away, that the cleaver well might sever my connections any day? Would I like the haughty bosses who once ordered me around? Better join the total losses on the hoboes' camping ground. If a banker came and told me I might have my old job back, in the bank that once enrolled me, handing out the shining jack—I would rather be a he-man in the jungles of the bos. I would rather be a freeman wading through the drifting snows."

A "Cutting" Remark

Official Holds Roxbury Needs $800,000 Fund

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.). To continue construction of the permanent buildings at the Maryland State penal farm at Roxbury, Washington County, $400,000 annually for the next two years will be necessary, Stuart S. Janney, director of welfare, said in a communication received by the Chamber of Commerce.

Work on the permanent structures will have to be curtailed considerably unless some provision is made at the General Assembly, Director Janney said.

If an appropriation is to be made for maintenance alone, $75,000 annually will be needed, he said.

Farm Never Budgeted.

When it was learned that no provision had been made in the State appropriations for construction work, considerable speculation arose as to how this would affect the institution, which was established four years ago.

Director Janney said the farm is entirely supported through the construction loan and has never been budgeted, the labor used in construction being done by prisoners.

The balance on hand from a construction loan, provided two years ago, is $233,544, which to be exhausted by September 30.

Director Janney said he understood the position of Gov. Nice is that the construction work should stop and the men be maintained on this money until the expiration of the next budgetary period. Janney said he did not believe this practical. If this is done, he said, the usefulness of the farm will be lost and the dismissal of a large number of construction men necessary.

The penal farm is used for producing food for the institution, while surplus is sent to the State Sanitarium at Sabillasville.

Sled Hurts Fatal To Woodstock Boy

Fatality First Such This Year in Shenandoah.

Woodstock, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.). The only fatality recorded in Shenandoah County this year from coasting or skating was the death late today of Joseph McKelvey, jr., 14, son of a Woodstock plumber, from injuries suffered coasting in West Woodstock. In the accident, a collision of two sleds January 29, George Laughlin, jr., suffered a broken rib.

Surviving young McKelvey are his parents and nine brothers and sisters. Funeral services will be held here tomorrow afternoon.

Virginia's Capitol Square

Division of Labor and Industry Acts to Insure Safety of Mine Workers; Also Inspects Factories for Consideration of Possible Hazards.

(This is the third of a series dealing with the State department of labor and industry.)

By Warren A. McNeill
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

Richmond, Va., Feb. 20.—The safety of workers in mines and quarries of Virginia is a matter in which the State has accepted a definite responsibility and exercises through a division of the department of labor and industry, John Hopkins Hall, jr., commissioner, points out.

Chief Inspector A. G. Lucas and his assistants are chosen, Mr. Hall says, because of their thorough familiarity with mine practices which must be gained by at least five years' actual experience in mining.

Each mine is visited at least once every six months by an inspector, who sends a certificate to the operator and posts a duplicate where it can be read by mine employes. In its Richmond office the department keeps maps of mines, furnished by operators, showing openings, entries and airways.

A mine found operating under dangerous conditions may be closed by the inspectors. Investigation is made of all serious and fatal accidents, including mine explosions, and recommendations are made to prevent a recurrence. In addition to insuring the safety of workers, Mr. Hall says the work of this division tends to preserve the mineral resources of the State.

Factory Inspection Division.

Through its division of factory inspection the department provides a somewhat similar service which includes consideration of sanitation as well as matters of safety.

S. A. Minter, of Roanoke, is chief inspector of this division which goes into factories, shops, laundries, restaurants and mercantile establishments as often as practicable.

Particular attention is paid to fire escape regulations, applicable also to public buildings and schools. Safeguarding of machinery is noticed and general operating practices are checked to secure what Mr. Hall calls "good factory housekeeping."

Women's, Children's Division.

Still other inspections of industrial establishments are made by the women's and children's division headed by Miss Carrie B. Farmer. A check is kept on the enforcement of laws applying to labor of women and children, both as to hours and working conditions. Complaint that these groups are allowed to work more than the legal number of hours out of a single day are checked; an effort is made to prevent them from working at hazardous occupations or under morally degrading conditions, and an extra check is kept on sanitary and safety conditions where women and children are involved.

(The labor department's functions in dealing with unemployment are discussed in the fourth and last article of this series, to be published by The Post on Saturday.)

Bust Which Sent Miner to Fame To Be Exhibited

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 20 (AP).—The bust of the late Gov. Edwin Warfield, which started George A. Conlon, a Western Maryland coal miner, on his way to fame as a sculptor, is to be displayed at the exhibit of the fine arts department of the Woman's Civic Club here tomorrow night.

Conlon, who now has a studio in Paris, entered the mines near Midland at the age of 14 years as a trapper. He fashioned model images out of the brattic clay used in the mine.

His bust of Warfield, then Governor, made from a likeness on a campaign button, so impressed friends that they brought it to the attention of the Governor. He was instrumental in getting Conlon a scholarship at the Maryland Institute and the youth later went to Paris on another scholarship.

No Funds, Waynesboro Adult School Is Closed

Waynesboro, Pa., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—Effective last night, the Adult School in Waynesboro was suspended, following word from Robert L. Johnson, executive director of the State emergency relief board, that there was a shortage of funds.

The discontinuance order pertained to educational and arts projects, but Mr. Johnson said it was only temporary. County supervisors may continue through February 23.

Typhoid Checked At Bridgewater

Cases of Mild Variety; Decline in Number.

Harrisonburg, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.). A mild epidemic of typhoid fever in the town of Bridgewater has passed its peak, Dr. R. O. Hollowell, district health officer, stated today after an investigation of the cases with Dr. G. F. McGinnis, State epidomologist, and C. B. Neblett, milk sanitary inspector.

Eighteen cases have been diagnosed as typhoid. The type is mild. The serious cases are complicated with whooping cough and influenza. No new cases, said Dr. Hollowell, have developed since last Friday, and everything points to the passing of the peak.

One case has been traced to milk of a dairy, Dr. Hollowell said. At this dairy home there have been several cases of illness, not completely diagnosed as typhoid. The town's water supply is and has been chlorinated for years. There are no cases in Bridgewater College, all of the students of which have been given the antityphoid serum. The college maintains its own dairy. A number of others, especially those in families where there are patients, have also been given the antityphoid inoculation.

Maple Tapping Camps Prepare

Garrett Owners Repair Equipment as 'Sweets' Season Nears.

Grantsville, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—Owners of maple sugar camps in this section of Garrett County are getting equipment in shape for the opening of the maple "sweets" season. After last week's favorable weather, keelers were taken out of storage and repaired. Tanks used in hauling water into camps were inspected and repaired and in some cases evaporators were put in shape.

A few farmers tapped portions of their groves last week during the warm weather, but awoke Sunday to find the sap frozen in the containers of the trees. Several sugar grove owners in this vicinity will fill 300 steel drums of 55-gallon capacity to be shipped to various sections of the State.

Maple sirup and maple products this year are expected to bring higher prices than last year. Somerset County, Pa., adjoining on the north is the second-ranking county in America for the production of maple sirup.

Opposition Ticket In Williamsport Race

Williamsport, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.). Opposition at the May 4 election here for three commissioners was assured when the citizens' ticket nominated Edward L. Shank, Charles W. Wolford and Joseph H. Taylor.

Welfare Unit Studies Works

1,450 Men in Washington County Eligible to Labor on Projects.

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—With 1,450 Hagerstown and Washington County men eligible for relief work, the Washington County Welfare Board has under consideration a number of projects, provided the works relief bill is passed by Congress.

New county jail, slum clearance and housing, improved automobile parking facilities, grade crossing elimination, new city hall, water main and sewerage extension, additional drainage and storm water sewers, city abbatoir, incinerator plant, completion of Memorial boulevard and park, additional airport improvements, removal of street car tracks no longer in use, construction of auditoriums for two junior high schools, new almshouse, new museum of history.

Two grade crossing eliminations and street improvements at Williamsport, disposal plant and street improvements at Boonsboro; sewerage extension and community building at Hancock and a community building at Keedysville; sewerage at Clearspring and community building and street improvements at Funkstown; sewerage and street improvements at Smithsburg, improved town hall at Sharpsburg and improvement to sewerage and water systems, community building at Leitersburg and public camp at Big Pool, fish hatcheries in county, restoration of Civil War fort at Maryland Heights and road there, clearing of graveyards in county, road to Gen. Reno's monument at Fox's Gap and other county road improvements.

School for Firemen Opens at Edinburg, Va.

Edinburg, Va., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—Opening here last night, Shenandoah County's training school for volunteer firemen was attended by fire unit members from New Market, Mount Jackson, Woodstock, Strausburg and Edinburg.

Long sought by Edinburg and Shenandoah County, the school is being financed by the League of Virginia Municipalities and the State Division of Trade and Industrial Education. Classes will be conducted each Tuesday and will consist of lectures and practical demonstrations by instructors detailed by the municipal league and the State body.

Woman Badly Injured When Struck by Truck

Frederick, Md., Feb. 20 (Spl.).—Struck by a truck as she walked across the road at the southern edge of Woodsboro, yesterday, Mrs. Emma Mehring, 68, of Keymar, suffered concussion of the brain, laceration of the scalp and injuries about the body. At the City Hospital her condition was said to be serious.

With her husband, Upton Mehring, a retired farmer, Mrs. Mehring motored to Woodsboro to visit relatives. Starting across the highway in front of the car, Mrs. Mehring stepped in front of the approaching truck operated by Carl W. Haugh, New Midway.

Getting Down to Cases—There Are Just Three Things That Men Want to Know When Buying a Suit in This Sale

You'll open your eyes at our line-up of Sports Ensembles and Sports Back Coats; if you prefer conservative styles you will find single or double breasted, plain-back types in large selection.

Well—we planned this sale months in advance; we went direct to the best woolen mills and selected fine woolens and worsteds in tremendous quantity; we insisted on super qualities in linings and trimmings; there's a EXTRA PAIR OF TROUSERS with every suit. All these things combined appeal to ANY MAN'S BUSINESS JUDGMENT!

(3.) Are These Fabrics Reliable?
